VOTE MACHINE AWARD ATTACKED

Today

The La Follette Name.
Oakland's Fine Idea.
Paul Block Buys Another.
Ahgels That Watch Us.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE NAME LA FOLLETTE remains a power in Wisconsin. Its voters have not forgotten the courage and the integrity of Robert La Follette, and apparently find in his sons the same characteristics.

What happiness it would give the father to know that his son, Robert La Follette, occupies a seat in the United States Senate, and that another son, Phillip, has just been nominated governor of Wisconsin.

WITH ONE SON in the Senate and another governor of his state the old senator can feel that his family is well represented in American life. Perhaps he knows all about it; and if he doesn't, no matter. We live on, in our children, enjoying an immortality that agnosticism cannot take from us.

CHICAGO'S ATTENDANCE at night schools has increased 62 per cent, attributed to lack of employment.

Wise is the man, out of work temporarily, who puts his brain to acquiring knowledge. He will not remain unemployed.

OAKLAND, one of the most progressive cities in progressive California, establishes, thanks to the University of California, the country's first "adult educational center." R. A. Carrington, Jr., publisher of the Oakland Post Enquirer, sends the news.

The adult, rather than the child, craves information, eagerly seeking to repair lack or neglect of opportunity in childhood.

NO MAN SHOULD feel that he is "too old to learn." DESIRE to learn proves of itself that you still CAN learn.

One of the greatest British scientists conquered Greek after he was 60.

ON THE OPENING day of the university for adults, students admitted included a banker, a day laborer, school teachers, two doctors, a dentist, a photographer, clerks, bookkeepers, insurance agents, a successful merchant, and two truck drivers.

Well might the ancient Chinese say: "He that knows not, and KNOWS that he knows not, is wise. Encourage him."

PAUL BLOCK'S newspaper buying campaign goes marching on. Having already a successful and powerful evening newspaper in Toledo, he bought the Toledo Morning Times, and, in less than a month has greatly increased its circulation.

This article appearing on the front page each day seems not to have held back circulation.

Better than any living man, with one exception, Paul Block understands the value of publicity, which means advertising in its different branches.

ANGELS THAT watch us, and, perhaps, talk about us, must have been amused when they saw Henry Ford sleeping at Nancy, in a bed once occupied by the Sultan of Morocco.

That bed could not well have held two individuals farther apart than the sultan of Morocco and the sultan of Detroit.

But, to the angels we may seem as much alike as ants seem to us.

IN A SECRET test, Capt. Orlebar, squadron leader in the British air force, beat his own new world's record for speed, made when he won the Schneider cup, 355 miles and a fraction per hour.

He has recently several times exceeded 400 miles per hour, a speed that would bring him across the Atlantic in less than a day, across the Pacific by the daylight of one day.

We are not far from real flying.

CONGRESSMAN HAMILTON FISH, JR., able, earnest young man, head of the committee appointed to investigate the "reds," says investigation should cover the United States. He is right.

The United States should know about all important activities, including those of "reds," and, if possible, some others, including national grafters, racketeers, bootleg organizations and wholesale criminals.

THE "RED" MENACE, which worries some of our "best minds," seems to be spreading.

In Australia, where government by labor unions has been somewhat overdone, and public finances are badly strained, there has been organized a "worker's defense army," called by others "an organization of reds."

This "army" tells landlords that they must not evict the unemployed, whether they pay rent or not. What they mean was illustrated when a landlord's home in the suburbs was wrecked.

IN FRANCE, 15,000 jobs go begging. No men are idle. Workers are called in from Italy and other countries.

The French manage well, and have, per capita, the world's largest gold supply, almost double that of the United States. Their people all WORK, all SAVE.

They are a LOGICAL people, and do not fear to go fearlessly where logic leads them.

YESTERDAY, THE government began work on Boulder Dam. President Hoover, through Mr. Wilbur, his secretary of the interior, started the work.

They, and the states that managed to reach an agreement, and the newspapers, and the men, especially Senator

COURT ASKED TO DECLARE ACTION VOID

Guthrie Declares Officials Awarded Contract Without Regard for Specifications

An injunction to prevent the County Commissioners and other elected officials from carrying out the contract for $1,000,000 worth of voting machines signed with the Poole Engineering and Machine Company of Baltimore, is asked in a suit filed today by Francis S. Guthrie. It is directed against County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and Charles C. McGovern; County Treasurer John Francies and County Controller Robert G. Woodside.

Action was taken in Common Pleas Court before Judge Frank P. Patterson.

The bill of complaint charges:

1. The contract executed with the Poole Company is illegal, void and of no effect.

2. The $100,000 bond of the Maryland Casualty Company is utterly inadequate because it should have been for $1,000,000, the full amount of the contract.

3. That the bond does not protect Allegheny County as it should by binding the Poole Company to faithfully perform its contract.

4. The bond protects the county only with respect to furnishing or causing to be furnished a stated number of voting machines.

WRONG ENVELOPE USED

5. The bid of the Poole Company was not submitted in the special envelope required by the county controller's advertisement for bids.

6. The agreement to be entered into by the county was furnished to the Poole Company, but not to the other bidders.

7. The specifications of the county provided for a nine-party 50-candidate machine, but the Poole Company did not bid on such a machine. Neither has it ever built or had such a machine in actual operation, as required by the specifications.

Guthrie, head of the George Brothers insurance agency and prominent in Democratic circles, is a member of the Citizens' Voting Machine Committee, headed

MRS. NOAH BEERY

BEERY'S WIFE RETURNS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Marguerite Beery, reported missing by her husband, Noah Beery, film actor, was at the home of friends in Hollywood today where she said there was no mystery attached to her absence from their North Hollywood ranch.

She said she had been in Las Vegas, Nev., to "establish a residence."

Soon after her return she said:

"I was much surprised upon my return to read I had mysteriously disappeared. There is no mystery to my absence. I went to Las Vegas to establish a residence. I may return there to make it a permanent residence.

"Will you ascertain what reward Mr. Beery offered for information as to my whereabouts? If sufficiently large, I will have myself brought in immediately.

"Newspapers reported Mr. Beery said I had $750 on my person at the time I disappeared. May I add that during my married life with Mr. Beery of 22 years I have never seen $750."

Emil Wickman, a rancher living near Las Vegas, reported Mrs. Beery and Raymond Wells, a former film director, had been his guests for nearly a week.

LIPTON'S YACHT LOSES FOURTH RACE AND CUP

Enterprise Easy Winner in Runaway Contest; British No Match for Vanderbilt

BULLETIN.

ABOARD U. S. S. KANE, OFF NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 18.—(INS.)—Enterprise, Harold Vanderbilt's racing yacht, defeated Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, in the fourth and final of the America's Cup races here today.

International News Service.

ABOARD U. S. S. KANE, off Newport, R. I., Sept. 18.—Enterprise rounded the 20-mile mark in the fourth of the America's Cup races far ahead of Shamrock V at 1:55:06 p. m. today.

Enterprise seemed to be sailing to her fourth and final victory, which would clinch the 1930 international yachting series.

'OTH IN HOME STRETCH

Shamrock rounded the 20-mile marker at 2:01:55 p. m.

As the yachts swung into the home stretch it was observed that Shamrock had cut down Enterprise's lead by two minutes and 26 seconds in the second 10-mile leg of the 30-mile course. Her position was seven minutes behind.

Sir Thomas Lipton's sloop at this stage of the race appeared to be hopelessly outclassed and beaten. Barring an accident to Enterprise, which semed improbable, it was regarded by observers that it was only a question of how badly Shamrock trailed Enterprise at the finish line.

SHAMROCK 'NOWHERE'

When Enterprise rounded the marker at the end of the 10-mile windward leg at 1:03:15 p. m. Shamrock was trailing so far she was almost out of sight of Enterprise.

Just before reaching the 10-mile mark Enterprise ran in toward the shore, Vanderbilt apparently expecting to find a strong eddy of wind off the land and to get the benefit of the tide that sometimes runs along the shore at three miles an hour.

The breeze continued to freshen to between 15 and 18 miles an hour as Enterprise went charging down the second leg, with a bone in her teeth.

Shamrock rounded the 10-mile buoy at 1:12:14 p. m.—nine minutes behind Enterprise.

Enterprise, away first from the starting line when the race began, lost her advantage after a few minutes and trailed the British sloop by 200 yards 20 minutes after the getaway.

But she did not stay long behind.

ENTERPRISE STEPS OUT

Crossing over to the weather berth, and holding close to the wind, she leaped ahead like a race horse, and from there to the first turn on the 30-mile triangular

BOSTON HONORS HEARST AT FETE DAY

Publisher Presented With Famous Elm Cane; He Reviews Huge Parade

By EDWARD SULLIVAN.
Universal Service.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Boston was still thrilled today over its greatest spectacle in its 300 years of existence—the Boston Day parade staged yesterday in commemoration of the founding of the city.

From noon to dusk the 50,000 paraders marched in 10 divisions.

Amid continuous cheering, Chief Marshal Gen. Edward L. Logan led the divisions through the human canyon of Beacon street, past the flag-draped golden dome of the state house and into Tremont street, where stood the reviewing stand.

WITNESS PAGEANT

There countless dignitaries witnessed the pageant. Gov. Frank G. Allen, Mayor James M. Curley, William Randolph Hearst and Mayor Reuben Salter, of Boston, England, occupied positions of honor. As the second division halted before the stand, Mayor Curley, in view of the thousands in the stands and along Tremont street, presented to Mr. Hearst, as one of the foremost defenders of liberty and the Constitution in America, a "Constitution cane."

PRESENTS CANE

The cane is one of three cut from the famous elm that stood for 200 years on the battlefield of Lexington.

In presenting the cane, Mayor Curley said:

"This cane is one of three known as 'Constitutional big sticks.' Three canes were cut from an elm tree which grew on the spot where the movement for the establishment of American liberty had its inception. These canes are given to the three foremost defenders and upholders of liberty and the Constitution in America, William Randolph Hearst, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Osee Lee Bodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion."

TRIBUTE TO HEARST

Then, turning to Mr. Hearst, Mayor Curley continued:

RUTH ALEXANDER . . . AIR TITLEHOLDER

Miss Alexander, killed in the wreckage of her plane within the foggy limits of San Diego, Cal., from which she had just taken off in an attempt to make a one-stop speed flight from coast to coast.

DASH ACROSS U. S. JUST BEGUN

Ruth Alexander in Plunge Soon After Plane Heads Eastward From San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Ruth Alexander, 24-year-old San Diego aviatrix, plunged to death in her airplane here today shortly after taking off on a projected one-stop transcontinental flight to Newark, N. J.

Miss Alexander left Lindbergh Field at 7:28 a. m., Pittsburgh time, and had flown only four miles when death stopped her undertaking. With a terrific crash, her light low-wing monoplane plowed into a hill four miles north of the field. Her body was found in the wreckage. Parts of the plane were strewn for several hundred feet.

Before she took off, Miss Alexander jokingly told reporters:

"If I crack up, send me purple pansies—I like them best."

SAW HER FLYING LOW

Witnesses said they saw her plane flying close to the ground, and a few seconds later heard a prolonged crash. The cause of the disaster was not apparent after the initial survey of the wreckage, but an explosion of gasoline was suspected by investigators.

A wing was found 300 feet from where the body, the motor and the other wing lay. No trace of the "stick" or propeller was discovered.

The motor plowed into the ground, making a large hole. The fuselage was folded into a small bundle.

Miss Alexander's flight officially began at Agua Caliente, Mexico, shortly after 5 a. m. She had landed her plane, christened the Agua Caliente, at Lindbergh Field for checking.

A low fog swept in from the sea, but the aviatrix was thought to have hurdled it, shortly after her eastward takeoff, having gained an altitude of 500 feet. How she happened to be flying close to the ground later was not determined.

She had planned to stop only at Wichita, Kan., which she had

Associated Press.

By defeating Brooklyn's Robins for the second time in succession yesterday, 5 to 3, the St. Louis Cardinals pulled out a full game ahead of the pack in the race for the National League pennant with only 10 games to go. The Robins and Cards each have won 84 games, but Brooklyn is two behind in the lost column.

They are 1½ games back of the Cards, while they dropped the Giants to 5½ games from first place, an almost hopeless position. The standing of the leaders:

Balm Suit Defense Bans Whitehead in Casino

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—The New York American says Dale Bourn, British amateur golfer, has threatened to sue Sidney Solomon, lessee of the Central Park Casino, because Solomon refused to serve nine guests of Bourn when he saw Joseph B. Whitehead, Coca Cola magnate, among them.

The American says Whitehead recently replied to a $500,000 breach of promise suit brought by Annette S. Bracy by giving the initials of a number of men with whom he charged she had been friendly. Among the initials were "S. S."

Bourn, who is in this country to play in the National amateur championship at Merion Cricket Club, said:

"I am thoroughly disgusted with the entire occurrence. Solomon told me he would serve the rest of us but not Whitehead. I told him Whitehead was my guest, and that it was an insult to me and that I wanted an explanation. He said he was sorry but he would make no further comment."

Herbert O. Smiyth, attorney for Whitehead, also has given counsel to Bourn.

Princess Racing 94 Miles An Hour Beats Prince

MONZA, Italy, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, his bride of nine months, explained to their intimates today the thrills of a race at 94 miles an hour which they enjoyed in the Monza International Motordrome yesterday afternoon.

The Princess won the race because she had chosen the fastest car at the motordrome, but after the unscheduled event had ended the Prince changed cars and sped over the course at 119 miles an hour on the straightaways and 95 miles taking the curves.

At the end of his ride Prince Humbert exclaimed:

"This isn't Monza's record, but it certainly is mine!"

The Princess was piloted by the racer Marinoni. Her car was ahead from the first lap. On one of the turns she asked Marinoni:

"When you go around curves like that do you sometimes think of your wife?"

When the couple left the track they were roundly cheered.

MILLIONS HEAR HEARST LAUDED AS PATRIOT AT BOSTON

FAMOUS ELM CANE GIVEN PUBLISHER

Presented by Mayor Curley As Guest Reviews Huge Tercentenary Parade

deserving of this honor than you.

"The City of Boston welcomes this opportunity to present this Constitutional big stick" to a real, worth-while defender of American principles which he exemplified recently in France.

"An indignity was committed by the French nation against a great publisher and we consider it an honor for the City of Boston to show in this manner how greatly we regard him."

In reply Mr. Hearst said:

"I realize the greatness of the honor which Mayor Curley has conferred on me. Personally, I do not know whether I fully deserve it. I shall always regard it highly.

"The liberty born at Lexington was not only for America, but for all the world."

The cane has a heavy gold band upon which is etched its history.

There was a halt in the parade when Mayor Curley and his distinguished guests alighted at the court of honor at the Common. There was another when both Mayors of Boston, old and new, spoke over a trans-Atlantic radio hookup.

OCEAN HOOKUP

The entire parade was halted while Mayor Curley stepped to a microphone hooked up with the Columbia network and with Great Britain through the British Broadcasting Company. He said:

Dear friends across the ocean:

"It is an exceeding pleasure on this, the tercentenary observance of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, to send a message of cheer, a message of good will, a message of brotherhood to our friends on the other side of the Atlantic.

"Yesterday in Boston we unveiled a permanent memorial in enduring bronze and granite to the women and men, who, by their fortitude and courage, made possible the establishment of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Today every element of the population of the commonwealth of Massachusetts is participating in one of the most interesting pageants and parades ever conducted in the history of Boston. Every single artery of industry is represented in this great pageant.

"On the reviewing stand reviewing the parade is his excellency, the Governor, Honorable Frank G. Allen. Likewise on the platform here is the great and courageous publisher, who was recently removed from France, the greatest honor, in the opinion of Americans, conferred on any man in the last 10 generations, William Randolph Hearst.

"Mr. Hearst is a disciple of free speech, and his organs have always stood for what is best for the United States of America and for the peace of the world.

"It becomes my very great pleasure at this time to present as the speaker of the afternoon the distinguished and noted Mayor of old Boston, England, who has come here like a youthful father to see how the son is getting along.

"I don't know how long he will be able to survive the pace that the son sets. I don't know that he will be able to return on time. But he has our heartfelt good wishes and our most earnest prayers. I present at this time His Lordship, Ruben Salter, Mayor of Boston, England."

SALTER BROADCASTS

The Mayor of Boston, England, resplendent in his red robes of office, told the people of old Boston and of England about the reception he had received and the pageant going on before him.

The military organizations, massed in the first and second divisions of the parade, drew prolonged roars of applause.

Governor Allen was at the head of the 26th division, National Guard, as chief executive of the Commonwealth, and left the line at the reviewing stand.

EDWARDS GETS OVATION

Heading the second division was Maj. Gen. Clarence E. Edwards, "daddy of the Yankee division," who was accorded a tremendous ovation all along the route.

Independent military organizations, historical and patriotic societies formed the body of the third division.

In the fourth was the historical pageant, a mammoth and spectacular series of floats depicting the history of Boston and America.

More than 10,000 boys and girls of Boston schools were in the fifth division while the sixth was composed of civic and business organizations. The seventh division comprised fraternal and racial groups, each one of which presented a float typical of the organization or of the land of their ancestors.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and other juvenile organizations made up the eighth division. Nearly a dozen juvenile bands accompanied them.

Red shirts and veteran firemen's organizations with a unit of old fashioned hand tubs made up the ninth group. The tenth division was composed of an imposing array of commercial and industrial floats.

Mr. Hearst was escorted to the reviewing stand by Mayor Curley and occupied an honor position in the mayor's part, together with Lord Mayor Reuben Salter, of Boston, England.

GERMAN PRESS LAUDS HEARST

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—(Universal)—The triumphant receptions accorded Mr. William Randolph Hearst in Boston and New York, after his return from Europe, and especially his editorial demanding changes in the Versailles Treaty, have created a sensation in Germany, and are fully detailed in the German press.

Tempo, a Berlin newspaper of the Ullstein group, says:

"The warnings of the Hearst newspapers would have more value if they had not opposed every sensible solution of the war debt question, demanding repayment of the last cent."

But the Vossische Zeitung, also of the Ullstein concern, declares:

"Mr. W. R. Hearst's opinion conforms with that of the American 'man in the street,' who rightly believes that the allies would use the money remitted them to increase armaments and fortresses.

"So long as Europe is governed by this mentality, the American sees no reason why he should relinquish the sums which he can use to the better advantage of his country."

The western high pressure area is now centered over the Ohio Valley covering most of the eastern half of the country. It is attended by a clear sky except over the southern sector where cloudy weather prevails and rain in the Gulf states. A disturbance of marked intensity is centered over the far Northwest. It is causing conditions and scattered light rains. There was a change to cooler weather over the East and warmer in the Northwest.

GIRL FLIER DIES IN CRASH

expected to reach at 9 o'clock tonight.

Miss Alexander was born at Irving, Kan., in 1906. It was there in 1919, when she first rode in a plane as a passenger with an itinerant flier, that she decided to become an aviatrix.

SOON SHOWED APTITUDE

In 1928 she came to California, earning her way to San Diego by driving a car for tourists. She began carrying out her ambition to fly by working and saving money for instruction. She worked in a beauty shop for a while and also as a waitress. She enrolled for an aviation course and quickly showed aptitude.

November 17, of last year, although she had less than 20 hours of training and instruction, Miss Alexander passed the rigid tests prescribed by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and qualified to try for any aviation record recognized by that organization.

The next day she went aloft in a light plane, soared to a height of approximately 18,000 feet and established a world record for women fliers in planes of less than 100 horsepower.

Less than three weeks ago, Miss Alexander added another feat to her achievements by making a non-stop flight from Vancouver, B. C., to Agua Caliente, in 16 hours.

Since Miss Alexander was flying a licensed airplane and had a Department of Commerce pilot license, the National Aeronautic Association said it was certain both she and the plane had complied with safety requirements and that no one could be held to blame for any defects which might have caused the crash.

MARTIN NAMES COMMITTEE ON PLATFORM

Action May Lead to Clash Between Pinchot and Organization Leaders

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, today appointed a committee on platform. A resolution authorizing appointment of such a committee was adopted by the Republican State Committee at its meeting in Philadelphia June 7.

Members are Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, Philadelphia; County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Helen M. Schlaraff, Erie; Miss Sarah M. Gallagher, Ebensburg; Mrs. Ada P. Buckman, Langhorne, Bucks county; Simon H. Sell, Bedford, and William S. Johnson, Berwick.

DECLINES COMMENT

The seven nominees for state office, Chairman Martin and Mrs. Sarah M. Elter, Harrisburg, state vice chairman, are ex-officio members of the committee.

Gen. Martin declined all comment upon the appointment of the committee and refused to say whether the committee will be called together to frame a platform. The state committee has not adopted a platform for gubernatorial elections since 1914 and less than two weeks ago Gen. Martin explained that the party in the 1930 election will follow the Republican platform adopted by the national convention in Kansas City in 1928.

CLASH LIKELY

Since the meeting of candidates in Pittsburgh last Saturday, however, it has been reported that a platform may be adopted this year as a means of obtaining a definite declaration from Philadelphia leaders regarding their attitude toward Gifford Pinchot as nominee for governor.

Pinchot has declared that if there is a platform it must follow the declarations of the planks on which he was nominated in the primary.

GERMANS SCENT PLOT TO DOOM REPUBLIC

Enemies of Fascism Declare Plans Already Under Way For It to Wrest Control

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—Charges that leaders of the National Socialist (Fascist) party, now a powerful force in German politics because of its victory in the recent elections, already are laying plans for a putsch were made today by certain factions of the Berlin press.

According to the Communist papers, which admittedly maintain agents in the ranks of the Fascist party, Adolf Hitler, National Socialist head, has called a conference of all former army and police officers belonging to his party in Munich and Berlin.

This, it is charged, will be aimed at establishment of groups within the army and the police to maintain neutrality in each organization in the event of a coup d'etat.

In addition, it is charged that storm divisions of National Socialists are being armed by Thuringian armament factories controlled by the Fascist minister, Frick.

BORNE FROM BIG FUND

The expense is being borne, it was alleged, from a 15,000,000-mark fund given by Thuringia to the Duke of Coburg-Gotha, a Fascist sympathizer, as indemnity for properties sequestrated after formation of the republic.

The tactical aim of the Fascists, it is charged, is a coup d'etat from above and civil war from below, with complete overthrow of the republic as the result.

The Democratic newspaper Berliner Zeitung am Mittag also published allegations of Hitler's putsch plans. While the Fascist leader himself was non-committal, his headquarters here stated the reports were not authentic.

Interpreted as indicating the desire of the National Socialists to obtain control of the nation, Fascist leaders announced today they will demand the Reichswehr and interior ministries when the new Reichstag assembles next month.

WOULD GIVE CONTROL

The Reichswehr ministry controls the army and navy, while the minister of the interior is the controlling power in the government except on matters of foreign policy.

Stocks on the Berlin Bourse dropped as much as 10 points today following publication of reports in the Communist and Democratic press that the Fascist party was laying plans for a revolutionary putsch.

Reaction to the rumors was so great the government had to issue a communique, designed to allay the fears of the populace, in which the published reports were characterized as fantasies.

U. S. YACHT FAR AHEAD

course steadily increased her advantage over Shamrock.

It had lost all semblance to a race, and had become a procession.

Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt again outsailed the Shamrock's professional skipper, Ned Heard.

Skipper Heard sent his charge in for a shore run soon after the start and lost precious ground as the Enterprise continued along on almost a straight course for the turning mark. He realized his mistake finally, and made a long tack out to sea, but by that time he was far behind.

BRITONS DESPERATE

The crew of the British boat was taking desperate measures to bring their boat higher into the wind, but she did not appear to respond readily.

The situation was analagous to that of a horse race, in which one hugs the rail and the other runs out in the middle of the track, taking what is called the "overland route" to the finish line—a route that is many lengths the longer.

Enterprise, in a position now to gamble, put in toward shore in search of a strong favoring current 10 minutes before the mark was reached. Shamrock followed, but too late to do much good.

With its great advantage Enterprise need only to coast along to finish out the course the winner.

Today

Hiram Johnson, of California, who have worked for the dam through years of discouragement, are all to be congratulated, and the nation more than all of them.

THERE IS ANXIETY in the prohibition camp, although, with an amendment in the Constitution that can't be taken out, they hold the whip hand.

It is feared by drys in Massachusetts that William M. Butler, who beat a wet in the Republican senatorial primaries by a narrow margin of less than 9,000 votes, will lose to a wet on election day.

The unexpected showing of the wets, almost retiring Mr. Butler, gives them courage for the attack in November.

VOTING MACHINE DEAL FOUGHT

by State Senator Frank J. Harris.

He filed the suit as the result of County Commissioners Armstrong and Babcock awarding the voting machine contract over the protest of the committee, which has been studying the question for months. The committee protested the award to the Poole company. Commissioner McGovern voted against it.

WOULD VOID CONTRACT

At the conclusion of the bill of complaint, a voluminous 13-page document, Guthrie asks for a temporary injunction until a final hearing, and then a permanent injunction, restraining the commissioners, the treasurer and the controller from carrying out any of the provisions of the contract they have executed with the Poole company, paying over any money or issuing any warrants to the company under the contract.

He also asks that the commissioners be required to readvertise for bids and to award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder.

The bill of complaint sets forth:

"The American Electromatic Voting Machine, which the Poole Engineering and Machine Company proposes to furnish, is not and never has been successfully used anywhere in the United States of America."

MEET REQUIREMENTS

The bill also asserts that the Automatic Voting Machine Company of Jamestown, N. Y., the only other bidder for the contract, met all the requirements of the specifications. The commissioners, however, awarded the contract to the Poole company, August 15 despite the fact that, the petition avers, "The Poole bid was not the lowest and best bid, nor was it any legal bid whatsoever."

The agreement signed by the three county commissioners and officers of the Poole Company provides for replacement of the machines delivered if at any time the laws are changed or new improvements are made on the machines they are manufacturing, with other machines at the prevailing market price. This is not legal, the petition avers, and the bond furnished does not guarantee performance of this part of the contract.

The petition was presented by Attorney Charles F. C. Arensberg, representing Guthrie.

Suspect in Death Of Policeman Held

John O'Leary, 29, of 46 Orphan street, was ordered held today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in connection with the death of Mark Scott, North Side patrolman, at the Pittsburgh Hospital, August 23, of a skull fracture.

O'Leary's arrest resulted from an investigation by Homicide Detective Harry Scott, brother of the dead man. Six men, rounded up after Scott's death, testified that the officer fell on the stairs at 651 Larimer avenue.

Boy Struck by Auto Dies from Injuries

A. J. Snyder, of 327 Garnett way, alleged driver of the car, posted $1,000 bond before the coroner.

Ritchie to Block Presidency Move

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie moved last night to block any attempt to indorse him by resolution for the presidency at the party's state convention here today. In a letter to United States Senator Millard E. Tydings, unopposed for the convention chairman, he said he had been informed such a resolution was to be introduced and requested that no action be taken on it.

TAG-'FIXING' BILL TABLED FOR QUIZ

Complexities Explained as Resulting to Comply With State Vehicle Code

The anti-tag-"fixing" ordinance, which the Better Traffic Committee has introduced into City Council to place Pittsburgh's traffic law enforcement machinery on a "sales slip" basis, was laid on the table by the Council public safety committee yesterday for further consideration and a public hearing.

In commenting upon the structure of the proposed new procedure on arrest ordinance, Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the traffic committee, pointed out that complexities in the proposed ordinance were brought about because it had to comply with the requirements of the state vehicle code as to the manner in which arrests are made and summonses issued.

The "sales slip" accounting system is simple, and identical with the accounting systems in vogue in department stores and other establishments.

COMPLICATED ROUTINE

The Pennsylvania State Vehicle Code, placed in effect January 1, 1929, Duggan said, makes it necessary for a complicated routine to be followed by Traffic Court after a tag has been received before a violator may be arrested.

Notices by registered mail and special warrants must be drawn up before a violator not making an appearance on the day set may be brought to justice.

The novel part of the proposed traffic law enforcement ordinance, Duggan said, lies in its method of accounting for tags.

OPEN FOR PUBLIC QUIZ

All tags would be issued by a central authority on receipt only. Monthly reports of all phases of the traffic law enforcement machinery would be made by the public safety director, the Traffic Court magistrates and the city controller to the mayor and the City Council through the central authority designated for that purpose. Every report and all information from which the reports are drawn are to be available for public investigation at any time.

With 190,000 tags issued during 1929, more than 119,000 of which were "fixed," traffic fatalities in Pittsburgh for last year were 180. With an increase of 10 fatalities this year over last year's record, blame is attached to the fact that so far this year more than 240,000 tags have been issued, of which less than 61,000 have been legally disposed of in Traffic Court.

Hard Year for U. S. Agriculture Seen

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—(INS.)—American agriculture is facing a hard year, Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, told the Mortgage Bankers Association of America today.

He said there was equally no doubt that these difficulties would be surmounted and that in the perspective of years the strain will appear a temporary one. He told the bankers they could rely upon the board not only to do everything possible to facilitate this recovery, but it would devote all its powers and its best efforts toward raising the general level of agricultural prosperity as well.

Meyer's Appointment Welcomed by Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 18.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The business interests of the country in both the industrial and agricultural lines will find much encouragement in the appointment of Eugene Meyer, Jr., as governor of the Federal Reserve Board. He is not only a banker of wide experience, but also a very successful business man with about 12 years of public service in Washington. His work as chairman of the War Finance Commission for Agricultural and Industrial Rehabilitation laid the foundation for the revival which began eight years ago.

Calvin Coolidge.

The Federal Reserve system was created to serve the business men of the nation. Without it the war could not have been financed. By providing a safe and certain source of credit to member banks it makes more stable and liquid the resources of the whole country. While individual banks may suffer from misfortune or bad management, no one has any lack of confidence in the soundness of the currency system of the government or the banking system of the people. When these are correctly used they support and encourage our productive activity. They are of great benefit to the farmer and wage earner. We can now expect to see those great powers used for that purpose.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

CITES FATE OF WHIG PARTY

Urging Repeal, He Compares Republicans With Regime Disrupted Over Slavery

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Advocating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, Col. William J. Donovan, former assistant United States attorney general, likened the position of the Republican party today to the plight of the Whig party before the Civil War. He said, speaking to the Young Republican Club:

"The disintegration of the Whig party in the slavery controversy is illustrative. That organization in the fifties found the slavery issue loaded with political, moral and emotional dynamite.

"The Whigs did not meet the logic of events. Guided by short-sighted expediency and timidity, they persisted in a policy of evasion. Because of this, the party failed.

"Today the Republican party is confronted with a crisis not unlike that which the Whig party failed to meet. It is faced with the issue of prohibition. Although primarily a social and economic problem, it must now be dealt with by governmental action."

GRAND JURY PROBING REPORT

New York Lawyer Verifies Story Blonde Intimated She Planned Action

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Dr. Samuel Buchler, lawyer, rabbi and former office-holder, appeared today before a grand jury to tell the story of how a tall, blonde woman asked him, on the day before Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater disappeared, to file a $100,000 breach of promise suit against the jurist.

Dr. Buchler testified for about 20 minutes. When he emerged he said he and District Attorney Crain had disagreed as to whether, since the young woman had paid him no money, she was a client. Crain said she was not, and held that Buchler was free to tell of the entire conversation between them.

Dr. Buchler informed the New York World that the woman, whose name was given as Lorraine Fasvn, called on him August 5 and said she had letters from the justice which she believed were a basis for suit. She promised to return the next day, he said, but did not, and the next day Justice Crater was missing.

SUBPENA ORDERED

The district attorney directed today that a subpena be issued calling for Buchler's immediate presence before the grand jury which is looking into the mystery of the judge's disappearance.

The information from Buchler came after his attention had been called by the newspaper to a letter it had received from a woman in which he was mentioned in connection with the suit.

"HAS GONE WEST"

The writer said she, Mrs. Crater and others knew the justice's whereabouts and that he had gone west to escape his difficulties.

The day before Justice Crater disappeared he withdrew $5,500 from the bank. The writer said he had to take this money out of the bank to "satisfy the whims of a 'scanty' who threatened scandals." She said she understood the threatened suit was disposed of by payment of $5,000.

HUNT GOES ON

The letter was postmarked from Chicago. In addition to Mrs. Crater it mentions United States Senator Robert F. Wagner and Taylor Phillips as among those who could throw some light on the affair.

Senator Wagner, who was Crater's former law associate, previously had denied knowing anything about his disappearance. Taylor, a former partner of Wagner's, denied that he knew where Crater was.

Meanwhile, the police search for the missing justice who disappeared on August 6, was extended to Nova Scotia where a friend quoted the justice as saying he had a cabin "in a little out of the way place which cannot be reached by telephone."

DONOHOE TRIAL NEARS CLOSE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 18.—Taking of testimony in the trial of Tony Bell for the murder of Constable John Donohoe neared an end today with likelihood that arguments to the jury would open late this afternoon.

William Priester yesterday testified that he saw Bell near the scene of the murder with a blue steel gun in his hand.

Priester testified that he and Helen Danich were sitting in a parked automobile just a short distance from where the "death" car was found. He said he heard 11 shots, which seemed to be fired near him and then Tony Bell appeared at the machine and asked what he was doing there.

The witness said he knew Bell and was certain of the identity. No witnesses heard during the murder trial caused more of a sensation than Priester.

U.S. RECOGNIZES REVOLT CHIEFS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(INS.)—Normal diplomatic relations with the new governments of Argentina, Peru and Bolivia, all the products of the revolutionary fever which has been manifest in South America, were resumed today by the American government.

The American ambassadors to Argentina and Peru and the minister to Bolivia presented their credentials, and were received with eagerness by the new provisional governments.

Because of the wealth and importance of Argentina, as well as the anti-American spirit which flourished under the regime of the deposed President Irigoyen, state department officials are following developments there closely.

HELD IN THREAT ON FILM STAR

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Dick Warde, who gave his address as 107 East One Hundred and Third street, New York, was arrested on a charge of suspicion of sending death threats through the mails to Ben Lyon, screen star and husband of Bebe Daniels.

When taken into custody in front of the Warner Brothers studio, where Lyon was working, Warde carried a loaded revolver in his pocket, police said. He told them, they related, that he had hoped to kill the actor as soon as the latter left the studios.

A few days ago Lyon received three picture postcards. The first one, bearing a New York date mark, read:

"Remember meeting my sister in New York?"

Another received a few days later, read:

"I am on my way as I promised. Warde."

The last card, received from Kansas City, August 30, read:

"I am coming fast. Say your prayers because you will need them. Warde."

ARREST ACOSTA, NO AIR LICENSE

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Bert Acosta, chief pilot for Admiral Richard E. Byrd on his trans-Atlantic flight in 1927, was under arrest today for flying a plane in Connecticut while his license was under suspension.

Acosta had taken off from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., in a borrowed plane. He landed last night in a meadow on the farm of David Evans at Wilton. He told Evans engine trouble had made the landing necessary, but Evans telephoned the state police barracks in Westport and Acosta was arrested.

His license to fly in this state was suspended for low flying over Naugatuck in 1928. In January, 1929, he was suspended for low flying and was fined $500.

PRATTVILLE, Ala., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ella Herbert, 86, in a hospital here with a broken hip, admits that the playing of football is a bit too rough for one of her years.

Yesterday a group of children were playing in her yard. They decided to play football, but needed one more to complete the team. They asked her to play.

Certainly, she would.

She lasted until the third quarter. Then a play was run and Mrs. Herbert went down in the scramble for the ball. The hip bone snapped and she didn't get up.

MOB AIDS POOL AGENT'S FLIGHT

Angered by the arrest of a "numbers" writer, a large crowd at Joseph street and Larimer avenue this morning jostled and pushed Precinct Detective James Noon to the extent that the officer was forced to permit the escape of his prisoner.

After a chase during which Noon fired several shots, the prisoner, Cecil Bressett, a Negro, of 26 Larimer avenue, was recaptured. Following the near riot detectives also arrested Anthony Caputo, of 616 Larimer avenue, who, according to Noon, threatened him with a butcher knife while the arrest was being made.

Noon, in company with Detective Robert Burke, had placed Bressett, an alleged "numbers" bookie, under arrest. Burke left his companion at Joseph street, and a large crowd of sympathizers gathered to hurl insults and boo the officer. The crowd milled closer, and one of them pushed Noon from the rear. The prisoner made a dash for freedom.

Oliver Boyd, a Negro was sentenced to serve six months in the workhouse this morning by Judge George V. Moore after he pleaded guilty to operating a clearing house numbers lottery, maintaining a gambling house and selling liquor. Sentence was suspended on the liquor charge. Information against Boyd was made by Constable Louis C. Shining, Jr., of Alderman Martin J. Griffin's office.

CAPONE'S HOME RAIDED

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—(INS.)—Police today raided the home of "Scarface Al" Capone, king of Chicago gangsters, and arrested his 21-year-old brother, Matthew. They were seeking the gang czar and his brother, Ralph, both on the list of 26 "public enemies" wanted on vagrancy warrants, but were told that both Al and Ralph are out of town.

Officers were lurking about the Capones' two-apartment building early today when a car drove up in front of the place. They surrounded the automobile with drawn weapons and yanked the driver out of the seat. He proved to be young Matthew, who recently enrolled as a law student at Villanova College.

Young Capone was marched up to the front door of the house and his mother, Mrs. Theresa Capone, responded to his knock. The officers pushed their prisoner inside, following on his heels. A rapid search convinced the police that neither Al nor Ralph were present.

Planes to Replace Trains, Rickenbacker Predicts

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation, predicted that in 1950 there will be 50,000,000 automobiles in the United States, that passenger trains will pass out within 15 years and that the railroads will use airplanes, in his speech at the opening session of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the National Petroleum Association. He declared:

"In less than a generation, we must expect improvements in transportation by the highways, by water and by air far beyond anything dreamed of by the general public."

Turning to airplanes and railroads, he said:

"Railroads will use the airplanes. They lost short haul business by neglecting the bus in its early day and they are not going to lose passenger travel, mail, express, parcel post and light freight to the airplane. The railroads see the possibility and are intent upon developing it."

Rickenbacker also referred to the possibilities of radio and television and predicted Los Angeles buyers would not be compelled to go to Paris in the future, but would buy immediately by television showing and radio.

La Follettes Mix Love With Their Politics

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—New Mexico has lent Wisconsin a hand in the matter of contributing La Follettes to the country's political life.

Another young "Bob" La Follette, nephew of the late senator, "Fighting Bob," and cousin of the present senator and the nominee for governor of Wisconsin, has started his fight for the Democratic congressional nomination here.

In his platform New Mexico's Bob La Follette decried "Wall street's reaching its tentacles into the retail field," and held that practice is "putting private initiative out of the running."

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 13.—(INS.)—Northern Wisconsin's resort section was host today to a honeymoon party celebrating a double victory in love and politics.

United States Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., and his bride of a day, and Philip F. La Follette, the Republican party's nominee for governor, and his wife, made up the honeymoon vacation party which left here yesterday.

Senator La Follette yesterday married Miss Rachel Wilson Young, of Washington, his secretary, only a few hours after his brother Philip was assured the nomination for governor over the incumbent, Walter J. Kohler, wealthy manufacturer.

La Follette's margin of victory over his conservative Republican opponent was approximately 113,000 votes.

CO-ORDINATED BUS SERICE ASKED

Report on Survey to Be Heard Wednesday; System Held Unwise

Results of several engineering conferences among representatives of the Allied Boards of Trade, the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company and the Public Service Commission relative to the needs of a co-ordinated bus system here will be presented to the commission next Wednesday at a conference hearing of the subject initiated several months ago by the Boards of Trade.

ROUTING UNWISE

Although final data of the conferences held both here and at Harrisburg, according to John M. Rice, engineer of the Boards of Trade, are not to be made public before the hearing, it is believed they discuss alleged lack of wisdom in the present routing and organization of the bus lines over the city.

The fact remains after the presentation of the testimony, according to Rule for the Commission to determine whether or not the policy of the motor coach company in erecting a virtual monopoly is wrong.

The case has been hanging fire for nearly a year.

Discussing the desires of the Boards of Trade for co-ordinated service, Rice said today:

CO-ORDINATION NEEDED

"What will have to be done if Pittsburgh and its environs is to progress is to have more busses and a co-ordination of bus and street car service. By this we mean that a passenger can transfer from a bus to a street car or vice versa with as reasonable a cost as possible and with very little time delay."

TWO FAYETTE BANKS MERGE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 18.—Official announcement was made today of the consolidation of the Fayette Title and Trust Company and the National Bank of Fayette County, two of the largest banking institutions in this section of Western Pennsylvania.

The terms of the merger have been fully approved by the comptroller of currency. The merger becomes effective within 30 days.

The consolidation will give the new bank to be operated under the name of the National Bank of Fayette County resources of more than $14,000,000 and trust assets in excess of $5,000,000. The directors of both institutions will be retained.

Banking rooms of the Fayette Title and Trust Company will be vacated but for a time will be used to handle the trust funds of the two banks.

4 YOUTHS HELD IN GIRL CASE

Earl Woods, 22, and his brother, Harvey, 24, of Mifflin Township, Anthony Angelo, 25, and Andrew Churchill, 24, both of Talbot avenue, Braddock, were being held by Rankin police today on charges preferred by a 15-year-old girl.

The girl, Anna Kurey, of Third avenue, Rankin, told detectives she and Rose Yatsko, 22, also of Rankin, met the men at a dance in the Frankstown road, and that they accompanied them to a camp in Patton Township.

The Kurey girl, who is in the Braddock General Hospital, told police the four youths attacked her, it is said. The Yatsko girl escaped after a battle and hid under a bridge, she said.

Actor Asks Arrest Of Check Impostor

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Conrad Nagel, screen actor, has appealed to the police to capture a youth who has been posing as a younger brother and cashing bad checks.

He said he has been receiving letters from all parts of the country from friends who cashed the checks, believing the youth's story. Nagel said he has no younger brother.

Lives of 8 Menaced In Cleveland Blast

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18.—(INS.)—Eight lives were imperiled here today when an explosion demolished a one-story dry goods store building, partly razed an adjoining structure and damaged two dwellings.

The blast, whose force was felt for nearly two miles around, is believed by firemen to have been caused by gas. The damage was estimated at $25,000.

2 Convicts Found Under Prison Floor

FOLSOM STATE PRISON, Cal., Sept. 18.—(INS.)—William J. Burke and William Clark, youthful burglar convicts, were under special discipline in their cells here today after hiding beneath the floor of the prison chapel for nearly two days. They were found by guards after Warden Court Smith had been "tipped" on their hiding place.

MISS HAZEL DELL

KELLOGG TAKES GENEVA POST

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—(INS.)—Frank B. Kellogg, former United States secretary of state, has notified the secretariat of the League of Nations he will accept the judgeship in the permanent Court of International Justice, it was learned today by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

He was elected member of the League Court's panel for the term ending December 31. There is a strong possibility he will be elected for the nine-year term when the League Council and Assembly meet later to elect the new panel.

With the League Assembly pledged to the closer study of Aristide Briand's proposed European federation through a special committee to report next year, it was expected the organization of this body would soon be started. Representatives to serve on the committee will be chosen from the 27 leading European governments.

Last of Dobbins Ends Harness Shop

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—The Dobbins' day is done. In 1850 Joseph A. Dobbins opened a harness shop. His grandson, Raymond E. Dobbins, is to discontinue the business, and folks no longer will see a plaster horse, a trade symbol which has been in a show window 60 years.

John Bull Seems To Have Lots Of Luck--Bad

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones has all the golf cups. Stubbing knocked out Scott, the polo cup is in the United States, Shamrock V is no better than I, II, III and IV, and woe is me, thinks John Bull. The American contract bridge team is ahead by some 5,000 points.

JAIL BREAKER SHOT DEAD

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 18.—(INS.)—Frank Cubit, 30, held here under indictment for numerous holdups, was shot and killed today by Deputy Sheriff Dick O'Brien while attempting to escape from Peoria County jail.

Cubit, formerly a prisoner in Kansas State Penitentiary, got out of his cell armed with a dummy gun, which he had cut out of cardboard. He struck Charles Geier, night jailer, on the head with a mop handle. Geier broke free, taking his keys, and fled into the elevator, which he ran up and down while calling for help.

Cubit, still carrying his "gun," ran to the basement and terrorized the help there, then returned to the first floor, where O'Brien shot and killed him.

GIRLS OF TODAY IDEAL--LOPEZ

Music and girls Vincent Lopez takes seriously. He came to town last night to play a night club engagement. He is fairly proud of the fact he can play for a critical audience. "Chocolate Soldier" one night and the next night turn out "Yes, We Have No Bananas" or its equivalent, for the populace.

Mr. Lopez believes that the young girl of today, far from being just a prattling chit, is more often an ideal companion who can discuss Shaw, if not Augustabernard. Lopez speaking:

"It's the men who are wrong. Men have the erroneous idea that the young girl is just a pretty little dumbbell. All they want is a good-looking, well-dressed girl.

"Myself, I like a girl who's young and intelligent, who is intuitive, but not too clever. I'd like to see her play golf, sail a boat, ride a horse, and be agreeable."

Mr. Lopez is single.

16 HURT IN BUS, CAR CRASH

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Sixteen occupants of a bus were injured here early today when the vehicle and a street car crashed at a Central City intersection.

The bus was conveying members of a Scranton orchestra from a dance hall at Wanamie, near here. The shock of the impact forced the heavy bus against a concrete traffic standard which was knocked from it base. Some of the occupants of the bus, including Joseph Gargulia, driver, who was most seriously hurt, were thrown through windows.

Food Poisons 200 At Oregon College

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 18.—(INS.)—Victims of food poisoning, 60 students and employes of Reed College were in hospitals today, and about 140 others were in their homes, suffering from the after-effects of a noon-day meal on the school campus.

Only four, however, were believed seriously ill.

Suspecting fermentation as the cause of the epidemic, chemists were analyzing food and milk served at the meal.

Bromley and Gatty Return to Tokio

TOKIO, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Having flown their monoplane City of Tacoma from Shitsukari to Samishiro, Harold Bromley and Harold Gatty entrained for Tokio today, their plans still uncertain concerning another trans-Pacific flight attempt in October.

Bromley and Gatty returned to Japan after flying 1,200 miles toward their goal, Tacoma, Wash. Adverse weather and a damaged exhaust pipe frustrated the attempt to reach America.

Nova Scotia Mine Explosion Kills 6

RIVER HEBERT, N. S., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Six men were killed by an explosion of fire-damp in the 1,200-foot level of the old Victoria mine of the Victoria Coal Company yesterday.

The explosion occurred after a fall of rock had imprisoned several of the 17 men at work in the mine. Whether others were killed could not be determined until rescuers could explore the portion of the mine where the blast occurred.

Milton Sills Burial To Be Held Secretly

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Strict privacy will mark funeral services for Milton Sills, noted screen star, who died from a heart attack while playing tennis at his home Monday night.

The services will be conducted secretly tomorrow, because of the huge crowds which attend film funerals. None but the immediate family will attend the services.

Lord Castlerosse

Most Talked of Journalist in England

Now in America

Viscount Castlerosse, son of the Earl of Kenmar and a distinguished London journalist, writer of a column in the Daily Express and one of the most widely read commentators in the British newspaper world, is writing of his American impressions for the Sun-Telegraph. Herewith is printed another of Lord Castlerosse's articles in which he takes us to the international yacht cup races at Newport.

By LORD CASTLEROSSE.

NEWPORT, Sept. 18.—After the Shamrock had twice been beaten, I sat talking that evening with a famous old timer, Mr. Connolly, who knows as much about ships and sailing as any man alive.

Everyone present, with the exception of Mr. Connolly, took the view that the Enterprise was the superior boat of the two, but Jim wouldn't have this. He kept on repeating: "How do you know? What will happen if it comes on to blow?" It did come on to blow yesterday, which did not altogether please the newspapermen present, who know by their trade the ups and downs of life, but they do not quite welcome the same situation of the sea.

LIPTON KEEPS NERVE

Sir Thomas Lipton all along refused to be discouraged and has made a joke out of his defeat.

Yesterday his pluck looked as if it was going to have its reward. On the stroke of time in a fairly rough sea both boats got away well with the Enterprise slightly in front. Capt. Heard as usual was at the wheel of the challenger. Rumors have been circulated that Sir Thomas had taken the control out of Heard's hands and given command to Charles Nicholson. This is untrue, but more than that it was beyond Sir Thomas' power. Originally Sir Thomas tried to get Fife to design his new yacht and finding this impossible he employed Nicholson, who had designed the Shamrock the Fourth.

Nicholson accepted, but made the stipulation that he should not only have complete control over the design of the boat, but also should have command when she was sailing. Nicholson himself is modest about his capacity as a skipper and appointed Heard, a professional.

MAKES GOOD START

Up to this Heard had not achieved happy results, but yesterday everything went differently for a while. From the start the Shamrock managed to get a berth dead to windward of the Enterprise, and crossed the line fully two lengths ahead of the Enterprise. It was the first time that Heard managed to out-jockey Vanderbilt. For the first time we witnessed a real race. It was nip and tuck all the way until the accident occurred.

At 11.52 the Shamrock went on the starboard tack and the Enterprise did the same. Both boats were very close to each other. After about a half-hour it seemed to me that the Enterprise was gaining and she sailed closer to the wind than the Shamrock. The Shamrock was traveling possibly faster than the Enterprise, but the point to windward fully canceled this.

ACCIDENT OCCURS

After they had gone about four miles out, I should say, that if the Shamrock had tacked she would have to pass almost directly astern of the Enterprise. Then the accident of the day occurred. Down crashed the mainsail of the Shamrock, covering the deck and crew, and some of the canvas dropping overboard. I looked at my watch. It was just 45 minutes after the start. Subsequently, I found out that the accident was due to the breaking of the block which held up the mainsail. There was great confusion and the committee boat came to the rescue of the Shamrock. I could see Sir Thomas Lipton standing alone. What was going through his mind I am sorry to think about.

His yacht at last was putting up a great fight and then with the breaking of the block came the smashing of his hopes.

SHAMROCK THREE DOWN

The Shamrock is now three down and four to go and personally, I have but little doubt that even if there had not been an accident the Enterprise would once again have shown her superiority.

England will have to revise her methods, become more modern. That metal mast in the Enterprise weighs one ton less than the pine mast in the Shamrock. Also, this is an age of gadgets. The Enterprise has them all. There is no reason whatsoever why English boats should not be so built. In many ways we are a ridiculous and conservative nation.

An Announcement of Importance

¶ Most everyone thought Donahoe's Fifth Avenue Butter could not be equalled or improved upon—but

¶ We well know there's no such thing as standing still if one wants to keep at the head of the procession—so

¶ the laudable desire to maintain our place in the sun, and

¶ a conscientious desire to excel ever keeps us on the move in quest of the "ultimate" in butter.

QUALITY—impossible to improve upon the present!

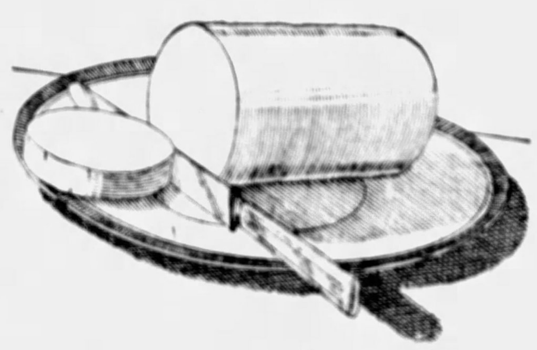
STYLE—ah! We can stand some improvement there—something different for the modern style-conscious buyer—attractive, convenient-sized packages

Too long have we specialized on butter in the tub.

So from Pastures Green to Your Table

Every Pound Produced with Immaculate Nicety

Come...



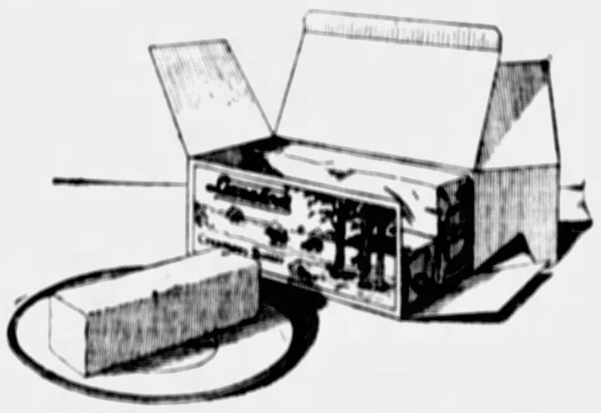
the pound print...

—machine cut; wrapped in parchment and packed in an attractive paraffined carton—thus protecting it against various agencies of deterioration after it reaches the consumer, such as light, air, rapid changes in temperatures and the diverse vegetable or other off-flavors that butter is quick to absorb from foods kept in close proximity to it in the household refrigerator.

the country roll...

—cut, or rather squeezed from tubs, by a wonderful new butter-cutting machine with hollow, revolving spiral rolls—automatically wrapped in a double wrapper of parchment paper.

The process of squeezing the rolls from the tub makes the roll butter have an exceptional smoothness of texture—roll butter is easy to slice, easy to spread, and as there are no small pieces, there is no waste. One and two-pound rolls.



the quarter-pound bars

—four in a carton—the ultra modern butter package; easily and quickly the bars can be cut into neat cubes for table service.

Introductory Sale!

During this introductory sale we are selling these new style butter packages at the same price as our tub butter, but as it is obvious that the expense of producing these individual packages is considerably greater than producing a tub of butter, in the future, the country roll style butter will sell for one cent a pound over our tub butter price; the pound print and the carton of four quarter pound bars will sell for two cents a pound over our tub butter price.

Even at this slight additional cost we believe these new packages will be more economical to the consumer as there should be less waste in the serving.

DONAHOE BUTTER
tub, roll, print or quarter-pound bars at 45c lb.

These convenient new packages retain every quality that made our tub butter famous—in fact they are cut from tub butter—and in addition afford the housewife new and attractive ways of serving butter on her table.

Hsst! a word to the wise outdoor girl

HANDS calloused from golf . . . lips chapped by the wind . . . necks and noses sunburned and freckled . . . here's how to repair this damage.

Lay in a stock of "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly. At home on the dressing table. At the club in your locker. And apply it freely. For example: If the hands are calloused or rough and chapped, or too dry, or sunburned, or the cuticle is inclined to form hangnails, massage them with a generous amount of "Vaseline" Jelly before retiring and wear soft gloves to bed.

If lips are chapped, apply "Vaseline" Jelly every time you think of it. It is obtainable everywhere, in tubes and jars.

These are simple, easy things to do. Do try them. Your looks will benefit enormously.

DROP IN PRICES CHECKED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Wholesale prices during August displayed an arrest in the downward trend to which they surrendered for a year, but retail food prices continued to maintain their descent on the scale of value.

These findings were announced by the Labor Department in its monthly statement of studies of price movement. The government's general index figure, which is based on the composite valuation of 550 commodities and uses 100 as expressing price averages of 1926, is 84 for August, or exactly the same as it was for July of this year.

For August last year the index was 97.7 and the bureau concluded that a 1926 dollar during August would have purchased $1.19 worth of wholesale commodities.

In the groups of commodities entering into the compilation farm products and food generally showed a slight advance over July prices during August. Textiles, hides, building materials, chemicals, metals and house furnishing goods were all a little cheaper in August than in July, though fuel and lighting materials were unchanged.

Retail food prices for August were said to have shown a decrease of half of 1 per cent from those prevailing in July.

D. A. R. Monument Raised to Old Slave

EAST BARRINGTON, N. H., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—East Barrington has raised a monument to a humble Negro slave. Old Aggie, who ventured to nurse the sick when white folks stayed at home afraid during a pestilence which swept the village before the Revolution.

Old Aggie died 90 years ago at the age of 100. She was the slave for many years of the Rev. Benjamin Balch and it was upon his grave that the Daughters of the American Revolution unveiled the mark.

ABBOTT AGAIN MASONIC HEAD

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—The re-election of Sovereign Grand Commander Leon M. Abbott for the third consecutive time was the feature of the one hundred and eighteenth meeting here of the Supreme Council, Thirty-third Degree A. A. S. R., for the northern Masonic jurisdiction of the United States. Business conditions proved the common topic of a series of speeches.

Optimistic predictions for the future of business in this country were voiced by Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, here for the meet. He said:

"I think that industry generally has struck the bottom and that the major industries are now on the upward trend. We in Pennsylvania have been doing public work on the largest scale in the history of the state, and I have been told by a man in charge of five steel plants that they are now running 100 per cent."

Funeral Halted, Try to Revive Corpse

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—A rural funeral near Crane, Mo., was held up for several hours recently while a physician was called to make an attempt to revive the corpse. The mourners had reached Nickerson Cemetery with the body of Mrs. Arch Dunnegan, when perspiration was noticed on her forehead.

Frantic relatives moved the body from the casket and a physician was called from Reed Springs, Mo., to revive her. Although Mrs. Dunnegan had been dead for three days, relatives and friends fanned her continually, believing it might aid in restoring breath.

When the physician finally arrived and learned the body had not been embalmed, he applied all known restoratives without success. He then pronounced the woman dead for the second time, and funeral services continued.

TAX ASSESSORS WRONG, COURT INDICATES

Judge Gray Says Decisions Held Bar to 25,000 Voters Not Rightly Interpreted

Common Pleas Court decisions of last year, invalidating the assessments of thousands of voters, do not go to the extent apparently assumed by the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes in its work since Judge James H. Gray ruled late yesterday.

He voiced this opinion during argument on the right of two women to be assessed during 1929 and 1930 because they had been assessed in 1928, a triennial assessment year. This is a test case which, Attorney Ralph H. Frank, representing the women, declared affects the rights of some 25,000 voters to be asesssed, to register and to vote at the November election.

The decisions last year do not prohibit assessments after the regulation period, which ends in November, Judge Gray stated.

SEES NO 3-YEAR BARRIER

Nor does failure to assess a person in a triennial assessment year preclude him from assessment for three years, he declared.

Argument was heard on a writ of mandamus ordering the tax board to assess Charlotte Ryan, housewife, of 27 Wabash avenue, Twentieth Ward, and Eva M. Stauffer, clerk, of 425 Boulevard of the Allies, First Ward, to show cause why they should not be assessed.

The women allege they were assessed in 1928 but, although they had the same residences and occupations in 1929 and 1930, they were not then assessed. Attorney Frank argued that an occupation tax is a triennial assessment, similar to a property tax, and continues for three years.

WOULD HELP 25,000

Approval of his contention, he argued, would permit upwards of 25,000 voters to register in October and vote in November. He asked a speedy decision, which Judge Gray said would be given.

Mortimer B. Lesher, acting county solicitor, argued that an occupation tax is assessed annually, unlike a property tax. Moreover, he declared, the assessments of the two women were listed on the additional assessment books in September, 1928, and were not proper assessments under the court rulings of last year.

Frank disputed this, saying the decision on the 1929 additional assessments applied to additional books not transmitted to the county controller and county treasurer, but transmitted directly to the delinquent tax collectors, which was not the case in 1928. Judge Gray agreed with this contention, but reserved decision.

RIVERS JOB MAY GO TO STRONG

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—With the defeat of Representative S. Wallace Dempsey, of New York, in the Republican primaries Tuesday, the strong possibility is seen here today that Representative Nathan Leroy Strong, of the Twenty-seventh Pennsylvania District, may take Dempsey's place as chairman of the important Rivers and Harbors Committee.

As a rule, such appointments go by seniority on the committee in question, and only one member of Congress, Richard P. Freeman, of Connecticut, outranks Strong in this regard. It is not known yet whether Freeman wants to assume the responsibilities and extra work which the position would entail, his state not being deeply interested in river and harbor work.

In case he should refuse, Strong would be practically certain to be offered the place. As chairman of this body, he would be in a position to advance work on the Ohio River and its tributaries, which is of extreme importance to Western Pennsylvania.

So far, six members of this committee will leave Congress March 4 next. Besides Dempsey, the following have been eliminated from the race for the House: Grant M. Hudson, Michigan; W. W. Chalmers, Ohio; M. A. Michaelson, Illinois, Republicans; and Stanley H. Kunz and James O'Connor, of Louisiana, Democrats.

Airport Progress Pleases U. S. Man

William Kenyon, superintendent of airways, Department of Commerce, Washington, yesterday inspected the new City-County Airport in Mifflin Township and spoke in high praise of the work already done. He said:

"I have not seen the airport for a year, and I am amazed at the progress of the work there. Only enterprising Pittsburgh could have accomplished what has been done. No value in dollars and cents can be placed on this project, even at a cost of $5,000,000, the impetus given the progress of aviation would fully warrant the expenditure."

Zion City Leaders Rise Against Voliva

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Today's Herald and Examiner quoted independent leaders in Zion City, Ill., as predicting revolt against the leadership of Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva following his departure Monday on another world tour to prove the earth is flat.

Mrs. John Alexander Dowie, widow of the founder of the Christian Catholic Apostolic Church, is leading the opposition to Voliva's rule, the newspaper said.

Miss Macdonald Declines M.P. Chance

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the British Labor prime minister, has declined an invitation to become a parliamentary candidate for Moray and Nairn.

Miss MacDonald is a member of the London country council and is active in social work, but so far has refused chances to become an M. P.

Man Killed by Bolt, Companion Injured

WOOSTER, O., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—A Pittsburgh Negro was killed and another injured near Orrville, when a tree, under which they had taken refuge during a storm, was struck by lightning. The dead man was partially identified as John Copeland, 1132 Center avenue, Pittsburgh. The second man, who was unconscious, was unidentified. Shoes were torn from the right foot of each man.

TIME SPENT NOW PRESERVING FRUIT WILL BRING REWARD

Not Likely That Pure Cane Sugar Will Be So Cheap Again

In view of the fact that pure cane sugar is now at the lowest price it has been in a generation, and since fruit is abundant, the economy of putting up preserves of all kinds is readily apparent. And if the prices of canned goods are increased next winter, as is likely, your savings will be just that much greater.

Pickles and relishes made of cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbage or melon rind are also inexpensive to preserve and of great help in menu planning. Their spicy tart-sweet goodness is a pleasant accompaniment with meat, fish and vegetables.

The practice of stewing fresh fruit for immediate use should not be overlooked. When peaches, pears and apples are cooked and sweetened to taste, there is less danger of digestive disorders. Consider this in relation to children's meals. Most foods are more delicious with pure cane sugar. The Sugar Institute.

$1,000,000 RUM PLANT SEIZED

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Police today announced they had destroyed an illicit distillery which had been doing a $1,000,000 a month business for several months.

In a raid last night they discovered and seized the largest alcohol plant found in Detroit since the Eighteenth amendment went into effect. The raiders said the value of the elaborate equipment and materials was $1,000,000, while conservative estimates placed it at more than $500,000.

Operators of the plant escaped by means of rope ladders from rear windows, while the police were battering down doors and partitions. The building, located near the center of the uptown business district at Woodward avenue and Grand boulevard, formerly was used by the fire department, but was abandoned and sold several years ago.

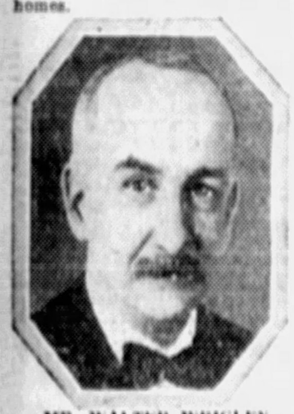
Konjola's power to bring relief after other medicines and treatments have failed has made this famous compound a household word in thousands of American homes.



MR. WALTER WRIGLEY

Konjola attacks the very root of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. The experience of Mr. Walter Wrigley, 948 Beech Avenue, Pittsburgh, supports the claim of Konjola. The Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, knows of many such cases in and about this city. See him today. Here is the experience of Mr. Wrigley:

"For two months I suffered with a severe cold in my head and chest. I coughed until I was utterly worn out. I had been in a run-down condition previous to this time. I had a severe backache and was without strength or energy. Constipation bothered me constantly and I became nervous and generally worn out.

"I noticed a real improvement in my health from the time I began taking Konjola. My ailments gradually left me and I became free from backache and that tired, worn-out feeling. I am no longer constipated and feel like a different person. Konjola is surely a wonderful medicine and works more quickly than anything I have ever known."

The experience of Mr. Wrigley is in common with that of thousands of men and women of all ages and from all walks of life. Given a real test, in most cases over a six to eight weeks period, Konjola has made a record that would challenge belief were the actual facts not known and verified.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

Who Killed Bob Adair?

DALE— "GERALD TELL US----YOU DID NOT HEAR THE SHOT FOR YOUR HANDS WERE UP LIKE THIS ----------?
GERALD— "I KNOW! I SAW IT!"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The police receive word that a murder has been committed on the Adair estate. Investigating, the message is denied by the members of the eccentric household. A maniacal laugh is heard upstairs. It is Gerald Adair, a half-demented member of the family. He admits having sent the message. He leads the police to a room where young Bob Adair is found dead. He has been shot through the heart. Robin Dale discovers a strange message Bob had been writing in the family Bible and never finished. Old Dedrick Adair, father of the dead man, refuses permission for members of the household to be interviewed because it is the Sabbath. Returning to Dale's apartment, Sergt. Jardin finds that the revolver with which the crime was committed has been stolen from him.

Now Go on With the Story.

CHAPTER IV.

"I guess there goes our only bit of tangible evidence," Captain Blake remarked, somewhat disgruntled.

"If I find out who did that I'll break his neck," stormed Jardin.

Robin Dale smiled.

"I think you'll find the thing whenever you want it, sarge . . . the way the revolver was left at the scene of the crime seems to signify that they're not going to hide it. I wouldn't be surprised if it was that young Gerald. There's a cheerful sort of a playmate, eh?"

"I think if I could get that half-demented young fellow in a corner somewhere we might find out something about the whole affair," commented Captain Blake. "The only thing that worries me is finding any kind of a motive to work on. They scarcely ever associate with anyone in the outside world and it seems certain that none of them will ever spill anything they know—unless I can have a go at young Gerald."

Robin Dale had very little to say during that meeting, but after Blake and Jardin left he tumbled into bed for three or four hours and early afternoon found him again at the offices of the Daily Journal. He made an exhaustive investigation in the files of the "morgue," but the net result of close to four hours' work was some meagre information regarding the marriage of Belfridge Adair.

While still at Salem College he had married Nancy Ketteridge, who also attended the school. Practically nothing was given about the antecedents of Miss Ketteridge, except to state that she was a direct descendant of one of the early settlers in New England and that her family resided in Gloucester, Massachusetts.

There was, of course, the history of the case of which Pop Beacon had spoken and various references to reports of the escapades of Bob Adair, none of which, however, were of any great importance. Robin Dale realized, at the end of his search, that there was nothing to be gained in this case except by direct investigation. And there would be no further opportunity for that until the following morning. He had already arranged to accompany Captain Blake and Jardin to the Adair home on Monday morning.

It was the plan of the detective captain to question everyone in detail.

This plan was carried forward on Monday, but with as little result as Robin Dale had obtained in his examination of the newspaper "morgue."

None of the members of the Adair household would admit that he or she had heard the report of the revolver. Without exception everyone insisted that at the hour of the crime (sometime between midnight and 2 o'clock) they were asleep in their rooms.

No progress whatever was being made in unraveling the case up to the time that young Gerald Adair was questioned. The examinations took place in the huge study, on the ground floor, in the southwest corner of the house. A door led from this room into the living room, which was immense (these two rooms taking up the entire south wing of the mansion) and Capt. Blake kept the door between the two rooms closed during his various questionings.

For quite a time Blake made no progress with Gerald. His answers were at times vague, at others idiotic.

"You're positive you didn't hear the revolver go off?"

"What does it sound like?"

"What time did you go to your room on Saturday night?" asked Captain Blake.

"Time is invisible . . . why don't you ask me about beauty? Ha! Ha! Ha! Wasn't Bob a beauty as he lay there like a frog stuck through with a wooden dagger? I used to do that—there were toads hopping all about the place, and I sharpened a stake."

"What is beautiful?" asked Robin Dale suddenly. He had sat through all the questionings and this was the first time he had spoken. Gerald turned to Dale with a scowl. This only held a moment, and then the lad broke into his maniacal laugh.

"Open your eyes and you shall behold! There is beauty in our midst, like the sleeping princess—waiting for the prince to wake her with a kiss. Ha! Ha! Ha! And when the kiss comes they find it is the food of Satin, moist and wet with poison, which the prince sucks like a swine at its mother's breast."

Capt. Blake shook his head hopelessly. Jardin was for throwing the half-demented fool out of the room. Robin made a sign to them. Then he walked closer to Gerald and he stood close, facing him.

"Gerald, tell us! You did not hear the shot, for your hands were up like this." And Dale put a hand over each of his ears. "But you saw him get the devil's lead! Who gave Bob that present that struck him through the heart like you stick the hopping frogs?"

"I know! I saw it!——" Gerald howled with glee. "I'll tell you——" Suddenly a scrap-noise was heard outside the door. Gerald stopped and whirled about. A pall of unutterable fright came over his features. His voice sunk until it was hoarse and almost inaudible. "But not now,..tomorrow, at high noon....when the sun is up, I'll tell you."

And without another word he ran toward the door to the living room and flung it open, rushing out.

"I dare life to do its worst!"
cried Lolita, fiery heroine of VIVIAN GREY'S
stirring new novel

THERE were some who called Lolita "wild". For she was a taxi dancer, and men paid to hold her slim loveliness in their arms while they danced to the tunes of a rackety jazz band.

She danced with them... but hated their small talk, their crude attempts at love making. How different Phil was, she thought. Though he had "picked her up" one evening on her way home, she felt somehow that he was different from those others.

He was wealthy, charming, dangerously good looking. And twenty-four hours after they had met he protested undying love for her!

But night after night she danced with strangers—for money! Could love bridge the vast social gap that separated them? Dare she accept the love of a man so far removed from the world in which she lived?

This is the theme of Vivian Grey's absorbing new romance "Dancing Partner" beginning in the September 20th issue of Love Story Magazine. An enthralling novel of a girl who played with fire, and courted new love thrills. Has the modern girl the same right as a man to sow her wild oats? Read this thrilling story of a girl who did—and the surprising outcome!

Eight complete stories in Sept. 20th issue

"The Winner" by Ruby M. Ayres is the enticing story of a girl who drew lots to decide which man she should marry. An unusual climax heightens the interest of this clever story.

"Silken Snares" by Cynthia de Vinne is a dramatic story of love pitted against family pride. Frank loved Diane, but his family objected to their marriage. How Diane won over his tyrannical father makes a delightful story.

You'll enjoy "For Love of Him", "Camilla Camps Out", "Pinch-hitter Peggy", "A Heartless Man", "Love Passes By", "Honor Bound" and Vera Franklin's fascinating serial "The Street of False Steps". Get your copy of Sept. 20th Love Story Magazine today!

What are your love problems?

Suppose you fell in love with a man and later found out he was married—what would you do? Suppose your sweetheart left you—how could you win him back? Dr. I. Edwin Booth of New York

Says: "Flaxolyn has the highly desirable ability of stimulating the intestinal tract without irritating or griping. It should also be preferred because of its old-fashioned herb content, and because it is mild in its action. A fine formula."

Dr. I. Edwin Booth of New York City

Flaxolyn Peps Appetite; Acts on Bowels and Kidneys

Flaxolyn has received the endorsement and praise of doctors both here and abroad. Dr. Booth is one of a number of physicians who were retained to pass expert opinion upon the merits of Flaxolyn. Others include the distinguished Dr. Albert Nussbaum of Vienna, Dr. Fernando Vivaldi of Rome, Dr. Heinrich Ritter of Switzerland, all of whom declare Flaxolyn to be a most affective preparation—a great stimulant to the appetite, a wonderfully efficient laxative and a mild diuretic for the kidneys.

Mother of 10 Children Just Couldn't Afford to Be Sick

How Flaxolyn Helped Her

The following sincere letter from Mrs. Kirkland of Natrona, Pa., is typical of the great number of personal and written messages that have been received from men and women of all ages, who have been improved through the use of Flaxolyn.

"I am a mother of 10 children and have a baby six months' old. My druggist, Mr. Henry Diamond, can tell you what a lot Flaxolyn has done for me.

"I could see quite a change in myself after taking only six or seven spoonfuls. When I was on my second bottle, a lady neighbor told me how much surprised she was at my improvement. I will always be glad to state to the public what it has done for me."

Here Is the First Druggist Who Ever Sold a Bottle of Flaxolyn

Victor Schmelzer is known as one of the most reputable druggists in Connecticut. He is the first man to whom Dr. Lentz went with liquid Flaxolyn. After the fairest and most thorough test to which any product could be put, Mr. Schmelzer stated: "Flaxolyn is the most successful product in all my years of pharmacy. We have had any number of cases where Flaxolyn has succeeded when other preparations have failed. One of the men up here in the silver factory has sent in at least a dozen of his friends for Flaxolyn, because he has gotten such wonderful results."

Mr. Victor Schmelzer of Meriden, Conn., pharmacist of high standing in his State.

FEAR 2 JOCKEYS KIDNAPED

LINCOLN FIELDS, Ill., Sept. 18.—(INS)—Chicago district sporting circles were puzzled today by the mysterious disappearance of Jockeys Jimmy Malcum and Paul Neal, two star riders, who failed to show up for their regular engagements at Lincoln Fields track yesterday. A kidnaping is feared.

County highway and Chicago Heights police have joined in the hunt for the 17-year-old youths at the request of their employers.

When last seen they were riding in Neal's new automobile.

One theory held by authorities is that they are being held for ransom by a gang which has been operating at Peoria and East St. Louis, Ill.

No demand for ransom have as yet been made to relatives or employers of the boys.

TWO DANCE WAY TO FREEDOM

They literally danced their way to freedom in Morals Court today, these two.

Their friendship disrupted when a mutual girl friend presented the eternal triangle problem, Clarence Belden, 18, of 513 Sturgeon street, and Howard Edmond, 16, 1414 James street, a Negro defendant, were arrested after police say they engaged in a battle in front of the North Side Police Station last night.

Arraigned before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today, the pair declared their friendship beyond repair. The magistrate decreed:

"Shake hands, make up and dance or go to jail."

The court was entertained by an exhibition of plain and fancy clog dancing after which the Negroes were discharged.

It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients. It doesn't sicken or weaken you. But its action is thorough. It carries off the sour bile and poisonous waste. It does everything you want it to do. It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Give some to keep little bowels open during colds.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish, and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all druggists keep it ready in big bottles) and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

"You'll have Good Luck with 'Standard'"

And the reason is that "extra" merit is built into every one of the three great "Standard" products that are gaining in popularity with Pennsylvanians every day.

(1) ESSO—containing Ethyl—knockless. Costs more to make. Sells at a 3c premium per gallon.

(2) "Standard" Gasoline—the equal of most premium fuels. Yet it sells at usual gasoline prices.

(3) "Standard" Motor Oil—the oilier oil.

John Armonte, night executive of the National Broadcasting Company, collects metal and china animals. In his office at NBC a recent census showed 14 dogs, 10 cats, 2 penguins, 3 elephants, a horse, a kangaroo, two roosters, a rat, a mouse and two monkeys.

Jessica Dragonette, rated the highest paid vocalist on the networks, is coming to the Pittsburgh Radio Show. Jim Simpson announced today.

Jessica is to appear on Sept. 30, Oct. 4.

We've met the little lady once—at the Chicago Radio Show. She's sweet and we know you'll like her.

* * *

Jessica finished next to Amos and Andy in the Pittsburgh Radio Poll last January and is running third in the present poll.

A prisoner at Western Penitentiary writes William A. Farren:

"I enjoy your Sport Review immensely. I chew gum. Send me a carton or two. I'll be here a long time."

Milton Tully, tall tenor of KDKA, who has sharp cut features like those of Vikings of old, has made good in the big city as double O. McIntyre would say.

Milt is now with NBC and sings his first program tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock through KDKA.

We have more favorable news. Jimmy Weir tells us that Norma Altwater is singing with Roxy.

We hope the announcer who wins the Radio Poll has the same success at NBC.

QUESTION A DAY.

Elsie Lober Sheraden: In yesterday's paper you mentioned receiving a letter from Don Bestor. What station is he broadcasting over now?

Answer—Don and his family have gone to the north woods of Wisconsin for a rest before returning to Pittsburgh. Don's favorite sport is duck hunting. His wife, Frankie, and little Mary Ann, will do some fishing.

Vincent Lopez is a fast worker, comments Burt Digby of the Sun-Tele copy desk. He was in Pittsburgh and New York at the same time last night, according to the broadcast schedule.

Vincent himself is in Pittsburgh but his Roof Garden Orchestra is playing over the WEAF network from New York.

One thing Mr. Lopez doesn't like is flashlight pictures, we found out yesterday. But Wild Oscar, renewing an old friendship, didn't bat an eye when the powder exploded.

Time of the Vincent Lopez reception to Radio Poll leaders has been changed to 12:15 Friday night (Saturday a. m.). The program will be broadcast for half an hour over KDKA. Leaders will receive invitation today or tomorrow morning.

Charlie Hamp has been signed by NBC to do a program from Chicago starting September 29.

Ione Wilber, soprano of the Parnassus Trio on NBC, is to appear in WCAE studios tonight at 7 as guest of the station.

Cuticura Healed Severe Itching Burning Rash on Face and Arms.

"I broke out with a rash on my face and arms which alarmed me very much. The itching and burning were very severe and when I scratched eruptions formed. My clothing aggravated the breaking out a great deal, and I was embarrassed because my face and arms were disfigured. I lost much rest at night on account of the terrible irritation.

"After seven months of suffering I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and decided to give them a trial. I purchased more, and in four and a half months I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Wm. Anderson, 512 No. 40th St., Phila., Pa., April 10, 1930.

Wanted: More Stars
Few Make Good
$25,000 a Week
Jolson Got $7,500

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The most tireless eyes in America today are those of the broadcasters scanning the sky for new radio stars.

Louis Reid.

For more than a year they have been fixed on the heavens, hoping to discover a new household god for the vast and restless ear of the nation.

Novelty is the watchword of the air. There must ever be something new under the broadcasting sun. Hence the persistence of the skyward gaze.

The radio men may be rewarded before a new year dawns. In the meantime they are busy keeping their present stars from falling—and radio stars have a habit of falling, sometimes before six months can be marked off on a warden's calendar.

Sensational Stars Counted on One Hand

The sensational stars discovered by the broadcasters and developed by them can be counted on one hand—Amos 'n' Andy, Rudy Vallee, Floyd Gibbons, Graham McNamee. All of them had little or no experience as entertainers before coming to radio. Two of them were amateur show producers, one was an obscure band leader seeking odd jobs at private dances, another was a war correspondent and still another was a church baritone. In the amusement sense all were amateurs. Broadcasting made them known from one end of America to another. And they, more than any other factors, made broadcasting known from one end of the country to the other.

In all the teeming history of amusements there is no name to approach theirs in the suddenness and completeness with which they flashed to fame. One touch of magic made their whole world kin. Countless millions paid them tribute, and the broadcasters, panting to the cash registers, found their greenbacks suddenly turned to yellow and the keys striking a tune that sounded ever so much like "Happy Days Are Here Again."

* * *

From what source will come the new stars? If precedent is to be followed they will be exclusive products of radio. Perhaps they are already on the microphones, waiting for the special door of opportunity to swing open. Perhaps they are biding their time on some isolated station in the far reaches of the country. Wherever they are, the broadcasters will eventually seek them out. The rest is fame and fortune—more fame and fortune than has ever been heaped upon an entertainer since the world began.

$25,000 a Week Is Future Radio Wage

It is the belief of that modern Marco Polo, Robert Ripley, that the next great star of radio will be able to ask—and what is more important, receive — $25,000 a week for his services. Ripley is probably right. At any event, it is not wise to dispute such an authoritative collector of incredible facts. He bases his argument on the vast economic power of the broadcasters. He glances at their tremendous resources, at their possibility of attracting an audience of 60,000,000 persons, and declares they can afford to pay the price.

Fancy that, my dreamers! And it was not so long ago that the amusement world raised an incredulous eyebrow because Sir Harry Lauder was able to take back to his strong box in Scotland $30,000 for a 30-minute swim in the radio sea. Lauder only received such a staggering sum once. He was not asked to send his little black bag on a regular weekly trip to the studio cash box.

Al Jolson startled even that section of Broadway that is familiar with his huge earnings when he received $7,500 for singing three songs on the microphone.

There have been numerous occasions when the radio men have paid enormous sums for individual air performers, but no single artist has yet signed their dotted lines for a regular weekly salary of five figures. Yet I feel that Ripley is right when he states the day is not far off. From the standpoint of the amusement world it will most emphatically be the day—"Der Tag."

Radio has such an overwhelming hold on the populace. Its potentialities are so great—television is just around the corner—that even the payment of $25,000 a week to an entertainer will be merely a bagatelle. It will be what the payment of $100,000 a year to Amos 'n' Andy was to radio last season.

Gibbons Among Best Paid Artists

The money which Gibbons counts each week would not be laughed at even at a luncheon of motion picture magnificos. According to our operatives, he is receiving in excess of $3,000. Vallee's income is about $11,000 a week.

WIFE DIVORCES KING BAGGOT

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18 (AP).—King Baggot, motion picture director, has been divorced by his wife, Ruth Considine Baggot, who accused her husband of habitual intemperance.

Mrs. Baggot won the decree on grounds of desertion. The court approved a property settlement in which Baggot agreed to pay his wife $325 a week from the time of their separation and, in addition, one-half of all he earned over $850 a week. Baggot also agreed to pay $100 a month for the support of their son.

WIDOW ATTACKS MAN IN COURT

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 18 (AP).—Nick Carlucci, of Conneaut, O., on trial here charged with the murder of Tony Ruberto, of Erie, was set upon by the widow of the slain man in court.

As a picture of the automobile in which Ruberto was killed was being shown to the jury, the woman became hysterical, dashed at the defendant and struck him in the face before court attaches could reach her. Mrs. Ruberto fainted after she had been carried from the courtroom.

DISPUTE WIFE'S TAX RECEIPT

May a wife register on a tax receipt procured for her by her husband without a written authorization from her?

This question is before President Judge James R. Macfarlane and Judges Frank P. Patterson and Ambrose B. Reed, of Common Pleas Court, upon an appeal from a decision of the Board of Registration Commissioners, argued late yesterday before the court.

The board approved the registration of Mrs. Grace Clementson in the Second District of the Third Ward and the special election committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association filed an appeal on the ground that her tax receipt had been purchased by her husband without a written authorization from her. The question was whether wives are included within the provisions of the law requiring written authorization for payment of another's tax, particularly as women were not permitted to vote when the law was enacted.

4 DEAD, 2 HURT IN MINE BLAST

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 18 (AP).—Four miners were killed and two were injured in an explosion in the Sherman Coal Company mine in this city, as the day and night shifts were being changed. Three of the bodies were recovered and the fourth was buried under a mound of debris in the Skidmore vein.

The injured were brought to a local hospital, where their condition was said to be critical. All were members of the day shift.

2 Workmen Hurt As Wall Collapses

TROOPERS KILL YOUTH IN DUEL

BRISTOL, Pa., Sept. 18 (INS).—Frank P. Ettacio, 19, of Philadelphia, was shot dead by state troopers in a gun duel at Trevose, near here, early today.

The troopers charged Ettacio and Logalesa had been preying on couples in parked automobiles for two months.

GOV. LONG, FOES SEAL PEACE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18 (AP).—A testimonial dinner, attended by hundreds, last night formally sealed a peace pact between Gov. Huey P. Long, militant 37-year-old executive, and his bitterest political opponents in his successful campaign for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

Referring to a special session of the Legislature called, among other things, to refinance municipal affairs of New Orleans, the governor said his $68,000,000 bond issue for highways, port, debt and schools was assured of passage, and "within 90 days, and maybe 60, the hammers will start ringing in every hamlet in Louisiana, completing a system of 3,000 miles of paved roads, 6,000 miles of gravel roads, 12 free bridges that ought to eradicate almost entirely the unemployment in the state."

"A Significant Example"

SAMUEL HARDEN CHURCH

President of the Carnegie Institute

—that great enterprise founded by Andrew Carnegie at Pittsburgh for the promotion of art, science and literature. Known throughout the world as a student of current problems.

Chairman of the Board Carnegie Institute of Technology, Director American National Theatre.

Member American Mission to Morocco 1923, Officer of Legion of Honor (France).

"Perhaps the most vital influence in the American business world in recent years has been the tendency of industrial leaders to join hands with science. No more significant example of this trend exists than your modern use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos. The great success of your experiments demonstrates the wisdom of this union between business and science."

Samuel Harden Church

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. Samuel Harden Church to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Church appears on this page.

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

ASK APPROVAL ON BRIDGE PACT

Allegheny County yesterday asked Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker to approve the contract between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the county regarding the construction of the George Westinghouse Bridge. The structure, already started, passes over the tracks of the railroad and right-of-way of the company in East Pittsburgh and North Versailles Township. There was only one witness, J. C. Jordan, an engineer, who explained the contract entered into. The county is building the bridge and the State Highway Department the roadway, which is part of the Lincoln highway.

The proposed hearing of the Welsh Bus Transportation Company for a certificate to operate busses between Butler and Indiana by way of Kittanning was postponed.

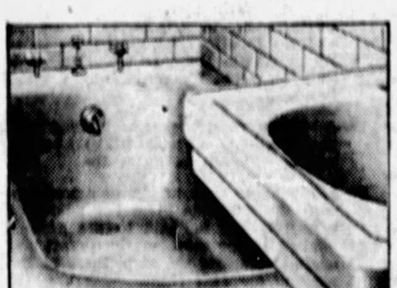
NEW THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

"My Bathroom Gleams Snow-White"



"My Hands Are Like A Debutante's"

To Make Porcelain Sparkle Without Scrubbing

SPARKLING porcelain and gleaming white tubs are as much a mark of social knowledge as good manners.

To have them—always snow-white and clean—and, at the same time for the housewife to have caressing, white hands is a problem that has now been solved an interesting, new way.

Use any kind of soap, soap powder or soap flakes, in washing bath fixtures. But add a teaspoon of CLIMALENE to the water.

This enables you to use ONE-FOURTH the usual quantity of soap. For it softens the water instantly, so that far less soap is needed.

Or, if you prefer, simply sprinkle CLIMALENE in dry form over the tub, then rub with a damp cloth.

Being a GREASE SOLVENT in itself, it DISSOLVES grease instantly; and eliminates ALL FILM or stain from porcelain. Makes it gleam like purest snow.

Containing superlative SKIN WHITENING and SKIN SOFTENING ingredients—used by scores of beauty specialists—it leaves the hands soft and lovely beyond words.

Women are flocking to it. It costs only a dime at grocers. Try it. Just ask for Climalene.

STUDEBAKER'S new Dictator Eight lower prices ...plus free wheeling MOTORDOM'S biggest surprise in 1930 is Studebaker's introduction of Free Wheeling with positive gear control.

Today's biggest surprise is the unexpected application of Free Wheeling to the one Studebaker Eight that seemed too low-priced to command it.

But a low price is no bar to high achievement in a Studebaker car!

And Free Wheeling, with positive gear control . . . until now obtainable only in the President and Commander Eights . . . is today offered in a new Dictator Eight at a new low price!

Now, with greater power and exquisite new beauty, the Dictator Eight is more than ever first of all Eights at its price. And it tops the great records it has piled up for economy of operation with the super-economy of Free Wheeling.

Free Wheeling means the harnessing of momentum and the consequent saving of 12% to 20% in gas and oil consumption. Free Wheeling delivers five miles and charges for four . . . your engine has "worked" only 8,000 miles when it has travelled 10,000 miles. Chassis wear is reduced. Tire life is lengthened.

In the new Dictator Eight, just as in the World Champion President and World Famous Commander, you can shift from high to second, back and forth, at 40—50 miles an hour and never touch the clutch. Yet, with Free Wheeling, under positive gear control, the braking power of your engine is always available—so surely and instantaneously that Public Safety Commissioners have pronounced it a distinct contribution to safety.

See this new Dictator Eight, shown today for the first time. Drive it. Experience the thrill of Free Wheeling. Studebaker considers this new Eight with Free Wheeling the crowning triumph of its 78 progressive years.

Note the Features of this New Studebaker Eight with Free Wheeling Seasoned straight eight engine developing 81 horsepower. Nine-bearing crankshaft. Duplex carburetor with carburetor silencer. Dual manifold. Aluminum alloy pistons. Full power muffler. Air cleaner. Lanchester vibration damper. Automatic thermostat on generator controls battery charging. Thermostatic control of engine cooling. Timken bearings at all vital points. Duo-Servo improved four-wheel brakes. Adjustable steering column and front seat. Safety steel-core, 3-spoke steering wheel. Double-drop frame, extra strong. Insulated toe board. Fender lights and all plating of tarnish-proof chromium. Le Modern bumpers. Gasoline gauge on dash. Hydraulic shock absorbers. Starter button on dash. Fuel pump supplies gasoline to carburetor through filter. Drive it 40 miles per hour the day it is delivered. Drain oil only every 2500 miles.

You shift at will—back and forth between second and high—at any speed, and never touch the clutch!

The full braking power of your engine is available instantly, easily, at all speeds.

You save 12 to 20 per cent of your gasoline and oil . . . your engine "rests" one mile out of five . . . you save tire, chassis and engine strain and wear . . . you save your leg muscles, your nerves.

You glide noiselessly, restfully, in gear and fully controlled, yet free and silent as though there were no gears . . . travel-quiet unknown since the days of the electric coupe.

Union avenue, North Side, has an old-fashioned iron gate which has attached to it an older-fashioned admonition—"Beware of Dog."

Mary, the waitress, contributed the most complete squelch on a show-off drunk in a night restaurant the other morning. Mary is noted among the lesser men about town for her wise cracks.

The show-off's girl was telling him: "You must drink grape fruit juice."

"Naw, I dowant no grape fruit juice, I wanna grape fruit," he repeated a dozen times.

Mary waited for his order, and it was finally given—a grape fruit juice.

She hurried off and brought it back. His blurred eyes met hers.

"How do I go after it, like soooup?"

"Lap it," she muttered, as she walked away.

Monuments are funny things. There's one in Soldiers' Memorial Hall that is rarely noticed. "Victory" it's called, and Maxfield Keck did it years ago. What brings it out now is that Keck is the sculptor who did those two Moses pieces so similar—the one in Albany and one in the new county building here.

Pittsburghers who were in Paris this summer brought back the distinguished looking Henry Hornbostel a great chuckle. Henry is noted for his moustache, Van Dkye beard, and distinctive tie.

In Paris is Caleb Hornbostel, his only son, making great way to become also a famous architect. And during the past year, Caleb, in his twenties, has adopted not only the profession but as well the papa's moustache, Van Dkye and tucked-in tie. Incidentally, both Van Dykes are red.

An old Negro, in full-length coat, Roman collar and skull cap is the Hill district's newest evangelist. In his right hand he carries a Bible, in his left, a long, impressive saber. As he denounces dat old Debbil he swishes the saber threateningly through the air. The other night Harry Gethen saw him single another Negro out of his street audience and ask whether the listener had the Holy Spirit.

"Yes, suh!" the patron assured.

"An' how the h—— j'all get it?" the evangelist demanded.

That beautiful home at Fifth and Morewood avenues where workmen recently finished a wall has a new back yard worth more than $100,000, garden and all. And it is a tribute to the kindness and consideration of the chatelaine there that one of the first garden parties were to those who make the life of her family happy—the domestic help.

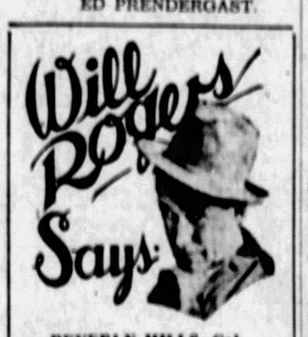
ED PRENDERGAST.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 18.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

At Las Vegas, Nev., Secretary Wilbur has dedicated the Boulder Dam. I had been asked to go there in case Arizona senators should start a filibuster, and keep talking and talking and prevent the dedication. They wired, "Will, you are the only man in America that can talk longer about nothing than a senator. Then, too, we think the Democratic party should be represented, and Borah can't come."

If Vanderbilt wants to make himself America's latest hero, he will break a rudder, or hit an iceberg, with that boat of his and let that old man win. Then we will start a Vanderbilt for President Club. Yours,

WILL.

WOMEN WAR ON VOTE PLACES

Selection by the Redistricting Commission of engine houses, police stations and private properties as polling places over public schools and libraries, was declared to be degrading today by Mrs. Della B. Hershey, executive secretary of the League of Women Voters, and County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern.

According to Mrs. Hershey, a checkup shows there are 12 less schools to be used this year as voting places than last year.

Most of the polls are located at points highly inconvenient to voters and are in the most undesirable sections of the precincts and this influence tends to cut down the vote, especially the women's vote, Mrs. Hershey asserted.

McGovern predicted numerous requests for change in location of polling places would be made as a result of the work of the redistricting Commission. He also suggested movable booths to house the new voting machines.

The Redistricting Board eliminated eight districts in Homestead, leaving that borough with 12 districts. This, it was said, will save the county $8,000 when voting machines are installed. The plan was submitted to the commission by Burgess John Cavanaugh.

Save Famished Dog Penned in Air Shaft

A fox hound, severely injured and almost famished, was rescued from the bottom of a 35-foot air shaft in Mifflin Township this morning, after being discovered by boys. The dog evidently had been there for weeks. A front leg had been broken in the fall.

The boys, hearing the dog's cries, notified C. L. Grube, of West Homestead, who descended on a rope and rescued the animal. Grube notified the township commissioners and suggested the shaft be covered, to keep children from falling into it.

CONFLICTING STORIES TOLD

'Markers' Were Never Set, County Employe Asserts; 1,000 Placed, Brown Avers

The reported disappearance two days ago of engineers' stakes marking the boundary of proposed runways on the new county airport plunged further into stygian depths today when a conflicting state of affairs came to light as follows:

1—An employe in the county engineer's office declared no stakes had ever been set.

SAYS MORE THAN 1,000

3—Department of Public Works Director Norman F. Brown described the stakes as elevation markers and estimated the number at considerably more than 1,000.

4—First reports from Director Brown's office had it that the stakes had disappeared—yesterday the director said they merely had been pulled out and tossed aside, but today they had evidently vanished into thin air, for there was not the slightest trace of anything resembling a stake throughout the length and breadth of the entire landing field tract.

The theft, vandalism or whatever explanation can be attributed to the stake mystery, entails a delay of at least 30 days in the county airport program, according to Director Brown, but Engineer Kaltenbach is more optimistic.

CAN SOON MAKE IT UP

He said of the seeming enigma, "Of course, there is an inconvenient delay, but we can very easily make it up without any actual loss of time before the time for letting contracts is at hand."

Director Brown, in response to questions as to just how long the entire project might be held up, replied that weather would be the chief factor, declaring he would keep his original promise to provide an airport ready for flying within six months' actual working time.

The finished plans, as revised by the director within the past two months, will not be ready for another week or 10 days, he said.

COYNE PREDICTS PINCHOT WIN

State Senator James J. Coyne, home from visits in Harrisburg and Philadelphia, predicted that Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee, would be elected governor November 4 by a substantial majority.

Coyne declared certain members of the Philadelphia "war board" are complaining bitterly of a powerful political influence, invisible to the public, that is trying to avenge a personal affair at the expense of party loyalty.

Mayor Harry A. Mackey and his friends intend to "go all the way" for Pinchot and associates of William Vare will fall in line eventually, Coyne believes.

Yuletide Party Develops Into Family Dispute

CHAPTER XXII.

Mary Paige would not come to the Farnsworth's for Christmas dinner, and before the day was over Cathie was glad. The big party she had planned dwindled to a foursome, Farnsworth and Cathie, and Enid and Chester.

Not a very cheerful foursome, in spite of the festive table, and the decorations that had cost Cathie so much time and trouble. Cathie wore the star sapphire her husband had given her, and Chester could not keep his eyes off it.

"A beautiful stone," he told Cathie over and over, "and one that cost a fortune, my girl!"

"It's very lovely," Cathie murmured, and tried to interest him in Enid's black pearl, but he would hardly glance at it, coming back every time to the star sapphire.

"Catherine appreciates it. She know its value!" Farnsworth cut in, rather testily, at last.

Chester paused to light a cigaret. The flare of the match showed his sallow face distorted with malice. "I dare say. She has learned very quickly," he drawled. "For a girl raised without any of the advantages she does very well. Very well, indeed. I don't suppose that my own wife, accustomed as she has been to every luxury, could spend money faster, or make better use of the Canary diamonds, or the star sapphire than our Catherine!"

Angered
Cathie Says She Wants Nothing but Peace

Cathie clutched at the sapphire on its slender cord around her neck, looked appealingly at her husband. But no help came from him. He was eating plum pudding, his eyes on his plate, and if he heard, he gave no sign.

Snap. The thin black cord broke under her frenzied fingers. "Here!" She was sliding it across the damask cloth to Chester's place. "Take it! I don't want it. I don't want to take it from Enid. She can have the diamonds too, for all of me. I don't want anything. Anything but peace!" Her voice was breaking. They were all staring at her.

"Catherine!" Mr. Farnsworth quavered.

Chester, still smiling maliciously, picked up the jewel. "I really wouldn't throw it, if I were you," he advised. "It's very delicate!"

Sorry
Feels Down-Hearted About Losing Temper

Enid stood up, "If you're going to have a family brawl you'll have to excuse me. My nerves aren't equal to it," she said.

But she wasn't quick enough. Cathie had already rushed from the room.

After Chester and his wife were gone Alfred Farnsworth tiptoed into Cathie's room. He had the sapphire, on its broken cord, in his hand. "Chester is so sorry he hurt you," he said gently. "The boy doesn't mean to be cutting. I wish you two would try to be better friends." He sighed.

Cathie came and hid her face against his shoulder. "I'm sorry," she whispered. "I'm so ashamed of myself. Losing my temper like that. And on Christmas day. Oh, what will become of me? What will become of me!"

He stroked her ruffled honey-colored hair. "There, there," he soothed. "You musn't cry so! It's nothing. We all lose our tempers sometimes. You musn't worry."

"But I'm such a failure—after all you've done for me!"

"Catherine, you'll really make yourself sick. Try to calm yourself. For my sake!"

For his sake she tried. The sobs died into small, strangled whimpers. She lifted her head, and managed to smile through wet lashes. "I won't do it again," she promised. "I won't

Police Halt Wheelbarrow Contest After 22 Hours

The wheelbarrow marathoners, Joe DeRocco and Jack Guilbert, stopped by police yesterday in their wheeling activities at Fifth avenue and Tunnel street, today said they would apply for sanction of the contest by Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and Director James M. Clark, of the Public Safety Department.

The young men, both Pittsburgh song writers, had pushed each other in a wheelbarrow for 22½ hours when the race was brought to an abrupt close by officers from the Central station. They had intended to continue for 100 hours.

The hand-shaking team of West End, tired but determined, today completed 15 full days and nights. Joseph Gue and Charles Mathews began September 2 to shake each other's hand for 500 continuous hours.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Question Box" each day will ask a question of Public Interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Leaders of Sonta International, the "Woman's Kiwanis," now meeting in Chicago, say sex in business has vanished and a woman can go as far as she wishes in the business world. Do you agree?

C. J. Kletz

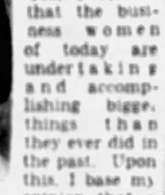
C. J. KLETZ, East Liberty, business manager. No, women can't go as far as the men in business, because they aren't men. They may be successful, but I do not believe they can attain the degree of success a man can.

Miss Smith

LEAH SMITH, East Liberty saleswoman. Yes, I think that the business women of today are undertaking and accomplishing bigger things than they ever did in the past. Upon this, I base my opinion that a woman may go as far as she wishes in the business world.

L. Platman

L. PLATMAN, assistant manager. Yes, I believe they are right. Sex in business has vanished and as a result a woman should be able to accomplish as much as any man, if she is sensible and makes up her mind to do it.



Miss Fierberg

JEANNETTE FIERBERG, East End saleswoman. A woman now has a much better opportunity both in business and in private life. I think that she can go as far as she wishes without the heretofore handicap of her sex.

White Feldman

WHITE FELDMAN, Herron Hill. Yes, I believe they can. I read just recently of a woman becoming a judge a few days ago. That to me seems to be as responsible a position as any man can hold.

Miss Norton

BETTY NORTON, North Side, saleswoman. Yes, I agree with them, absolutely. A woman can go as far as she wishes in the business world. It is quite obvious that women have more rights now than they ever had.

KNIFE TOO DULL, SUICIDE FAILS

Disappointed, he said, because the knife with which he attempted to commit suicide was not sharp enough to inflict a wound, Charles Britton, 40, a Negro, of 528 Fifth avenue, Homestead, appeared at the West Homestead Police Station where he told about his troubles early today.

Britton's neck was scratched from ear to ear, police said. According to his account, Britton went to New Homestead Hill, Mifflin Township, to end it all.

He was turned over to Homestead police where he was lodged pending arrival of Constable Frank Bell, who, police said, had been searching for Britton in order to serve a warrant for his arrest.

GARDEN FREED IN SLAYING

James Garden, Clairton grocer, was acquitted of a charge of murder in a jury verdict read in Criminal Court this morning. Visiting Judge James M. Barnett, of Perry County, received the verdict when court convened, the jurors having reached a decision after adjournment yesterday. Garden's wife was present when the verdict was read and wept as she greeted her husband.

Garden was accused of killing Samuel Lali, 703 Miller avenue, Clairton, one of a group of Fourth of July revelers engaged in firing a toy cannon in front of Garden's home at 4 o'clock Independence Day morning. It was testified Garden fired a pistol from a window after calling to the cannon shooters to desist. Garden claimed the pistol was discharged accidentally while he was raising the window.

JUDGE REFUSES JURY EXCUSES

A halt in the custom of excusing jurors has been decreed in Common Pleas Court by Judge Frank P. Patterson, presiding in the assignment room.

He further ordered that lawyers try their cases as listed, with the alternative of facing a continuance or non-suit. Only an emergency which would work an injustice will allow a deviation from these rules, he declared.

The orders resulted from the pressure under which Common Pleas Court has been operating since the opening of the September session. Eight judges in addition to Judge Patterson have been sitting continuously and at times eight jury trials have been in progress, leaving only a few jurors not on duty. Present indications are that a record in disposition of cases will be reached this year.

FAMILY GASSED, HOME ROBBED

Robbers, using a mysterious gas to silence their victims, nearly caused the death of Joseph Timblin, his wife and their two children, of 3456 Gass avenue, North Side, early today.

Timblin failed to hear an alarm clock set for 6 a. m. and did not awake until 8 o'clock. He said his face was black from suffocation and his wife was in the same condition when he opened the windows and succeeded in arousing her.

The children, Jean, 9, and Joseph, Jr., 4, sleeping in a separate room, had been overcome, but were less affected than their parents.

The robbers had jimmied a rear window and searched the house leisurely after gassing the family. Timblin reported the loss of $72.50.

Jewelry valued at $1,500 in a dresser was untouched, but the thieves took 50 cents lying beside the gems. They also overlooked $110 belonging to Mrs. Timblin.

turn into one of these crying wives!"

He went on holding her in his arms. "Too much family," he said, "that's all. I tell you, we'll go on a New Year's party to one of the big hotels, just you and me. Would you like that!"

She didn't care really. She didn't care if she ever went anywhere again. But she nodded and kissed him, and when New Year's Eve came and he did not mention it she was surprised at her own disappointment. It would have been fun to go. To dress up, and listen to the music. She thought of reminding him, but he looked tired, and he had been complaining of pains in his head lately . . . perhaps she had better not . . .

Towards 10 o'clock he fell asleep in his chair by the library fire and Cathie read one of the Christmas novels, and nibbled milk chocolates, trying not to care.

When the sirens blew at midnight, proclaiming the new year she opened one of the long French windows and stood out on the little balcony until she was chilled, picturing the crowds, the laughter, the lights of the celebration downtown. Ma and Ruth would be having a hot egg-nog in the kitchen about now. They always had egg-nog and fruitcake at midnight on New Year's Eve. Last year Frank Prout was there, too, and Eddie, and Eddie's friend with the yellow hair . . . was his name Sargent? And little Jean . . . and maybe Ruth's friend Mr. Browning this year . . .

She came in and shut the window.

"Come, dear, it's late!" Cathie wakened her sleeping husband, gently.

He said, "I must have dropped off. Happy New Year, Catherine!"

"The same to you, dear!"

And so to bed, but not to sleep.

Insomnia
Is Frightened by Strange Noises

Insomnia laid grizzly fingers on Cathie. It wasn't only the sleeplessness she dreaded. It was the dark, creaky house, at night. Sometimes, lying awake in the early morning hours when the sky was still black and the whole world seemed hushed and brooding, waiting for the dawn, her fear mounted almost to terror.

Creak. Sigh. Tap. Whisper. Whisper. She would lie, tense and listening, while the darkness pressed on her eyeballs, and the thud of her heart almost shook the bed. If there were just someone she could talk to...

Marguerite? But that wouldn't be dignified. She couldn't do that. And her husband, worn after strenuous days at the office, was always weary at night. She could not waken him to tell him she was frightened. It wouldn't be right.

Tonight, after what seemed an eternity of sleeplessness, she slipped on a dressing gown, and padded down the dim hall to his room. She wasn't going to wake him. She could curl up on the chaise lounge at the foot of the bed, and be comforted just being near him, even if he was asleep.

It was cold in the hall. Cheong must have turned off the heat. Maybe she had better go back to her room and get a blanket. She started and then stopped suddenly. . . . There it was again. That creaking. You'd hear that someone was coming up the stairs!

Silence again. Absolute silence. Cathie's teeth were chattering. She pressed her cold hands over her thudding heart and waited. . . . This was nonsense. A grown woman, afraid of the dark. What would ma say if she knew? What would anybody say?

She snubbed the desire to run. She'd go back quietly, and get the blanket, and then . . .

"Oh, God! Help me!" the words tore themselves out of her contracted throat.

A little circle of pale light was bobbing steadily upward, just above the stairs.

HOSPITAL ANNEX CONTRACTS LET

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 18.—Dr. Thomas H. A. Stites, medical director of the state sanatorium, declares contracts virtually have been let for erection of the children's annex. These await only the signature of the attorney general at Harrisburg.

The annex probably will cost $230,000. Its features will include a sun parlor and facilities for roller and ice skating.

Dr. Stites made the following comment:

"I am pleased that we are able to do something which will contribute toward the elimination of tuberculosis, or indications of tuberculosis, in children."

REAL PERIL TO CHILD

"Tuberculosis is a disease which, when it strikes one of tender years, is more serious than when it hits an adult. Many of our young patients are not tubercular, but show symptoms of tuberculosis. These symptoms we want to wipe out."

This children's building will do much to reduce the waiting list of Pennsylvanians who have asked to enter the sanatorium. On the average 40 per cent of these patients are from Allegheny County.

LONG WAITING LIST

The waiting list today shows 435 persons asking admission. Of these, 160 are boys and girls, 135 men and 140 women. There are now approximately 270 patients in the sanatorium.

The superintendent of nurses in the new building will be Miss E. C. Allison, who also directs the nurses' activities elsewhere in the sanatorium. Miss Allison, who has been attached to the institution for 16 years, is one of the best known nurses in Pennsylvania.

GYPSY HUNTED IN THEFT

South Side police are seeking a gypsy woman, who, ostensibly by hypnotic methods but actually by chloroform, police believe, is robbing women of the district.

One of her victims, Miss Frances Multa, 23, of 2317 Carey way, was unable, at the South Side Station, today to identify a 19-year-old gypsy girl as the one who had robbed her Tuesday in her home of a wrist watch and apparel valued at $113.

The gypsy girl, Anna Mitchell; her father, Thomas Mitchell, 48, and her mother, Mary, arrested last night at South Eighteenth and Sarah streets, were discharged by Magistrate J. J. Sweeney.

Miss Multa informed police last night that Tuesday a woman entered her home, and after waving her hands caused Miss Multa to lose consciousness. When she recovered, two hours later, she found she had been robbed. Police think the gypsy had chloroform in a handkerchief.

BLIND PENSIONS URGED

Steps towards aiding the blind through a state pension or similar measure were being discussed today at the first convention of the Pennsylvania Educational Benevolent Society of the Blind in two-day session at the Moose Temple.

Delegates of various blind associations and institutions throughout the state were in attendance with the members in an effort to formulate a plan of economic relief for the blind that will eliminate street begging throughout the state. Michael DeRosa presided at both sessions today. The morning program was given over to opening addresses and musical numbers.

Declaring 19 states already have pension systems for the blind, Matthew Dunn, executive secretary and state legislator, emphasized that Pennsylvania must adopt a course to eliminate waste in expenditure to provide increased funds for aiding the blind.

POLICE HUNT 3 IN $700 THEFTS

North Side police today were searching for a bandit trio accused of robbing three men, one in Riverview Park and two near Spring street, of more than $700.

Simon Alberts, of 900 Sherman avenue, and M. Kratz, of 2221 Spring street, told police the men robbed them near Kratz's home. They got $700 from Alberts and $30 from Kratz, according to the police report.

The men later held up Earl Daranlick, of 4141 Perrysville avenue, and took 50 cents, while he was sitting in his auto in Riverview Park, he told police. The robbers overlooked $30 Daranlick had in an inside pocket, he said.

Flowers testified he had played $10 on 590 and 599 and that 590 had been the winning number. When he went to collect, Flowers said, Bechtold told him he would not be paid.

AIDS OF PARK STUDY RECOUNT

First and Second Asst. Dist. Attys. George F. P. Langfitt and Roy T. Clunk today began to go over the 64 reports filed by the special recount board of Common Pleas Court to ascertain whether any of the reports contain grounds warranting the making of criminal informations against election boards. Copies of all the reports were turned over to Dist. Atty. Andrew T. Park by Leander Trautman, chairman of the recount board. The report had previously been filed from time to time in Common Pleas Court as the work of recounting each contested district was completed.

County Detective David Drexler, who, upon assignment of District Atty. Park, had sat at all the recount board hearings to familiarize himself with the findings, is assisting Langfitt and Clunk in the checkup.

It is said few of the irregularities found by the recount board were of a criminal nature, mostly being errors in bookkeeping or arithmetic, and that few, if any, informations are likely to result. Dist. Atty. Park stated today he wanted his own men to make sure of these facts, however, before the recount becomes but a memory.

Man Burned Saving Horses from Blaze

One man was slightly burned while leading horses to safety when fire of undetermined origin destroyed a barn owned by Jacob Minsinger, of 52 Cowan street, Mt. Washington, yesterday. Stocked with hay and a large quantity of grease, the barn burned with a spectacular blaze which attracted attention in the downtown and South Hills districts.

While leading two horses to safety, Robert McKee, living nearby, was slightly burned on the hands. He also drove a truck from the burning building.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Elizabeth McCullough Marries H. M. Reed in Shadyside Church

A perfect Indian summer day with clear, blue skies, drifting colored leaves and an atmosphere of autumnal well-being was chosen by Elizabeth McCullough, daughter of the William T. McCulloughs, for her wedding yesterday afternoon to Henry Mason Reed, son of the George Reeds, of Bayard street.

The wedding took place at 5:30 o'clock in the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr's office in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church. And smilax entwined the organ loft and sheaves of pink gladioli and lace ferns studded with yellow chrysanthemums against a background of palms and bamboo banked the pews.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, had for her present at the reception 300 guests and an interesting gown of white satin made with long sleeves of duchess lace and rose point lace and a long train falling from the simulated yoke. Her veil of tulle was arranged with a cap of duchess lace. And she carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Bride's Gown

The matron of honor, Mrs. William T. McCullough, appeared in gold satin brocade with Margot made with short sleeves having a deep ruffle of the same material and with a novel back line, cut low in the back and decorated with three flat bows of the same material. The skirt was molded to below the hipline with tiers of ruffles forming the back. Her hat was of soft hydrangea blue panne velvet, fashioned in the popular off-the-face mode with the brim sweeping low over the shoulders. She carried gladioli and other fall flowers and blue delphiniums.

The bridesmaids, Emily Stuart, Katherine Scaife, Betty Nicholson, Mrs. C. Ray McCullough all of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Charles Babcock of Philadelphia and Mary Frances Berry of Fort Smith, Ark., wore similar frocks in three shades of peach and deep peach velvet hats. They carried autumn flowers.

Bridal Party

Wilbur Sheets, Jr., was best man and William T. McCullough, Jr., C. Ray McCullough, Meredith Hooker, William Wolfe, Edward Willock, Wilson Boos and Thomas Ewing, Jr., were ushers.

The mother of the bride wore pale blue lace over blue chiffon with a hat of blue lace. Mrs. Reed, mother of the bridegroom, was in raisin-colored crepe Elizabeth, with velvet hat to match.

Mrs. George Ray, the bride's grandmother, was in black lace, with a hat of velvet.

A reception in the Longue Vue Country Club followed. And after a wedding trip the Reeds will be at home in the Arlington Apartments, Center and Aiken avenues.

Many soft, rich autumnal colors were chosen by the guests for their costumes. Lace was popular, too, and of course crepes.

Mrs. Wallace Hurtle Rowe, Jr., was in a frock of pie crust lace with a hat to match, and Jane Alderdice chose a simple printed chiffon gown in blue and violet tones and a hat of black lace straw.

Lace Popular

Mrs. H. Lee Mason chose a gown of beige lace. Wearing a gown of pirate blue crepe with a darker navy blue felt beret was Neil Stewart Zang. And with her was Betty McCance wearing tomato red crepe with a felt hat to match.

Mrs. Otto C. Gaub, who was there with Dr. Gaub, chose a graceful gown of black lace with which she wore a black velvet hat. I caught a glimpse of Priscilla Hall wearing a brown bouclé dress and orange felt hat.

Marian Stone, who'll be a bride of late fall, was among the guests, wearing a gladiolus red crepe dress with a black hat.

The R. G. Follansbees arrived late with Mrs. Follansbee wearing a blue and white crepe dress and a small black hat.

Fall Crepes

The John G. Frazers were guests, too, with Mrs. Frazer wearing cinnamon brown lace and a brown velvet hat. Mrs. Walter Schleiter was in green lace and crepe, and Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., in brown crepe with a small brown felt hat.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Stieren arrived with their two daughters, Josephine and Elizabeth. Mrs. Stieren was in black crepe with a black hat, and so was Elizabeth. Josephine wore hyacinth blue crepe.

Others I noticed were the Robert Groves with Mrs. Grove wearing a beige coat with a lapiff scarf collar, and a beige hat. Mrs. Charles Decker, wearing printed chiffon with a black hat. Mrs. David L. Gillespie and her daughter, Miss Mabel Gillespie. Mrs. William Zang in a printed crepe and garnet red felt hat. Peggy Mulligan in blue crepe. Mrs. Mortimer Miller in black chiffon with a black hat and Harriet Wainwright in beige crepe. Miss Bessie McCargo wore said lace with a hat to match.

Others I noticed were Mrs. Charles Wes, Mrs. C. A. Verner, Mrs. Charles McKibben, Mrs. Thomas McCutcheon, Mrs. A. E. Sloan and her daughter Jane, Mrs. Norwood Johnston and her daughter Frances, Mrs. her daughter Frances, Mrs. William Peirs and her daughter Alicia, Mrs. George Barnes, the Jeff Kings, the P. F. Javerlous, the Charles Dickson, Miss Malvina Thomas, Dr. and Mrs. C. C. W. Barr, Oliver Evans, the Robert Morrows, the Charles Fishers, Mrs. Edward Jackman, Mrs. Edward Thompson, the Eugene Corneliuses, the William Reinhalls, Miss Catherine F. Straub, Miss Mary Wright, Mrs. William C. King, Mrs. Martin Ballard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scull.

Now that fall is really here, all the entertaining that was brought to a halt at the first hint of spring is returning. Yesterday Mrs. William Jackson Crittenden of Sarasa Shields entertained with a luncheon in honor of one of June's buds, Madelaine Alexander, who's the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander of Sewickley. And of course it was given in the Crittenden home. Only the debs' most intimate friends were guests.

Safety Head Speaks at Congress

Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, president of the Congress of Clubs, in introducing Julian Harvey at the safety luncheon in the club house yesterday, said he would talk of safety in this world rather than of safety in the next—a particularly apt introduction since Mr. Harvey was a last-minute substitute for the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan who had gone out of town.

Mr. Harvey who is manager of the New York office of the National Safety Council, spoke of the coming safety congress to be held here September 29 to October 3, but he particularly stressed safety in the home and what may be done by the women especially in energizing people to safety-mindedness. As many people are killed by accidents in homes as on the highways and the most unfortunate feature is that the majority of those killed are of pre-school age, the speaker stated, adding that safety is not only a humanitarian measure, but an economic question and requires engineering, education and enforcement.

Elsie Breese Mitchell, Congress music chairman, led assembly singing and also gave several solos which were heartily received and for which Frana Kennedy played his usual fine accompaniments.

Mrs. H. D. Stark, a new Congress board member, was chairman and introduced Mrs. Johnston who presented the speaker and Harry Neely and Grafton Duvall, both of whom are actively interested in the coming convention.

In conclusion the Crescent Heights Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts, 1930 winner at the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council first aid meet, gave a splendid demonstration of first aid and a safety film was shown.

TIERS AND FLOUNCES LEND CHARM TO FALL SILHOUETTE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, SEPT. 18.—Any skirt that has been neglected in the important matter of flounces, seems to just give vent to tiers, judging from the models shown in many of the new collections. The tiered or flounced skirt seems to be tremendously much liked, giving as it does, animation and charm to the silhouette without tending to effect a departure from the current mode.

Of course, tiers and flounces must be skilfully handled with restrains as the keynote, otherwise the garment seems to acquire a dressy and kittenish look, something that every sensible woman is most anxious to avoid in even the most dressy gown.

ENTER THE ENSEMBLE in its autumn guise which is a both becoming and subtle one. The relationship between the frock and the coat is not conspicuously stressed, but is rather defined in a very delicate and distinctive manner. A very favorite manner of defining the ensemble is to repeat the color of the coat in the trimming of the frock, a most successful method and one featured by Captain Molyneux. This original and enterprising designer is again enjoying a great success and a well-deserved one. For Molyneux travels along no beaten path, but is courageous enough to blaze his own trails by creating clothes that simply breathe originality without the slightest hint of the bizarre or ugly.

THAT MOLYNEUX is adept at designing the ensemble should be quite evident from even a cursory glance at the drawings shown with this message. The coat and the dress create a most effective ensemble in the grand but subtle manner. The coat is of a lightweight woolen fabric in dark brown and the huge shawl collar of fox is toned to match. The silhouette is slim and straight with tiered, wide sleeves.

THE FROCK of the Molyneux ensemble is of beige georgette with a draped collar and knotted cuffs of dark brown georgette matching exactly the tone of the coat and thereby creating the harmonizing link. The tier to tier flounces, a feature of this ensemble are also to be found on many evening as well as daytime models in the new Molyneux collection. In this model he has repeated the idea on the sleeves of both frock and coat. Two tea-roses nestle in the front of the decolletage.

CHAT ABOUT THEATER FOLK AND AMUSEMENTS

Frank Morgan as 'Topaze' Introduces New York To Paris Dickens

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.

ONE OF THE pleasantest evenings that can be spent by lovers of good acting is at the Ethel Barrymore Theater, where a new star and a new dramatist simultaneously burst into a bright blaze recently when "Topaze" was produced. The star is Frank Morgan and the dramatist is Marcel Pagnol. Morgan's rather sudden rise was not as sudden as one might think, for he's been on the stage since Walker Whiteside played "Mr. Wu." But this new French author is a revelation, particularly as his comedy savors more of Charles Dickens than any modern Frenchman. In fact, the entire first act could easily have been played in Dotheboys Hall, with Mr. Pecksniff as head master.

George Seibel

This isn't at all like modern French literature. In Paris the Symbolists and the Muckologists now divide honors. Since Edmond Rostand there has been very little genuine poetry, mostly sonorous nonsense. And since Alphose Daudet, greatest French novelist after Balzac, the chief concern of would-be Academicians has been the exploration of psychological sewers.

But this man Pagnol is different. He creates characters with the exuberant joy of Dickens in their little peculiarities, which is the thumbmark of a great humorist. His Topaze is a timid school-master as honest as the Ten Commandments and then some. So honest that the American impulse is to kick him. He gets kicked in this Parisian comedy just as he'd get kicked in America.

Yet one thing we Americans would object to is the transparent moral of this comedy. Perhaps it ought to be called an "immoral." Putting it plainly, Dishonesty is the best policy, seems to be the lesson. At the close we see the one-time honest and timid school-master turned into a grafter of purest brass and a lady's man without the minutest scruple.

MASTERPIECE OF ACTING

Portraying this character Frank Morgan presents a masterpiece of acting. It is in the old tradition of which Richard Mansfield was the last great exponent. He begins to act an hour before the curtain rises, as he puts on the makeup which transforms him into Topaze, with his pale beard and his anemic personality.

During the entire first act, which takes place in the school room, Topaze is the slightly bewildered, highly romantic, abnormally sensitive schoolmaster. His class make fun of him and his feeble attempts at discipline are ridiculous. The virtuous mottoes on the wall and the noble sentiments he dispenses to the pupils furnish an ironic commentary on life. This Topaze has only one ambition, to get a diploma as Doctor of Moral Philosophy. But he will not even "correct" the poor report of one of his pupils in order to please the pupil's mother who has enough influence with the Ministery to secure that degree for Topaze.

At the close of the act Topaze is ignominiously fired for having stuck to his guns—and is told he has falsified the record to the disadvantage of the pupil.

PROFESSOR OF GRAFT

In the second act, which is weaker than the first, Topaze calls on the woman who had employed him as a private tutor for a boy who may have been her own child. From this point onward Topaze the school-master disappears. This young woman and her lover, a master political grafter, need a scapegoat to cover their tracks. City contracts are awarded to the highest bidder, but there must be a dummy to figure in the ransaction. Topaze is the dummy in all senses of the word.

How they wheedle him into sticking at his post after he has discovered the crooked work, but has fallen in love with the woman, is made fairly credible by the acting of Catherine Willard and Clarence Derwent. But from a standpoint of probability, the comedy drops sadly after that admirable first act, in which Hubert Druce as the Pecksniffian headmaster, also plays marvelously well, while Harry Davenport, son of the famous tragedian, presents a characterization of senile chatter full of rich humor.

BUT ABOUT THE MORAL

The play comes to a triumphant conclusion when Topaze finding "dishonesty is the best policy," turns on the other grafters and trumps all their cards. He has already become a Doctor of Moral Philosophy by being a crook. Even if this ending of the play were psychologically probable it reverses all our notions of poetic justice.

Dramatists and critics like Lessing and Schiller have argued at much length whether the hero of a drama might be allowed to steal the spoons without losing the sympathy of the audience. Topaze not only steals the spoons but the whole silver service. He turns as accomplished and bold a crook as he was ineffectual and pathetic in his days of honesty.

To believe that this miraculous transformation came about because Topaze fell in love with Suzy Courtois is a romantic exaggeration of the power of love. Besides condoning Suzy's dishonesty and her not at all doubtful immorality, he seems quite ready to be more dishonest than his predecessors and no more moral.

QUEEN VICTORIA IS DEAD

Well, a French Dickens cannot be expected to adjust his standards to the copy-book maxims of good old Queen Victoria. "The Widow of Windsor," as Kipling called her, thereby spoiling his chances of becoming poet laureate, is rather a humorous figure in our days, even in the Anglo-Saxon world.

But we should rejoice that in this man Pagnol there has risen a French author with a golden vein of humor which puts him alongside of Dickens. "Topaze" is only Pagnol's third play, and has been running in Paris for two years. It shows that the French for all that's been said about them, have not forgotten to laugh at the ridiculous.

No doubt Parisians are laughing at Gertrude Stein and James Joyce, whom our intelligentsia worship with bated breath and many adjectives.

This play, "Topaze," so marvelously acted by Frank Morgan, is one of the things now in New York most worth seeing. Good comedy and good acting will be with us as long as the human race remains human.

COMING ATTRACTIONS BRING FILMS AND STAGE PLAYS

George Bernard Shaw, the author of "The Apple Cart," the Theater Guild presentation which is coming to the Nixon Monday night, never allows his plays to be cut in any way. When one American manager cabled him, asking permission to take out a few lines because the play was so long that commuters failed to catch their trains, Shaw cabled back "Run trains later."

The Shubert-Alvin will open its new theatrical season Monday night with the famous vampire play "Dracula," which is a dramatic version of Bram Stoker's novel of the same name. Seats are now on sale at the box office. The engagement is limited to one week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

NEW MACKAILL FILM

"The Office Wife" comes to the Stanley screen today. Dorothy Mackaill, Lewis Stone and Natalie Moorhead are featured. On the stage Ed Lowry will make his debut as master of ceremonies.

Next week's attraction of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt will be "Those We Love."

"Animal Crackers," featuring the Four Marx Brothers, begins a second week on the Aldine screen tomorrow.

The film version of the stage musical comedy, "Follow Thru," comes to the Penn tomorrow. Bert Frohman will be on the stage in "Frosen Kapers."

"The Sea God," featuring Richard Arlen and Fay Wray, will open on the Sheridan Square screen tomorrow.

OTHER BOOKINGS

"Big Boy," film comedy featuring Al Jolson, comes to the Enright Friday. Dick Powell's stage presentation will be "Revue in Blue."

Constance Bennett's "Common Clay" will open a week's engagement in the Harris next Saturday. Lewis Ayres has a prominent role.

"Scarlet Pages" opens in the Warner tomorrow with Marian Nixon, Grant Withers, Elsie Ferguson and John Halliday in the leading roles.

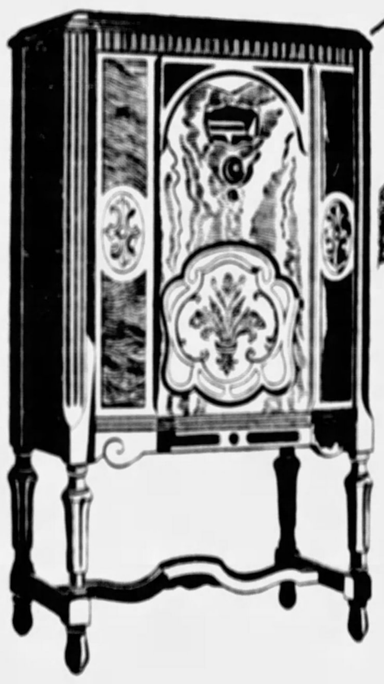
Your Radio is old-fashioned without this 4-IN-ONE DIAL

The Brunswick's amazing Uni-Selector takes the place of 4 controls on ordinary sets!



Think of it—a radio with a single dial! With one magic sweep Brunswick has obliterated the confusing series of knobs that clutter the cabinets of other sets, and substituted the sensational new UNI-SELECTOR.

You'll be proud as Punch of this new device, which no owner of any other set can boast—proud of the immensely improved appearance, vain of its magic ease of operation.

To turn the set on—to tune in stations—to adjust volume higher or lower—to set for local or distant stations—or to turn the set off—just turn the Uni-Selector.

Seven separate functions—everything essential to the operation of the set—concentrated in one control!

Radio comes of age in Brunswick's 1931 models.

The Uni-Selector is just one of many revolutionary refinements—including the All-Armored Chassis, Rigid Tuning Scale, and Tone Control—which protect the new Brunswick from the "growing pains" that made former radio styles so fleeting.

Here at last is a mature, complete, finished instrument, prepared in advance for future changes in radio design. It is the one set you can buy today with confidence that years from now it will still be "the best that money can buy"—in tone, in power, in selectivity, in convenience.

"Sample" it before another day goes by!

ONE OF THE YEAR'S MOST POPULAR MODELS

Have a Little Static

(Some of broadcast on WABC)

Good evening, ladies and gentlemen and those who wish I would give myself up. Before rinsing the town's soiled linen right in your own home, Miss Adele Astaire will revive "S'Wonderful, S'Marvelous," which she helped make popular in "Funny Face." Miss Astaire is to co-star in Ziegfeld's "Smiles," along with her brother, Fred, and Marilyn Miller. Adele would rather dance or make funny faces for you, but our television set is busted. At any rate, Miss Astaire—by the way, tells me that she isn't going to ankle up an altar with William Gaunt, after all. In other words, Wilham is Gaunt—but not forgotten. (Miss Astaire's song here.)

Thanks very much, Adele, for giving my program a start, you great big opening act, you! Have a couple of chairs, until I get through making more enemies than friends.

Danny Ahern, who wrote "How to Commit Murder and Get Away With It," is finishing another book called "The Palace of Tiers" . . . In it the author will say that Gyp the Blood, Lefty Louie, Whitey Lewis and Dago Frank should not have died in the chair for the Herman Rosenthal murder, and that the actual killer still is at large.

The crowd of men who collect at the S. W. corner of 43d and Broadway every night after 11:30 fool many passersby, who think something has happened or there is a raid . . . They gather there nightly after the theater time and talk shop . . . They are the Broadway theater musicians.

The Chas. Farrell-Virginia Valli romance is colder than a dead critic . . . They tell me the Richard Dix-Mary Lawlor romance is blazing beautifully . . . Next to the Bible, "All Quiet on the Western Front" is the world's best seller . . . 2,600,000 in 15 months . . . The Pathfinder defines the hick town in this clever manner.

A hick town today is one where everybody isn't three months behind on their installment payments. Where the main street isn't always being dug up by the railway company. Where the wild life that stays up all night belongs to the cat family. Where a fellow who starts out to make whoopee doesn't know where to go after the library closes. Where the way of the transgressor is HEARD. And where the traffic cop calls you Bill instead of Hey, You!

Not many years ago a publisher gave the winner of his contest $20,000 first prize coin for naming a new mag. The winner immediately stranded his wife and two kids and ran off with another phrail. The money was spent in less than a year and the lad, they say, is now in a booby-hatch . . . Easy come—Easy go-crazy . . . One of the nearby sanitariums was befriended by the late Henry Siegel, who died the other day . . . That place features a plaque which reads: "This wing donated by Henry Siegel" . . . That plaque cost Siegel $38,000 . . . He died a pauper . . . Life is too sad . . . Mr. Swanson, the editor of Collitchumor, writes me that there is a Chicago debutante who is so careful she brings her own ginger ale to parties.

Coste and Bellonte, the Paris to N. Y. aviators, had their Ritz Tower hotel bills paid by the landlord, Mr. Wm. R. Hearst. . . . Mr. H., you know, was recently banished from France for political reasons . . . French rags please copy . . . Incidentally, Coste on his Good Will tour of the U. S. will drop a wreath on Myron Herrick's Cleveland grave . . . That reminds me of the time the late Ambassador to France killed a scoop for the N. Y. Times . . . Lindy had contracted to give the Times an exclusive interview after his arrival in Paree . . . Herrick, however, prevailed upon the Times Paris executive to permit all reporters to have it because he felt that the story was too big to be sewed up by one rag.

In spite of recent happenings, New York producers say the stage is getting cleaner, a wag says: "Well, that's one nice thing about hitting bottom; there's no place to go but up" . . . It just dawned on me why people go to night clubs . . . They go to ruminisce . . . You see, the pun isn't the lowest form of wit since the advent of the radio columnist.

I had a chat with Frances White last night . . . She feels pretty third-rate over that publicity that followed her quarrel with a taxi man over a $3.50 fare, which she couldn't pay . . . Frances tells me that the publicity enticed over $4,500 in money orders, certified checks and cash, the money coming from anonymous sources . . . She says she cannot return the money, but she is arranging to have the checks and money orders returned to the senders . . . And that booking office politics is what is keeping her from working, and not, as the papers reported, "she wants more than $750 weekly" . . . She also pointed out that she wants no pity nor sympathy, and that those who tried to help her included almost everyone but her friends.

Thelma Temple, who is now mixed up with the Crater case, according to one rag, and who is suing a man for the recovery of a diamond bracelet or wrist watch he gave and then took back, was the heart of Ben Pollack for a year and a half . . . She now is courting with Harold Whalen (Jans and Whalen), of "Luana," she says . . . Nearly every girl you meet is mixed up with the Crater case . . . That is, every girl who has a photograph . . . There are several rewards out for Crater, you know . . . Peggy Joyce offers an extra $10,000 for his whereabouts, so that Crater will get off the front pages and give her a chance to crash them again.

The boys who have nothing better to do have figured out that if you have two o's in your name you can become President. . . . There was WOOdrow Wilson, Teddy ROOsevelt, Herbert HOOver and Cal COOlidge . . . They also argue that if Franklin ROOsevelt runs against Dwight Morrow, Morrow will lose because his o's are parted . . . I wish our next Congressman, HeywOOd Broun, would run for Prez . . . I would like to see him in Washington. He is too much competition in New York for me. Please vote for him, because I want to see him suffer at the Capitol, where he would have a difficult time of it trying to be funnier than the other members of the House.

And now my time is up. I remain very truly yours the proud pappy of Walda (3) and Gloria (almost 7) Winchell. That reminds me . . . When my darlings were running up and down the Atlantic City sands last month they approached Eddie Cantor, who excitedly whispered to George White: "Omygod, be careful! Those are Winchell's kids—they tell their father EVERYTHING!"

Harold Lloyd Climbs Stairs And Saves Himself Some Money

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18.

Free-lancing pays when an actor works as steadily as H. B. Warner.

Contracts have been signed for him to appear in his fourth consecutive picture at Fox. It will be "Once a Sinner," an original screen story by George Middleton, ex-Broadway playwright.

Another prominent New Yorker is to direct—Guthrie McClintic, who is responsible for many Broadway successes. Mrs. McClintic (Katherine Cornell) is winning much homage here in her last season's vehicle, "Dishonored Lady." It is the first time she has played the coast.

H. B. Warner

PRACTICAL COMEDIAN

Harold Lloyd walked up a flight and saved himself $150 yesterday. The comedian is doing a thrill sequence on the face of a downtown office building. One of the scenes required him to come into the office through a window.

When the occupant of the office was approached he set a figure of $250 for rent. Lloyd told him he was too costly and walked up a flight and got a similar office for $100.

VACATION LOST

With everything packed to go to Mexico City to join Tay Garnett and Patsy Ruth Miller on a holiday, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Armstrong had to wire their regrets.

Bob got a telephone call from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer that a test he made some time ago for "Within the Law" was satisfactory, and that the part was waiting for him.

He accepted.

Joan Crawford

HOPES BLASTED

Th casting office at Universal recently received the following offer from a 11-year-old tree sitter in a small Midwestern town:

"I have been up 768 hours and when I pass 900 hours I think I'll be ripe for a part in the movies. I would like for you to give me a break. If you can't give me an acting job, I'm pretty good as a carpenter."

School authorities entered the scene before the ambitious lad had completed his 900 hours, so it appears that his motion picture career is shattered.

Add to the novel sidelines of Hollywood celebrities the new boxing club of James Gleason and Robert Armstrong. The two comedians are backing a stadium in a suburb of Los Angeles. They will stage regular fight cards there.

LOPEZ BRINGS MUSIC AND ENLIVENS OUR TOWN'S NIGHTS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

The Nixon Restaurant opened a new season last night under a blaze of gay life and the baton of Vincent Lopez. And the night was a success because of the presence of this Mr. Lopez and his 17 musicians.

Lopez has something. His musicians have something. So everyone had a sumptuous time. They played "Old Man River" and made it a classic, not of the Mississippi, but of the dance floor. They played the "Maine Stein Song" and nearly turned the place into a collegiate jamboree. And they played almost everything else, including "Happy Days Are Here Again."

SPIRIT OF 1930!

Take the drummer of that orchestra. He is the spirit of 1930. What Volstead is to this era, this fellow is to rhythm. There is plenty of it in the least expected places. But he should be up on rhythm. His teacher, Mr. Lopez, is a master at it.

Then there's the pianist, Louis Bring by name. Last night he kept the keys hot and, besides, blossomed forth as a versatile fellow—singing songs and that sort of thing. But what we liked about him best was that he was able to yawn and still play a peppy tune. And when he glanced our direction and saw our meager dance steps we couldn't blame him for the yawning. Modesty, however, prevents a headline that we weren't the worst dancer.

LOPEZ HIMSELF

Lopez himself went in for the piano a big way. When he did the solo act the dancers just crowded around and stared and listened. An unassuming fellow is Mr. Lopez. Restrained, but efficient, that's him. He lifts jazz music from a music counter atmosphere to near-classical heights. But if you tell him that he will register a bashful smile and look at you as if to say, Don't be goofy.

Well, judge for yourself. He's to be in our town nine more days—or rather nights.

Goebel, Flying Ace, Studying Aviation

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Arthur C. Goebel, who won the Dole air race to Hawaii in 1927 and made the first West-to-East non-stop transcontinental flight in 1928, is studying aviation here. He is one of 17 Air Corps Reserve officers taking a special Army course, and made an 18-hour flight across the continent to get to school on time.

PANTHER STAR IS VERSATILE GRIDDER

WHEN HE ENTERED Pitt in 1928, big Jim MacMurdo was a center. He had played the snapper-back post at Ellwood City High School, and he continued in that position on the Panther freshman team for two or three games. Then the coaches decided he'd make a good tackle, and to tackle he went. The result was that when he advanced to the Blue and Gold's great varsity eleven last year, MacMurdo, a sophomore, became a regular tackle and a star.

Jim MacMurdo

But that didn't mean that he was to stay set. The shifting about of the hard-working gridder was not to stop there. When Joe Donchess finished his three years of varsity football in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena last January 1, and Pitt lost the playing services of that great all-America end, Dr. Sutherland and his staff looked about for a man good enough to fill his shoes. They found available several players who had been terminal reserves in 1929, and also a number of upcoming sophomores, but they finally decided on big Jim.

SO MACMURDO WAS drilled in spring practice as an end and there he is slated to perform this year. But even now he isn't settled. For after the regular fall training season got under way and the coaches had a chance to size up the various parts of the prospective 1930 machine, they concluded that it would be advisable to have a good center in readiness in case anything happened to Ralph Daugherty.

Again the choice fell upon MacMurdo, so big Jim once more is working out in the middle of the line at intervals, in addition to carrying on with his duties at end. And if one of the tackles should be hurt or fall down in his play, it wouldn't surprise the camp followers a bit to see Jim pinch-hitting in that spot, too. Pretty close to being a jack of all football trades is MacMurdo.

THE RABBIT BALL has made it a big season for new batting records in the major leagues. Hack Wilson has hung up the fifth new mark in beating the top figures for runs knocked in, set at 175 by Lou Gehrig in 1927.

The other records to be broken this year were those for home runs by an individual player in the National, for total homers in the National, total homers in the American, and total homers in the two leagues combined. Bill Terry may threaten the records for base hits in a season in the short time that remains. The marks are 254 in the National, set by Lefty O'Doul last year, and 257 in the American, set by George Sisler in 1920. Terry has made 240.

INCIDENTAL TO COUNCIL'S action in voting $1,000 to send the Verona Community Club baseball team to Cincinnati to play for the amateur championship, witnesses testified in describing local sandlot conditions that when the Homestead Grays played at Forbes Field President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Club, got 40 per cent of the total receipts. This brought an emphatic denial from President Dreyfuss. "The statement is not true in either particular," he said. "As they charge admission, the Homestead Grays naturally must pay a rental for the use of Forbes Field, but that rental is not 40 per cent. Neither does it go to me. It goes to the Pittsburgh Athletic Company. If the Grays care to announce the actual rental percentage they are at liberty to do so, but in the meantime I wish to say that the report of a 40 per cent charge is an exaggeration. It puts the Pittsburgh club in a false and unjust light as having gouged the independent clubs using its park. As a matter of fact, the rental the Pittsburgh club gets is hardly more than enough, on an average, to defray the cost of putting the park in order after a game. Sometimes it is not sufficient for even that."

THE HEAD OF the Pittsburgh club also denied a report from New York to the effect that arrangements had been completed for a series of games in Havana, starting on October 10, between the Giants and a team made up of members of the Pirates. He said this was the first information to reach him that any such series had been ever suggested.

There is a clause in the contract of every major league player prohibiting him from engaging in any athletic sport between playing seasons without the consent of the owners of his club. President Dreyfuss said none of the Pittsburgh players had asked for such permission and that therefore there could be no foundation for the report of a proposed barnstorming trip to Cuba.

IF JUSTO SUAREZ, the latest flatic sensation from the Argentine, isn't constructed of real championship stuff, the next test that he will be called upon to face will demonstrate the fact. It's to be a 10-round bout in New York on October 3 with Ray Miller.

Ray Miller

Though Miller is not a title holder he is such a dangerous customer that few of the top-notchers will have anything to do with him. He scored a technical knockout over Jimmy McLarnin in 1928, and while McLarnin has beaten him twice since that time the Jewish boy is still rated a formidable foeman for any battler in or near the championship circle.

BESIDES, MILLER WILL have to extend himself this time in order to get back in the good graces of New York fans, with whom he has stood none too well since his poor fight against McLarnin there last year. His safety-first tactics on that occasion have been charged to Jack Dempsey, who wanted Miller for a lightweight championship match with Sammy Mandell in Chicago and is said to have instructed Ray not to take any chances of being injured in the McLarnin go. So Miller will be out to square himself this time, and that's not going to make the contract of Suarez any easier. However, it doesn't follow that the Argentine battler won't be equal to it. He has looked like the real stuff so far, and if he comes through this match successfully there will be no doubt of his ability to give any of them a fight.

THE EASY VICTORY scored by Gallant Fox in the two-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup race at Belmont Park, his tenth win in 11 starts, boosted his total winnings to $328,165, closely approaching the world record of $333,000, held by the French Horse Ksar. One more chance appears to be all that the Fox needs to set new figures, and he's going to get it.

The original plan was to close Gallant Fox's racing career with the Jockey Club Cup event, but it is now probable that he will be sent to Kentucky for one more start in the Latonia Championship. If he wins that, the 3-year-old champion will be up around $350,000, and will be retired to William Woodward's B. r Stud with the record of

THOUSANDS VIE IN CONTEST

The big Pitt All-Time football contest is at an end.

With thousands of team selections entered, the judges today set to work to peruse them and decide on the winners which will be announced next Sunday, if they can get their work finished by that time.

Many tickets for the Pitt home games at the Stadium will go to the winners. Those who pick the same team as officially selected by James J. Long, veteran sports scribe, to be announced Sunday, will receive season tickets and others picking 10, nine, eight, seven or even six will share in the allotment of pasteboards.

Thousands of free ducats will be dispensed through the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and they will be scattered through all of the games in which Pitt will be seen.

Watch the sports columns for further announcements on the official team and the winning contestants, who promise to range well up into the thousands, so keen is their knowledge of the autumnal pastime and the heroes who have worn the Blue and Gold of old WUP and the University of Pittsburgh through the years.

Carnera Stops Gross in Fourth

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera has finished his conquest among American heavyweights with an average of 1000, and an extremely healthy bankroll.

The Italian giant last night nominated and elected Jack Gross, a Jewish heavy from Philadelphia, as knockout victim No. 23, accomplishing the business in less than four rounds. Carnera's board of managers said the bout was his last in America, and that he would sail for Italy, October 11.

In the 10-round semi-final, Dick Daniels, of Minneapolis, slugged out a decision victory over Al Fay, of Pittsburgh. Jack Kearns' heavyweight protege.

PIRATES TOP PHILLIES

By Special Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—After clinching the season's series with the Lowly Phils, winning 12 out of 21 games, here yesterday, the noble Buccaneers were ready to take on the Quakers again in the Baker Bowl this afternoon.

Remy Kremer was slated to face Ace Elliott.

In two big innings of yesterday's battle the Ensmen scored 12 runs to set down the locals, 12 to 5. The Phils gained a 4-0 lead in the early innings, scoring one in the first and three in the fourth frame. Pitcher Brame yielded 12 hits, but the Bucs got 16 safeties from the Phil hurlers, Phillips, Hansen, Collard and Benge.

Maureen Orcutt Battles Mrs. Fraser

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—(AP.)—With six players in the final eight the United States apparently has a strangle hold on the Canadian women's open golf championship, which swung into the quarter-final round today over the Laval-sur-de-Lac links.

In today's play, Maureen Orcutt, New York veteran, opposes Mrs. Alexa Sterling Fraser, Ottawa, one of the two remaining Canadians, in what promises to be the feature match. Ada MacKenzie, of Toronto, the Canadian champion is paired with Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., who was runner-up last year.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. Brooklyn today was still the capital of the baseball world with the last game of the Cardinal-Robin series scheduled for this afternoon. The fervor of the Flatbush fans was at a fever heat when the St. Louis athletes invaded the nest of the Robins on Tuesday. But, after two running defeats suffered by the home guards, it was felt there would be a slight letup in the fever today, although a full house was expected.

Burleigh Grimes made no secret of the fact that he would heckle the town which he so long represented. Grimes' bearing indicated he was a Jack Dempsey ready for the bell and Uncle Robbie said he would try to furnish plenty of opposition by delegating his powerful recruit, Ray Phelps, to the slab.

IN LAST FIGHT

Meantime, the Cubs were ready to do or die for dear old Rutgers. Although they are one and one-half games behind the Cardinals, the Chicago fighters figured they were still very much in the fight. The Cubs will wind up their series with the Giants this afternoon, and if they can take the rubber game of the series, they will be right in the middle of the flag fight, regardless of what happens in Brooklyn.

The Redbirds today acted the part of a club that will go down fighting. They are one full game ahead of the Robins and the rank and file of the Cardinals array felt they were much better than one full game in front inasmuch as the Robins, in second place, have two more games than have the Redbirds.

RACE CLOSE

On the wholey the race is so close the fans of the country are enraptured and there is nothing to indicate that the issue will be unsettled before the last couple of days of the competition.

While the Cardinals hold the upper hand at present, it should be remembered that they still must meet the Phillies and Buccos in nine battles after they finish with the Robins today. The four scraps in St. Louis between the Pirates and Redbirds are likely to be loaded with excitement.

The Cardinals were a great ball club yesterday as they came from behind to defeat the Robins 5 to 3. The Flatbush crew jumped into the lead in the first two rounds when they scored twice, but Chick Hafey made everything even in the fourth when he drove the ball into the left field seats with Sunny Jim Bottomley on the sacks.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18.—The way those teams have come back in the National League race after being counted out, I wouldn't be surprised now if Lipton won the yacht races in the next four heats. But he will need Gabby Street or Robbie at the helm.

Nick Altrock

I'll tell you how Babe Ruth fell into that batting slump. Babe suddenly remembered he didn't have a contract expiring this year. He is saving up those home runs for 1931.

Well, the Red Sox have only got to drop another doubleheader to clinch last place. And you can have faith in Massachusetts.

W. VA. HAS 'GREEN,' BUT POWERFUL ELEVEN

FULLBACK FIND IS KEY MAN OF ATTACK

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 18.—There are no weird chalk hieroglyphics on the blackboard in West Virginia's demi-tasse coaches' dressing room this year, so it may aptly be reported that the Mountaineers are anticipating a big year.

In years past, when the squad was not so promising, and the outlook indigo-hued, the little blackboard in Coach Ira Rodgers' quarters usually was covered with play diagrams, offensive formations, defensive set-ups and various other brands of gridiron shorthand. This year the only thing that mars the ebony surface is this—

BEAT PITT!

There are various reasons why West Virginia is expecting a good year. First, the Mountaineers boast their best fullback since the days of Gus Eckberg. Second, they have two fine punters in Bartrug and Sebulsky. Third, they are exceptionally well fixed for reserves. Fourth, they have a trio of halfbacks who possess both speed and weight.

NEW MATERIAL PROMISING

Ordinarily, with only eight lettermen on hand, there would be little or no shouting. West Virginia has eight lettermen back but so strong is the sophomore and holdover strength that some of these eight will find it very, very difficult to break into the starting lineup.

The Mountaineers are not bragging, but they are confident of going places and doing things this year in a manner in which they have not gone and done for a decade. And their confidence appears to be well founded.

Fifteen of the squad of 49 in training here this fall, prepping by the way, for the opening battle of the season tomorrow night with the Dukes at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, are backfield candidates. Only two of these are lettermen. Ten have seen at least one year's service on the varsity.

The lad who is the delight of Coach Rodgers and all those connected with or interested in the university is Leo Dotson, 184-pound fullback. Dotson is a fullback on the order of Tom Parkinson, Pitt's star of a year ago. He can smash a line like nobody's business. He is fast, possessing the speed that will make him a dangerous man once he has pierced the forward wall or penetrated the tackles. He has shown everything necessary to make a good fullback. Though only a sophomore, and lacking the experience gained by being under varsity fire, he has exhibited to the satisfaction of observers that he has a football head.

BUILD AROUND DOTSON

The backfield, therefore, is being constructed around Dotson. Flanking him at the halves are Ed Bartrug, one of the best (if not THE best) punters in the East; Johnny Doyle, a sturdy, hard-driving and speedy junior; Andy Brawley, another exceptionally good sophomore; Vental Waggoner, a junior speed merchant, and Bill Parriott, Morry Drobeck and Harry Marker.

Bartrug, because of his kicking and his experience, looms as a starting certainty. Doyle, if he goes as he can go, will be a fit running mate to lanky Eddie Brawley, 186 pounds of brawn, will step in if Doyle falters, and is being counted upon for heavy duty.

Jake Sebulsky, a hard driver and another crackerjack kicker, has been getting first call at quarterback. Haddock, Carden and White, all holdovers with a year's experience each, and Ragland, a peppery sophomore, will be called upon to spell Sebulsky.

Francis (Tarzan) Glenn, a two-year man, is the reserve fullback, and not to be discounted.

The starting backfield against the Dukes probably will be composed of Sebulsky at quarter; Bartrug and Doyle at the halves and Dotson at fullback.

MANY END CANDIDATES

A dozen candidates are scrapping it out for the wing-positions. Of the 12, Gene Joseph, a husky senior, and Wilbur Sortet, an equally husky and fast sophomore get first call. Joseph teamed up with Nels Lang on last year's varsity.

Sprouse, Currence and Hammer, the latter two juniors, Zirbs, Hogue, Karr, Baker and Hamilton and Stunkard, also holdovers, complete the list of wingmen.

Gigantic Larry Beall, tipping the beam at 210, and either Louis Ferrera or Frank Lough have the rail positions in the race for the tackle jobs. Beall is a sure shot, with the other two fighting it out for the other job. Paul Martin, a junior, Mackey, Arnold, Seltweitzer (don't count him out) Mason and McDermott are on the tackle reserve list.

Capt. Red Gordon, a strong defensive player, and either Ike Lewis or Leland Brown will fit in at the guards. Brown, who played some fine football last year, is being groomed for the starting job. Pfalsgraff, Fizer, Coperman, Wamsley and Gwynne are other candidates for the guard spots.

Lanky Lawrence Plaster understudy last year to Clint Carrico, is outstanding among the quintet of center candidates. Potter, a senior, who has yet to win a letter; White, a junior; Mentzer and Schwartzwalder, sophomores, compose the reserve pivot material.

The schedule calls for some tall traveling. Opening in Pittsburgh tomorrow against the Dukes, the Mountaineers return home for games with West Virginia Wesleyan and with Pitt on successive Saturdays. The appearance of the Panthers in Morgantown is the first in the gridiron history of the old rivals.

On October 11, Wash-Lee will be engaged at Charleston. The next week, the Mountaineers go to Detroit for a game with Detroit U. Georgetown will be met in Washington, D. C., in a night game on October 24, and Fordham is host to the locals at the Polo Grounds, New York, on November 1.

November 8, Kansas State appears in Morgantown. November 22, Wash-Jeff pays its annual visit and the season closes with the intersectional battle with Oregon State at Soldier's Field, Chicago, on Thanksgiving.

Gold jerseys with blue rosin pads, gold and blue sox and white helmets form the satorial rig-up of the team. Another of Jack Shea's creations.

Ira Errett Rodgers is head coach, and is assisted by Walter (Red) Mahan, Clinton Carrico, Nelson Lang, Steve Harrick and Marshall (Little Sleepy Glenn. The freshman squad is being handled by Trusty Tallman, Eddie Vacheresse and Dutch Meisel.

Harry Adam Stansbury is still graduate manager and is the same old Harry. Larry Stoups, the titian-haired (what there is of it) director of publicity and Stansbury's right-hand man, also is very much on the job, assisted by competent Jimmy Harris and Student Manager Robert Stork.

SAYLOR KNOCKED OUT BY BABY JOE GANS

NEGRO SCORES SPEEDY WIN AT BOWL

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

It required just a little more than two rounds for Baby Joe Gans terrific straight-punching Negro junior-welterweight of California to knock out the veteran Young Saylor of Charleroi in the main bout at the Meyers Bowl North Braddock last night.

Saylor taking the bout on short notice did a realistic fadeout to the tune of a full count after 55 seconds of the third round when it appeared he was acting wisely to avoid further severe punishment but really could have got up and continued the battling if he had felt so inclined.

Referee Al Grayber pushed away Baby Joe who sought to assist Saylor to his corner and tucked Saylor's body by the waist in such a manner as to induce the flow of blood to his head and crept away the robwens before letting him go to his handlers.

BOUT IS ONESIDED

There was nothing to the bout but Gans. Saylor obviously was not in his best fighting condition nor was he minus a wholesome respect for his justly highly-rated foe. They started off tamely in the opening round with Gans feeling his way until past the halfway mark when he began to shoot hard lefts to the body and straight rights to the head. He did not connect clean with the latter but seemed to be content to find the range gradually.

Starting off the second round slowly, Gans finally got down to work and blazed away with some more of those straight rights only now they had plenty of zip behind them. After a series had fallen a bit short he finally got one over flush and Saylor went down to one knee badly dazed, started to get up and then switched and took the count of nine on the other knee with his head buried in his arms. Gans pursued him as he arose and brought down his guard with body blows and then dropped his man again along the ropes in a neutral corner where Saylor took another nine count to get up a few moments before the bell.

The final round was short and sweet. Gans went out for the kill and, after a few tentative shots, connected with another right to the jaw that caused Saylor's knees to buckle. As Saylor sagged forward, another right and a left lodged almost simultaneously against his jaw and he was going down heavily when Gans finished the job with a right uppercut. Saylor was not out cold, but he had had enough and as he rolled over to call it a night no one in the crowd uttered a word of protest.

END COMES QUICKLY

Saylor weighed 152½ pounds and Gans 145. Saylor who was signed on Monday to act as a substitute for Harry (Kid) Brown of Philadelphia against Gans was kept in doubt until reweighing time at 3 p. m. yesterday as to whether he or Brown would oppose Gans. At that time the boxing commission doctor again failed to pass Brown because of a collection of boils on one of his shoulders and Saylor was definitely named to go in there and do the best he could on short notice. It is no reflection on his ability that he didn't do any better for Gans is one of the best punchers in any class and looked much better than the night he floored Rudy Ceder 14 times but failed to knock him out, in their bout in the rain at the Bridgeville Speedway last summer.

GOLD BEATS BLACK BILL

Marty Gold, Philadelphia veteran, was too clever for Black Bill, of Havana and New York, in the other half of the double windup and won the referee's decision when the judges disagreed. Judge Red Robinson voting for a draw. Gold, who scaled 115½ pounds against 115 for Black Bill, tired toward the finish but had piled up a big early lead.

Mose Butch, of Oakland, 122½, was too rugged for Patsy Severo of Meadville, 122¾, in the six-round second bout and handily won the decision. Patsy put up a good battle, however, after being floored for a count of five in the first round by his southpaw opponent.

Steve Senich, of Homestead, 125¼, won by a technical knockout over Joe Gaudy, of McKeesport, 128¼, in the fifth round of the opener when Referee Joe Keally stopped the battle because of a badly cut eye.

FREEMAN INTRODUCED

Tommy Freeman, the new welterweight champion, was introduced after the first bout and received a good hand from the small crowd. Whether or not the Bowl will put on its scheduled final show next Monday night was in doubt last night. Eddie Anderson and Johnny Farr have been tentatively matched for the occasion but the management may decide that last night's billing was its final fling until next spring.

Al Grayber and Joe Keally alternated as referees and judges with Red Robinson sitting in the other judge's chair. The timers were Tommy Grant and Max Zeugschmidt. Ray Eberle did the announcing.

"IT'S GOING UP!" UP! UP!

THE call for this newest gasoline is going up-up-up every day. Filling stations that have changed to Mobilgas are selling more gallons than they ever sold before.

Read these facts, and it won't be hard to figure out the reason.

1. Cars and their motors have changed.
2. Modern motors need a modern gasoline.
3. Mobilgas, by the makers of Mobiloil, is modernized by Vacuum's process of distillation for the car you drive today.
4. Mobilgas is anti-knock, clean and economical, and it doesn't cost any more than regular gasoline.

That's the basis on which we ask you to switch for a week to this newest, fastest-growing gasoline and let your car decide.

SUCCESSFUL RELIABLE LONG ESTABLISHED

DUKES BOAST STRONG ELEVEN

W. VA. TO FACE LAYDENMEN TOMORROW

The familiar boom of the pigskin begins its annual call in these parts tomorrow night when the mighty Mountaineers of West Virginia University invade Forbes Field against the undefeated Night Riders of Duquesne University, with probably the strongest West Virginia squad in 10 years. The kickoff under the floodlights is scheduled for 8:45 o'clock.

Early arrivals at Forbes Field will have an opportunity to witness the 1930 Mountaineers in action, as Coach Ira Rodgers plans to give his men a long workout before game time in order to thoroughly accustom them to the artificial illumination. A light backfield and a comparatively light line will start tomorrow night for the Mountaineers, according to word from Morgantown.

Two colorful university bands will play at the season opener tomorrow, since the Blue Cadet Band of West Virginia, numbering 60 pieces, will be on hand, together with the Duquesne 50-piece combination, resplendent in new blue uniforms with red silk-lined capes and sporty white spats. A record crowd is assured and 5,000 seats in a single block have been taken by West Virginia supporters from Morgantown.

RODGERS SILENT

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 18.—After two days of general switching about of the West Virginia University lineup, the general conclusion was reached here this morning that Head Coach Ira Rodgers is not going to depend upon 11 men in the opening game with Duquesne University at Forbes Field tomorrow night, but rather on at least 22 men. No indication of the starting lineup was given in last night's drill, and the Mountaineerhead coach was silent concerning his possible choices this morning.

This evening and again tonight, the Mountaineers will hold drills, to conclude with a workout under an improvised set of floodlights.

There will doubtless be a heavy sprinkling of sophomores in the West Virginia lineup, with Wilbur Sortet and Billy Karr, ends; Fred Schweitzer, Frank Lough and Loyall Mackey, tackles; Floyd Schwartzwalder, center; Leo Dotson, fullback, and Andy Brawley and Bill Parriott, halfbacks, as the most likely to see service. Sortet, Dotson and Parriott are considered almost certain starters.

PITT SCRIMMAGES

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 18.—After two sessions of light work scrimmage was resumed today in the football camp of the Pitt Panthers and those players who are still uncertain about being starters against Waynesburg a week from Saturday welcomed its renewal.

The Panthers are due to break camp tomorrow and it is likely there will be another scrimmage session then and still another one in Pittsburgh Saturday morning.

The coaching staff has been looking at halfbacks, fullbacks and guards for more than two weeks and still are undecided who to honor with the jobs.

There are at least two men being considered for each of the open spots in the lineup—halfback, fullback and guard.

Josh Williams will be one of the halfbacks and Hart Morris will be one of the guards, but that is as far as the picking has gone.

Yesterday was a light day although both morning and afternoon sessions were extended. There was lots of kicking and passing drills and three teams ran through all the plays that have been given the squad since it came to camp.

After several days of midsummer weather the camp has cooled off and the football men are hard put to find enough warm clothes for the cool nights.

TECH REHEARSES

A complete rehearsal of the plays that will be used against the University of Buffalo in the opening game of the season a week from next Saturday was planned for the Carnegie Tech varsity squad in morning and afternoon workouts today.

Most of the cripples were to be given permission to practice lightly today, and there was a chance that Murray Armentrout, who was in uniform yesterday for the first time in two weeks, would alternate with Dutch Eyth at left halfback on the team that is generally regarded as the first club.

Although Eyth is almost certain to start the Buffalo encounter, no experienced substitute will be available for him unless Armentrout regains his form quickly. John Gravemo, the flashy sophomore halfback, is still unable to even run through signals, and it is hardly likely that the coaches will risk using him against Buffalo.

Gravemo is a midget compared to Armentrout, and the big fellow is better able to stand the bumps of a hard game if any man who is not absolutely sound physically must be used.

There was a bit of dummy scrimmage yesterday, and two varsity aggregations ran through their formations with a snap and vigor that has been missing for about a week.

Cagle to Coach Mississippi Aggies

STARKVILLE, Miss., Sept. 18.—(AP.)—C. R. Noble, head football coach and athletic director at Mississippi A. and M. College, has relinquished football coaching duties and named Christian Keener (Red) Cagle, famous star of the Army, to succeed him as head coach. Noble will devote his entire time to the directorship of athletics.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK, MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

As soon as the burial rites over the lifeless Brotherhood ended, the National League owners went into a huddle, and, deciding to spare the rod with the spoiled children of baseball, welcomed them back in the fold.

Connie Mack

As a sop for the Brotherhood debacle, some of the players even had their salaries raised. The baseball powers awarded me to Pittsburgh and I reported there in the spring of 1891.

Ed Hanlon, who had also been involved in the luckless players' circuit, was made manager of the Pirates and he started things off in royal style by taking us to St. Augustine, Fla., on a training trip that was longer and more pretentious than Red Sullivan's two-week sojourn in the pair of shacks in Jacksonville in 1888.

Hanlon had very little good material to work with, but he was a shrewd and competent manager. In fact, I always considered him one of the most resourceful and able commanders of baseball history.

The season of 1891 turned out to be a financial flop, one of the worst the National League ever had. Baseball seemed to feel repercussions of the Brotherhood fight and the public stayed away from the games, apparently feeling that they would wait until the sport was more thoroughly stabilized.

The owners had other ideas before the season began. They felt that with peace restored in baseball they were to have a prosperous season and that is one reason they were so liberal with salaries.

Nearly every club lost money and the owners were desperate, for they had two lean years in succession. The Pirates wound up in last place, which they reached the very last day of the season.

Ned Hanlon was deposed as manager, although no leader could have done any better with the material he had on hand.

LEAGUE EXPANDS

In 1892, the National League expanded into a 12-club circuit by adding Baltimore and Washington in the East and St. Louis and Louisville in the West.

It then was possible for them to take over many players of the American Association, the rival major league, which had been ruined by the Brotherhood war after eight prosperous seasons.

We found a new manager in the Steel City that spring in the person of Tommy Burns, the old White Stockings third baseman. He did not give satisfaction and was succeeded by Al Buckenberger during the race.

Buckenberger made a better showing and the Pirates finished sixth in the 12-club league. That was first division, anyway.

At the close of the 1892 season, officials of the club called 12 players, including myself, into the office. Solemnly we waited and wondered what was up.

"Now see here," declared the spokesman in a strong voice, "you know what we have been up against for two years. We haven't a dollar in our treasury and will have to go into our pockets to start the next season off. I have contracts here for all of you calling for $2,400 for 1893. Any player who does not sign for $2,400 before leaving for home will get one for $2,100 in the spring."

TAKE SALARY CUT

We 12 players realized that the statement did not depart from truth and, accordingly, made a dive to a desk for pens. I think a couple were knocked down in this football rush. Everyone of the 12 duly signed.

This was the first inkling we players had of the new policy of the National League, which ruled that no salaries above $2,400 would be paid to any player, no matter if he were a .400 per cent hitter or a pitcher who could win 25 games. This $2,400 limit was religiously observed almost up to the twentieth century.

Only the most gifted players could aspire to the $2,400 category. Others received less and incoming rookies often were paid as little as $800 a season to start.

In a few days, I went home to East Brookfield wondering if the bottom had dropped out of baseball. I was now getting the highest salary any National League club could offer, yet this was several hundred dollars under my Washington salary.

That winter a certain player wrote me a letter declaring that because of the nose dive in salaries he was thinking of quitting.

I replied that my only fear was that the game would quit.

The season of 1893 with Buckenberger still in the managerial saddle was the best the Pirates ever had up to that time. For the first time in the history of the franchise the club finished in second place and Pittsburgh fans were wild with delight.

INJURY COSTS PENNANT

The team gave Frank Selee's powerful Boston club, which won the flag, a stern fight all the way to the finish.

I never will forget 1893 because it was in that year that I received my first serious injury on the ball field, so serious that it shortened my playing days.

It was in mid-season and we were playing what we call nowadays a "crucial" series with Boston, for everybody agreed that the championship would go to Boston or Pittsburgh.

Therefore the combatants on both sides were expending every energy, stretching every muscle to win. The series was played in Boston.

During this game, Boston had runners on third and first and none was out. Herman Long, a brilliant player, who could fairly skim over the paths, was on third. Frank Selee, the Boston manager, signed for the double steal. Long stood still as the Boston runner on first bolted ahead. Once I hurled the ball for second, Long took sincere strides for the plate.

Bierbauer, our second baseman, caught my throw and snapped it back to me with all his might. We didn't wear shinguards in those days or I would have added five more years of playing life to my career.

Bierbauer's throw was inside a bit and Long came into me feet first as fast as a motor truck. His spikes hit my left leg between the knee and ankle. I was carried off the field with a fractured ankle and was hurt and could not resume his place at short for three weeks.

Manager Buckenberger told me that the Pirates would have won the pennant if I had not been hurt.

By TOM BIRKS.

All of the soccer leagues in the district will swing into action over the week-end. The Central has its schedule for the Saturday fans while the Mon-Yough, Keystone and Panhandle loops do their stuff on Sunday in their opening games.

In the Keystone League Cecil goes to Morgan. This battle should attract a large crowd. Houston will meet Castle Shannon at Grove Station. Dunlevy meets Bridgeville and Primrose hooks up with Andy Savage's Green and Gold club at Heidelberg.

One game will be played in the Panhandle League Saturday. Bridgemont will make the trip to Beading, which always plays Saturday soccer. The Sunday schedule finds Castle Shannon at Glendale—this game will start at 1:30 p. m. Heidelberg Juniors go to Mollenaur. Bower Hill goes to Millers Run meeting Gladden and Coverdale crosses the Library road to meet Herring.

In the Mon-Yough League Pitz Henry plays Manown. This will be the first game for Manown in many years. Dunlevy meets Donora. Mather hooks up with Elizabeth. Herminie goes to Clarksville and Gallatin meets Gratztown on the banks of the Youghiogheny River.

The District League on Saturday finds the Pierpont Motors Club, champion last season, starting in defense of its title. The Motors battles the Green and White clan Celtic eleven and it should be a great game. Mesta Machine goes to Sons of St. George at Garfield Park. Crafton Heights travels to the Pittsburgh Rovers, and Clan Douglas meets the Union Switch and Signal.

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 16.

Sloan, of Nebraska, is called upon for a punt on his own five-yard line when Perkins, of Texas, breaks through the line and blocks the punt before it crosses the line of scrimmage. The ball bounces back of the goal line where Morgan, of Nebraska, falls on it.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

The referee rules that a safety has been made and Texas is awarded two points. The ball goes to Nebraska to be put into play by a free kick at any point on its 20-yard line or back of it. On such a free kick, Texas is restrained exactly the same as if a fair catch had been made.

having won more money during his brilliant career than any other race horse in history.

TAKING ADVANTAGE OF the Pirates' open date in the East tomorrow, Captain Pie Traynor and Lloyd Waner will go to Baltimore for final consultations with the specialists who treated them for their respective optical and internal ailments.

Though both players improved rapidly after the treatments, the doctors asked that they report back near the close of the season for final examinations and instructions that are expected to assure their being in perfect condition for the pennant race in 1931.

Willie Hoppe

VETERAN BILLIARD FANS of the Pittsburgh district will recall the days when Willie Hoppe's father brought Willie and another son, Frank, to this city, among other places, on exhibition tours. Willie was a kid in knickerbockers then, and had to stand on a box at times to make his shots. But from a boy wonder he rose to the balk-line championship of the world, a title which he held longer than any other cueist who ever owned it. That doesn't seem to have been so very long ago, but the flight of the years is brought forcibly to mind by an announcement that another Hoppe generation is swinging into the billiard parade. Willie's own son, Willie, Jr., is now coming up, and he is blossoming out as a cueist under the tutelage of his father, just as dad did under the coaching of grandpa. Willie, Sr., is 44 and the boy is 13. The latter is not as far advanced as his father was at the same age, but he has decided to adopt billiards as a career and his father says he is coming along. "It took me some time to get young Bill interested in billiards," says Willie, Sr., but once he got the stroke he was all for the game. I expect to take him in charge from now on, and don't be surprised if you see him in some important matches within two years."

THE CARDINALS' SECOND successive victory over the Robins, with Andy High's pinch-hitting again playing a big part, and which stretched the Redbirds' lead to a full game, gave the National League's wild flag race a St. Louis flavor for the time being. But it has had other flavors before and they didn't last, so the present situation is not to be accepted as definitely indicating anything.

If the Cards can make a clean sweep of the Flatbush series by copping the final number today they will have a decided advantage, particularly if the Cubs lose, but if the Robins grab the closing bout at the Bruins win in New York the standing tonight will read like this: St. Louis, .579; Brooklyn, .578; Chicago, .575. And it will still be anybody's race. To pitch the Cards to a third straight win over the Robins this afternoon Burleigh Grimes will have to do something that has not been done to date, as Ray Phelps, who is to oppose him on the mound, has not lost a game on his club's home grounds this season.

MANY ENTRIES FOR HARVARD CUP PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Early entries for the eighth annual Harvard Cup interscholastic tennis tourney indicate that representation in the competition will be widely distributed throughout various districts of the county. With the start of hostilities still three days distant, eight schools are even now listed for action, these institutions including Pitcairn High School, Bellevue High School, the University School, Union High School of Turtle Creek, Clairton High School, South Hills High School, Schenley High School and Sewickley High School.

Two of the above-named schools are already possessors of legs on the handsome Crimson flagon. Paul Barber having landed the honor for Sewickley in 1925 and Bob Lampus having taken it to Bellevue two years later. The bowl is now in the custody of Peabody High School, for which Jack Redmond, southpaw ace and city high schools champion, landed it in 1929.

CARDINALS WIN, IMPROVE LEAD

the right field screen in the home half of the fourth and the Robins were out in front until the eighth, when the Redbirds evened the count again. Sparky Adams played a big part in this run by hitting a double off Wallie Gilbert's glove, with Ray Blades on first. Blades went to third on the drive and he scored a moment later on Frisch's line sacrifice to Boone.

Andy High was the big hero of the winning ninth. Andy was sent in to hit for Southpaw Al Grabowski, with runners on second and first and two out. The dependable little veteran drove a double against the rightfield wall to score the two Redbirds and then Jim Lindsay and Earl Smith went to work on three Robins in the ninth. Lindsay retired three Robins in a row and the battle was over.

The second battle of the two leaders was full of championship plays. Glenn Wright and Eddie Moore, the two former Pirates in the Brooklyn lineup, won the plaudits of the throng by their great fielding, while Charley Gelbert stepped out like a star for the invaders.

HOW THEY STAND

The leaders' standing this morning was:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games Behind	To play
St. Louis	84	60	.583		10
Brooklyn	84	62	.575	1	8
Chicago	83	62	.572	1½	9
New York	79	66	.545	5½	9

Here's how they'll stand tonight, win or lose:

	Win	Lose
St. Louis	.586	.579
Brooklyn	.578	.574
Chicago	.575	.568
New York	.548	.541

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

Raquel Almost Drowns and Is Saved by Stranger

CHAPTER LVI

Greta was back in a few minutes. Bubbling with anticipation for the evening.

"I was right," she said. "One of my little playmates from the Long Island set. Not much money, but plenty of fun. He wants to drag us over to the Casino tonight. Did I say no?"

"I suppose you didn't," laughed Raquel. "But you must say No for me. I'm going to get my beauty sleep."

"Luddy Miss don't tell me you've discovered a crow's-foot on your pearly cheek."

"I haven't yet. But I may at any moment if I try to keep your pace."

"I know." Greta's wise eyes slanted their accusation. "You're putting on the old high hat. You don't think it's proper, rushing off so sudden like. But I tell you I know that bimbo. We've been on many a riot together. And he's what you call the right people."

"Some other time, Greta," said Raquel with finality.

Trunks Arrive

When Raquel went to the window in the morning to breathe deep of air with a tang of salt in it, the sunshine was still thin pale gold. It was early, she knew. She had not heard Greta come in from the Casino. The door of Greta's room was ajar. Her evening bag was tossed on the living-room table along with a ruin of tattered orchids.

When Raquel opened the outer door to a ring she found her own pert French maid, chirping volubly, her arms laden with handboxes and bundles.

"I have ride all night with the trunks," she said, fluttering about the room in an attempt to restore order.

"Monsieur send us both by motor transport. I have kept my eyes on your trunks, Miss Greta's also."

A hotel porter brought in the trunks, and was not overly quiet in handling them.

"My mother's apron strings!" groaned Greta from behind the partially open door. "Why didn't they tell us they were tearing down the building?"

"I'm sorry, dear," Raquel called. "It's the trunks. I should have closed your door."

"Trunks! Then the air mail must be in."

"Don't you want to get up and come for a dip?"

"Ouch! My head's splitting. Those croupiers took me for a ride."

"Then you lost." Sympathetically from Raquel.

"No, my boy friend did. All I had to do with it was to pick the wrong numbers."

From a selection of bathing finery, much of which would not withstand the dampness of a spring shower, much less an ocean surf, Raquel and Greta chose two practical outfits.

When they reached the deserted beach the tide was far out. Raquel sped across the sand to meet it. Greta, limping and groaning, followed.

Raquel was already far out, splashing and floundering in the water like a frolicsome puppy.

When they came in the beach had begun to take on a touch of life. Nurses with their charges were preparing to build forts and towers of sand that later would be destroyed by the incoming tide.

"The crowd won't be down for hours," said Greta. "It's a social error to be seen on the beach before 11."

Thinks of Parents

They stretched, full-length, on the warm white sand. Greta dozed. Raquel watched the tide creep across the sands.

Out there somewhere, at the other edge of this dazzling ocean was another ocean. A desert ocean.

In the midst of the desert ocean a 'dobe shack huddled crazily, its crumbling ochre walls baking in the cruel blaze of the sun. At the back of the shack in the shadow of a drab woman with hopeless eyes pounded meal for endless piles of leathery cakes. Her mother, Lucy—preparing tortillas. A great bull of a man swaggered through the dust in front of the shack. Pancho, bound for his morning cup at Keno Pete's. Somewhere in the shack a small boy with wistful, frightened eyes covered, waiting for the echo of the man's footsteps to die away.

Was she Raquel Rojos really here on the shores of France? With beauty, money, luxury at her command? Had she fled the desert ocean more than two years ago, riding through its starlit stillness toward—this? Or was it yesterday?

Was the dobe hut in the desert ocean a mirage? Or would she wake up suddenly with Pancho roaring for his black coffee? Find that this dazzling blue ocean, Greta, the children over there with their nurses, the villas nestling under the hill, were creatures of phantasy?

She had a sudden notion she must feel of the blue ocean, test its reality. She rose without waking Greta. Ran forward eagerly to meet the gently curling surf.

Yes, this was a real ocean. A frenzy of want to know its substance overtook her. She wanted it to be rough with her, to toss her about, to frolic with her. She fought it back, throwing out her arms, struggling with it.

Saved From Drowning

Until in an instant frenzy became panic. Something had gripped her in the back, just between the shoulders. Was tearing at her bathing suit as if to wrench it from her. The salt water was in her eyes, blinding her. In her throat, choking her.

Her struggle now was in earnest. She strove desperately to throw off the grip at her back. It but held the tighter.

She tried to cry out. A rush of sea-water swept into her nose—into her very lungs, it seemed.

She was being towed, swiftly now, by that grip at her back. Out to sea? She could not tell.

Alphonse. A black velvet hat with white paradise feathers in a window. Hundreds of toy tin horns outside a great station, tooting, screaming. Lucy—mother—oh, Lucy—

It might have been eons afterward that the waxen lids of Raquel Rojos fluttered ever so slightly, then opened slowly. Her mind had not yet thrown off the terror of her struggle with the sea. She only knew that she was looking straight into the troubled gray eyes of a man who leaned over her. There was a glint in his hair where the sun struck it.

"She has regained consciousness," the man said. "She will be all right in a few minutes."

The man leaned closer. She felt a pressure on her chest. A steady bearing down that was painful. She wanted to cry out. Only a faint moan of protest escaped her. A little stream of salt water trickled out over her lips.

"Lie still, please," the man ordered crisply, anticipating her effort to rise was not worth her in the strange world to which she had come. "I'll raise you when it is time."

She closed her eyes. She had discovered that, after all, the effort to rise was not worth making. An ecstasy came over her. The man with the gray eyes—his voice was like a bow drawn across the strings of her soul. He would push away the sea.

Fay King Presents 'Tough Guy' Type with Heart of Gold as Her Ideal

HIS HEART IS A LOT MORE TENDER THAN HIS FACE
FAY KING
A TOUGH MUGG— BUT A FINE GUY!
YOU'RE TOO NICE A KID KATE, TO BE RUNNING AROUND WITH THAT BUNCH OF LOW-LIFERS IN HIGH-HATS

By FAY KING

My favorite among men has always been a guy who looks tough, but isn't.

He is a great influence for good in this world.

Young boys are inclined to admire tough guys and imitate them.

When they meet a fellow of brawn and forbidding countenance, but with a gallantry of heart and mind, they learn lessons in decency and kindliness that they would resent as "sissified preachments" from anyone less interesting to them.

Many a tough-looking fellow, standing on a curb with his pals, has a cleaner mind and finer ideals than you will meet with in fashionable circles where the wit is vile and the moral code even worse.

Many a tough-looking guy is neither a booze hound nor a chaser.

The Hasbroucks Promise to Aid Madge

Mrs. Hasbrouck looked up at me with smiling attention as I came back into the sitting room where she had said she would wait for me. Something in her look told me that she had shrewdly guessed my request for a little chat had something unusual in it, but there was also a subtle comforting something in her attitude which promised hearty co-operation in anything I wished to do.

"May I close the door?" I asked. "I have something to say which I do not wish overheard."

Her husband, a massive six-footer with a face as shrewd and kindly as his wife's, rose abruptly from the corner table, where he was engaged in a game of Canfield, but I made a protesting gesture.

"I don't mean you, Mr. Hasbrouck. I said. "I shall need your help also."

He crossed the room and pulled a comfortable big chair opposite to his wife, and put me into it.

"You can talk better sitting down," he said, with an infectious, slow grin as he drew his chair close to us.

"I won't keep you long," I returned, "and I am glad that you know we are friends of your neighbors, the Cosgroves, for I am going to ask something rather odd of you."

"Don't be bashful," Mr. Hasbrouck boomed, as I hesitated. "If you're running short, we'll be your bankers until you get back home."

"Keep quiet, Egbert," his wife said a bit tartly, "and let Mrs. Graham have a chance to tell what it is she wants. I guess she knows that—whatever it is, we'll do it if it's a possible thing."

"I am sure of that, thank you both," I said. "And I have plenty of money with me. It's a bit more complicated than that, and I must ask you not to speak of what I am going to tell you."

I did not wait for a specific promise, but hurried on, keeping my voice so low that I was sure no possible eavesdropper outside could hear it.

"Mr. and Mrs. Underwood were connected with the Government secret service during the war," I began, "and they still are often called upon to aid in special cases. On the way up here Mr. Underwood discovered that a man in a black roadster was trailing our car, but by a ruse he threw him off, but a few miles after we started from New York."

Mr. Hasbrouck brought his clenched fist down upon his knee. His wife leaned forward in her chair, her eyes sparkling.

"A black roadster!" they exclaimed with one voice.

"Yes," I answered, quickly, and I have reason to think that the man is now lodged here. Would you mind describing him to me."

"Sort of undersized fellow," Mr. Hasbrouck began, but his wife interrupted him summarily.

"Pa calls anybody less than six feet undersized," she said, with a glance at her big husband, which, though it was connubially impatient, still held distinct admiration. "This man is really above medium height, although not much, stocky, with gravish hair that used to be brown—oh, yes, and big feet—or big shoes—I don't know which."

"That's the man," I said, "and my niece saw someone who looked like that standing on the little hillock opposite our room, and watching her through a pair of field glasses."

Mr. Hasbrouck jumped to his feet with his genial face darkened.

"The dirty son of a gun!" he exclaimed. "I'll go up and drag him out of bed this minute, and——"

His wife flashed a glance at me, and deftly caught at his coat as he pushed past her.

"You'll sit right down here and cool off," she said, "until you find out what it is Mrs. Graham wants us to do."

"But," Mr. Hasbrouck protested, plainly on the warpath, and I hastened my explanation.

"Please, Mr. Hasbrouck," I said, "I am very grateful for your partisanship, but above all things, I do not want the man roused if there is any chance of his going to sleep. What time did he ask to be called in the morning?"

"Six o'clock, at first," my big host rejoined, "but when he found out the garage didn't open till 7:30, he said 7."

"Then," I said, "is it possible for us to leave at four, and to be sure that he will not follow us if he should happen to waken and hear us go?"

Mr. Hasbrouck rose from his chair and flexed his powerful arms. Then he grinned down at me.

"If Ma can get your breakfast," he said with a sly look at his wife, "I'll guarantee the fellow won't leave the premises till seven."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, September

A fairly active and successful state of affairs may be read from the leading lunar transits governing this day. It is possible that there may be a minor change or journey, not entirely desirable and attended by small anxieties, delays or disappointments. But all matters pertaining to writings or of a speculative nature in business or finances are under benignant sway and should be lively.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly progressive year, with all that relates to writings or publishings or in the nature of a speculative enterprise bringing some agreeable returns. However, there may be small worries and disappointments as well as an unwelcome change or journey.

A child born on this day should be clever and versatile and may lean toward literature or kindred occupations. The child may be fond of speculation, of roaming and perhaps may be quite unstable or changeable.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

A Pre-View of Matrimony

The best way to get a line on a man, before you let him go to the expense of buying a wedding-ring, is to get a line on his MOTHER.

If she is the kind who regards her darling as "Mother's Little Sweetheart," and treats him like the Heir to the Throne, you may be sure that any girl who marries him, will have her work cut out for her, and will spend most of her days swinging incense and taking snubs and criticism.

* * *

If the Boy Friend's mother is the meek sort, who only smiles deprecatingly, when he growls at her or grouches around the house, then his wife will find that she will either have to take his peevishness in the same humble spirit or take her troubles to a lawyer.

If his mother goes around picking up his things after him, brings him his cough medicine, and takes the blame when he can't find his tennis shoes or his favorite sweater, then you, too, are going to have a "grown up baby" on your hands to coddle and wait on.

If she is the sort who defends weakness or a touch of temper; who calls up his office and makes excuses for him, when he wakes up with a headache; and who permits him to loll around in the most comfortable chair in the room while she occupies a foot-stool, take it from me, YOU are going to have to be the man of the family. For he will never take a serious responsibility on his fair young shoulders.

If she is the kind who keeps his dinner hot for him, when he strolls in two hours late, stuffs him with rich and tempting foods, and encourages him to commit slow suicide via his palate, you are going to have either a dyspeptic or gourmet on your hands, and to be a human sacrifice on the altar of his stomach.

But, if she is that rare sort of mother, who regards her son as a responsible human being instead of as a pet or a potentate; who expects him to wait on himself, find his own things, to jump up when she enters the room and give her the padded arm-chair, and to get out and hustle to the tune of an alarm clock every morning, you have nine chances out of ten of getting a real MAN when you marry him.

Because a wife usually steps right into a mother's shoes. And, if Mother was willing to walk around on tacks or eggshells, in order to make Sonny's youth a path of velvet, the girl he marries will merely take over that job.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Are All the "Moderns" Naughty? Or Can a Girl Rouge and Lipstick and Still Be Nice?

Hold everything! Here comes Tillie with the low down on the Modern girl.

Tillie is an Old-Fashioned Miss. Just another sweet Sunbonnet Sue . . . or maybe a picture out of Godey's Ladies' Book. She has spent 22 years being a Modest Violet . . . downcast eye . . . invisible knee . . . no rouge . . . no lipstick . . . no powder to take the curse off a shiny nose . . . get the picture?

Flirt? Not she. Throw the boys a skittish glance? Heaven forbid! Such "cheap boldness" is not for her!

And has an appreciative world riz up and clasped her to its bosom? Not so you could notice it! In fact the world has bowled blithely on its way, giving her nary a tumble.

So today she's busting into print with a record peeve, "Dear Sally Martin:

"What are the girls of today coming to, do you think? Nothing, in my estimation, but a lot of boldness and cheap flirting.

"I think that the way modern girls dress, and the brazen plays they make to attract men, are simply disgusting. A girl should be modest, and wait for the men to notice her. It's the only decent thing to do. But such a nice, quiet girl hasn't a chance when one of these "go-get-'em" flappers is around.

"I am 22, and you just can't imagine the flashy, noticeable clothes, and the open flirting, that I've seen since I went to work downtown. It makes me sick.

"I am determined that I will never lower my ideals by acting and dressing that way. I want people to care for me for myself, and for my good character, not because I've put on a lot of bogus "lure" out of a bottle. It makes me shrink every time I think of the way some girls wear knee-length skirts, in spite of the fact that sensible people are trying to bring back the modest long ones that decent people used to wear. And it makes me shrink with shame, too, to see them brazenly making eyes at every good looking man they see . . . or inviting him to make up to them, by giggling and skittering around like geese.

"Personally, I never could be that way, even if I were temporarily crazy enough to want to. I am too fine and sensitive to lower my dignity to attract any man. So far as men are concerned, I've never seen one that I would care to waste my time on anyway. Maybe I will, someday. But if he doesn't see me without me waving a flag in front of him, it will be just too bad. Because I'll never lower myself to flirt.

"I think flirting is cheap, and I could never be so forward.

"If I can't win out by being just a nice, modest girl with quiet clothes and a natural complexion, I guess I'll just have to be an 'old maid.' And that's what I'm liable to be all right. I know that. Because the world is just as bad as the flappers, and nobody appreciates a girl who knows her place, any more. They're all for the 'get-your-man' kind. And that kind makes such a noise and fuss that the men have no chance to see past them, to the real girl they could really love and be happy with. But I'll have my self-respect. If it kills me, I'll keep to my ideals.

"I know that many will be against what I've said, but the world needs somebody to jar it with a little truth now and then, so I'm saying it anyway. Don't you think I'm right? What makes girls act like that nowadays? Can you tell me? Why do they paint and powder?

"TILLIE HOLLISTER."

How do they get that way? I'll tell you presently. But first I'll tell you how you get that way. And if it doesn't give you a nice dole of hiccoughs I'm going right back and chaw off my pet thumb nail.

Want to know what's the matter with you, Tillie? You think it's virtue—but it isn't, sister. It's something else. Three something elses, to be exact. First place, you're a 'fraid cat. And second place, you're stuck on yourself. And third place, you're all scorched up with envy of the other girls.

You pretend that you've no use for modern life. As a matter of fact, you're afraid of modern life—scared pink to step right out and act natural for fear someone will laugh at you—or ruffle your dignity. For youth moves so fast it frightens you—and to cover up that fear, and the lonely ache in your heart, you sneer at those who whirl by in the merry parade. And you console yourself saying how much better you are than they, and quoting your lovely ideals.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Widow's Correct Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Does a widow still use her husband's initials, or does she use her own name? For instance, would she sign her name as "Mrs. W. (William) L. Brown," or "Mrs. Anne Brown?"

This question arose in the office today when referring to an account on the books. E. K.

A widow correctly uses exactly the same form of her name that she used when her husband was living. That is, on her visiting card she still uses the formal name:

Mrs. William Lane Brown.

This, too, is the form of her name that we use when we address our letters to her, or when she signs a hotel register, and for all other formal occasions. Her charge accounts, too, would be in this form of name.

A Costume for the Year 'Round Wardrobe

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know what time of year a black transparent velvet dress, with long sleeves, can be worn? A says that transparent velvet is a summer material, as transparent velvet coats are being worn now? B claims that it is a winter material.

The decision is with you.

YOUR ETIQUETTE FAN.

You are both right. Transparent velvet has come to fill a unique place in our wardrobes, being a fabric that may be worn at almost any time of year. Of course on a very hot summer day one would scarcely elect to wear a long-sleeved black velvet frock even of this sheer quality. But for an unseasonable cool day such as we often have even in the warm season, a frock such as you describe is a wardrobe asset. Many women provide themselves with this type of transparent velvet frock as fortification against the whims of the weather, as it is a flattering fabric perennially in good taste for so many varied occasions such as afternoon functions and informal evening affairs. For between-season wear it is a delight and of the best fashion authority.

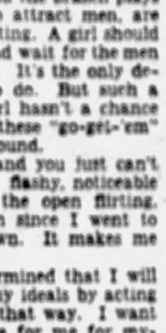
How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Healthy Skin Depends on Circulation.

Too often it happens in our homes that some member of the family, as the result of illness or accident, is in bed for a long period of time. If the invalid is an old person, or if the illness is such that the patient is kept in one position, bed-sores are liable to develop.



DR. COPELAND

The health of the skin depends on the free circulation of the blood. If it is to be firm and healthy, the skin must be plentifully supplied with blood at all times. Bed-sores are due to the death of the skin because of interference with the blood supply.

The usual place for a bed-sore is the lower part of the back. It may involve any part which is pressed upon until it becomes tender and sore. The full length of the spine, the shoulder blades, hips, heels, elbows—all these parts must be carefully watched.

The first bad sign is a redness of the parts. This may be followed by swelling. Next we notice that the skin becomes soft and it may come away in a mass. Underneath the damaged surface is found an open ulcer.

The ulcerated area spreads and more trouble may follow. The ulcerated spot sometimes becomes infected and filled with pus. If this happens the system may be involved in general blood poisoning.

The important thing in caring for a bedridden patient is to change the position frequently. If he is heavy, you must provide a number of small pillows. These are placed under the body so that pressure may be taken off any congested spot.

All prominent or bony parts of the back and sides should be bathed night and morning with soapy water and thoroughly dried. Follow this by rubbing with alcohol, or any stimulating solution, to improve the circulation. After rubbing carefully, dust the parts well with starch, sterate of zinc, or talcum powder.

Cleanliness is of the greatest importance. Also it is necessary to keep the skin dry, because moisture softens the skin and helps to bring on trouble.

Prevention is the important thing. But if a sore actually forms, the doctor will treat it with the same care he would any other open wound.

Household Hints

Tender, bleeding gums require massage. It can be given with the finger tips, or by means of a rubber toothbrush. Tartar creeping up under the gums, tears the delicate tissues. So will dental floss, used carelessly.

Before putting sonny's suits in the laundry be sure to go through every pocket thoroughly. Nine times out of 10 you will find something that would have been disastrous if it had gotten into the washer with the clothes.

If the hair brush seems too soft after its bath, dip it in an equal mixture of milk and water. Then dry before the fire or in the sunshine.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Beautiful bones are a blessed inheritance. Thick ankles are often not fat at all, but bones that are heavy and large. Nothing can be done about such a condition. The prettiest arms are those of the anatomical frame that is well proportioned, not chunky.

The bowlegged baby girl should be taken to a foot specialist who will have designed for the child shoes of certain shape that will throw the foot toward the inner side, thereby straightening the legs. Infants should not be encouraged to walk before they are inclined to do so. They know when their legs are strong enough to start working.

Freckles may be permanent settlers or they may sneak up on you some fine day and surprise you. The scientific name for them is lentigo, but that doesn't make a speckled gal like them any better. They are caused by wind and sunlight. To battle with them the fight must continue, they will return upon exposure. Keeping the skin oiled is a safeguard; an oiled skin doesn't burn.

Soft corns between the toes must be kept dry. Sprinkle over with boric talcum, and cover with absorbent cotton. When soft corns show abrasions they become infected. Such conditions are not only painful but dangerous. Scaly skin surface between the toes is usually produced by ringworm.

Despite the more feminine note in fashions, the best effects are still achieved through simplicity of line and richness of color. Flounces and frills have brought temptations to the fussy dresser, she who loves adornment and cannot resist beads, buckles, bows and other sartorial what-nots that all too often prove to be a false note in the harmony of dress. She is like the artist who, not knowing when his canvas is finished, must add unnecessary touches that detract from the design.

BOOK CLARIFIES FINANCES OF FRANCE

Interesting Revelations On Post-War Conditions Made by Dr. R. M. Haig

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The touchiness of the French government to criticism cannot permanently prevent the outflow of truth, even though the process may be delayed.

Until Robert Murray Haig, Columbia University economist, made a first-hand study post-war French finances were an impenetrable riddle for mere outsiders. In his scholarly tome on "The Public Finances of Post-War France," Dr. Haig made some interesting revelations.

Mr. Rukeyser

He writes:

"In the course of the analysis, instances have been encountered in which the French have exercised considerable ingenuity in the selection of the facts they chose to emphasize and those they chose to express . . . Except for the falsifying of the accounts of the Bank of France during the early months of 1925, he (the author) found no evidence of th edeliberate misstatement of fact whatever. It does appear very clearly, however, that France has, upon occasion, not been entirely innocent of what may be described as financial pretentiousness. As an example, the situation during 1927 may be cited, when great emphasis was placed upon the reduction in the debt of the Bank of France, and little said of the growth of that even more embarrassing liability, the deposits with the treasury.

MANY IRONS IN FIRE

"It is not the intention here to pass upon the question as to whether on the whole, France has been unwise not to be more frank. She has had many irons in the fire, including reparations, the protection of her exchange raie, and the political problems of reconciling her people to the effects of inflation. Whatever its other effects, however, the policy of scanty publicity has certainly complicated the task of writing a history of the financial development of France."

Dr. Haig also called attention to the high degree of careless and unintentional errors in the published French financial data. Dr. Haig has been eminently fair and detached, yet for all his impartiality he uttered some unpleasant statements, and it is a safe bet that the little red ribbon of civil decoration will be withheld from him.

Nevertheless, the franc has been saved, and France at present is in a dominent financial position, with its vast accumulation of gold reserves. Paris seems destined to become a greater world financial center, and France is at the threshold of an era of capital exportation.

In comparing volume of trading at the New York Stock Exchange on dull or busy days, with the records of previous years, it is essential to bear in mind that in the last five and a half years the number of shares listed on the exchange has virtually trebled, having risen from 433,448,561 shares on January 1, 1925, to 1,282,451,274 shares on September 1, 1930.

DEPRESSION SEEN SHORT

Irrespective of temporary ups and downs, current stock prices reflect the belief of the financial community that the depression in business is a reasonably short term cyclical affair and not the beginning of a long drawn out setback such as followed the Napoleonic wars. This belief is reflected in the fact that the price-earnings ratio of 90 representative stocks included in the standard index is higher than in previous bear markets. These stocks were recently quoted at 15.6 times their probable 1930 per share earnings. In 1921 and in 1923, before common stocks were as popular as media for long term investment, they were available for 9.7 times net per share earnings.

The interpretation that the market puts on these data is that the 1930 setback in earnings is temporary in character, and that the true long term earning power of dominant corporations is greater than current quarterly reports indicate. Of course, this viewpoint of the trading public in regard to the temporary character of the setback is of necessity based only on surmise. At the peak last year, the same stocks were selling 24 times current earnings, but prior to 1927 they never sold more than 14.3 times earnings. Of course, as Sir Josiah Stamp, leading British economist and business executive, pointed out during his recent visit to New York, the investment status of stocks depends less on immediate earning power than average earning power over a period of years.

As a result of relatively high price earnings ratio at which stock prices have been selling, stocks have been slow to follow bonds upward in price. Eleven months have elapsed since bottom was reached in bonds. In past cycles, a bull market in bonds of somewhat less duration usually preceded a bull market in stocks, but in 1921 at least a year of rising bond prices preceded the eventual upturn in stocks.

Grain Movement For August Large

ST. PAUL, Sept. 18.—Grain loadings are progressing at the rate of about 4,000,000 bushels a day on the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, St. Paul and Soo Line railroads, according to estimates.

The early harvest brought the largest grain loadings for August in many years, and the movement is keeping up better than had been predicted, with the roads holding some fear of terminal elevator congestion. Estimates are for higher yields than in 1929.

Great Northern reports grain loadings in August were double the August average for the five-year period 1925-29, inclusive. The number of cars of grain loaded on the Great Northern system last month was 19,298, compared with an average of 9,648 for 1925-29.

MARKET AGAIN SLIPS INTO REVERSE

List Moves Off Slowly, With Fall Interrupted When Offerings Dry Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—The stock market slipped into reverse again today and moved slowly downhill, although its descent was checked now and then during intervals of dullness when offerings dried up.

The market's attitude was bearish, however, despite the fact that the best prospects for immediate profits were in the short [illegible] assumed [illegible] lies eliminated [illegible] Activity increased somewhat compared with the Wednesday trading, by the latter was small.

Declines generally [illegible] final prospects. In the more active issues American Telephone & Telegraph, Western Union & Western declined 2 points or more and there were losses of 1 to 2 in R. H. Macy, Woolworth, Safeway Stores, Westinghouse Electric, Johns-Manville, Loews, Auburn, Autostrop, Foster Wheeler, Diamond Match, American Water Works, Sears Roebuck, Case, American Rolling Mills and Eastman Kodak. Gold, United States Steel, General Electric and American Can eased about a point.

NEEDS DEFINITE NEWS

In order to make much progress in either direction, the market appeared to need more definite news of the sort than has been forthcoming. Reports of better business in some of the commodities [illegible] and pig iron and copper, indicate a belief on the part of industrial consumers that prices have scraped bottom, but in the absence of a rally in quotations these materials [illegible] regarded as rather theoretical.

Professional bears have capitalized the sluggish response made by business to a period when seasonal gains are normal. On the other hand, more cheerful speculative circles profess to be satisfied with the situation and are willing to allow the recovery plenty of time.

The weekly construction figures for the states east of the Rockies revealed that the daily rate of new awards for September was running slightly behind August's although the figures for residential building showed improvement.

REVIVAL REPORTED

From trade circles came reports that business in the cotton mills was reviving and that the New York City garment industry was unusually busy, indicating that fall buying had started. The president of an automobile company noted a 30 per cent increase in his concern's August business over July, characterizing the gain as "a definite and encouraging upturn."

Announcement of the terms of American Agricultural Chemical Company's reorganization brought flurries of activity in the company's stocks. The preferred, which is to be exchangeable share for share for stock in the Delaware Corporation, soared half a dozen points to a new high, but the common, on which the exchange basis is one-tenth of a share of new for one of the present stocks, slumped to a new low.

Money was easy and so abundant that the unofficial rate held at 1½ per cent against the call loan renewal rate of 2 per cent.

Bond Authorization Sought by 'Frisco

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—St. Louis and San Francisco Railway has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to sell $10,000,000 of its consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds to Speyer & Co., J. and W. Seligman & Co. and Guaranty Company. Proceeds will be used to pay off bank loans and for other corporate needs.

Willys Head Sees Business on Mend

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—J. A. Miller, president of the Willys-Overland Company, said that the 30 per cent increase in the August business of the company over July indicated a definite and encouraging upturn. He added that other statistics indicated an improvement in purchasing power, production and sales.

Yacht Races Attracting Important Operators From Market

Most observers are now of the opinion that the market is likely to continue in the doldrums as long as the yacht race off Rhode Island continues to compete with it for the interest of bankers and operators who are prevented out of the Street. Technically the market is looked upon as occupying a rather strong position but with constructive forces moving more or less [illegible] pending the [illegible] commodity price situation [illegible] reported more disposed to [illegible] ahead not only in copper but in steel as well.

The new Canadian tariff schedule proving quite as drastic as had been looked for in most quarters, made its appearance yesterday. As expected, it provides for higher duties on American made goods, with new rates against us more penalizing than in the case of other Canadian tariffs. The new schedule, which is asserted to be an effort to aid dominion employment through increased protection for home industry, is in many respects temporary in scope, pending a thorough reconstruction of the tariff at the next session of Parliament. So far as the measure was concerned as an influence on speculative activity here it appeared to have been quite adequately discounted.

Reflection of the public's apathy toward the stock market is found in the steady gain recorded in savings bank deposits since the end of November last year. The end of August finds total deposits of savings banks within Greater New York larger than at any time during 1929, totaling $3,559,161,120, this figure representing a gain of roughly $261,400,000 over the low for 1929 reached in November at $3,297,771,367. The same trend is found in the return for savings banks over the entire state of New York, the total at the end of August standing at $4,532,324,129, an increase of $284,859,000 from the low point of last year reached also at the end of November. This certainly indicates satisfactory potential buying power and emphasizes the lack of confidence stressed as one of the major causes of sluggish business.

As expected, the report on freight carloadings for the week ended September 6, covering the Labor Day holiday, showed a sharp reduction from the total of the previous week standing at 856,637 cars. The total for the week previous was 984,504 cars, having been the largest not only for the year, but since last autumn. Allowing for the widespread relaxation in general business attendant upon the Labor Day recess, the foregoing return is looked upon as encouraging rather than bearish. Calculating the week covered as made up of five business days, it shows carloadings averaged 171,327 cars a day, as against 164,084 cars, the average for six full business days in the previous week.

It now develops that can companies in the drought areas realise they considerably overestimated the damage to packing crops resulting from the long siege of dry hot weather in August, says the Iron Age. At any rate the steel trade journal finds tin plate specifications of these companies undiminished in volume and in frequent instances becoming rather urgent. Most can manufacturing company are pressing the tin plate mills for early deliveries. The result is that the tin plate producers are operating at an average of 70 per cent of capacity, with the leading maker, apparently the American Tin Plate Company subsidiary of U. S. Steel, working at a substantially higher rate. This would indicate that 1930 earnings of the can manufacturing companies should prove pretty well up to the highly satisfactory results obtaining in 1929, a record year for the industry.

In recent sessions, complaints have been heard regarding the progress made by business toward betterment in the past few weeks. However, economists point out that the movement has been normal and following precedent. They show by their records that in the past, barring remarkable outside favorable developments the recovery in business after a severe depression has been slow and rather painful for those who had been maintaining a long position in securities. Therefore, they assert that the progress made thus far has been normal and therefore satisfactory.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Specialist sentiment in the curb market was mildly bearish today and under the leadership of utilities stocks moved irregularly lower. Bears met some resistance to a selling movement as they concentrated upon the utility list but after continual hammering, bore light and found encouragement as to the lower trend on the big board.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange giving all stocks and bonds traded in; 000 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list.

GULF STATES CUTS DOWN LOSSES

Operations at New Plant Check Downward Earning Trend; Demand Still Low

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Gulf States Steel Company has begun shipments from its new sheet and plate mill, and these operations have been a factor in checking the downward trend of earnings recently. Demand for steel products in the South continues slack, however, and the improvement has not been important enough to place operations of the company on a profitable basis.

August results were slightly better than July and it is possible that some further improvement will take place during the current month. Notwithstanding this, the company will have a substantial deficit for the current quarter.

Gulf States Steel's earnings have been declining since early in the second quarter, and the action of directors in passing the common dividend last week came as no surprise. The stock was paying $4 annually at the time. In the first quarter net profit of $94,302 was reported, but a deficit of $86,439 in the second quarter more than offset the profit and resulted in a deficit of $3,837 for the half year. For the nine months the company probably will show a deficit after all charges in excess of $125,000.

With the new sheet and plate mill in use, Gulf States Steel's operations are better balanced, but the advantage of this situation will be more apparent when demand for steel products improves. The company's expansion program has been a handicap to operations, but the poor demand and lower price basis for steel products are the principal reasons for the unsatisfactory showing.

The company's expansion program began with the construction of a new blast furnace and power plant towards the close of 1928. This reduced the cost of manufacturing pig iron and by-products, but in order to realize the full advantages of this saving the company had to extend its expansion into finishing departments.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Enlarged selling on the part of houses with connections northwest did much to make wheat values average lower early today. Advices were at hand that, although Europe will need much more wheat than last year, importers are likely to continue their policy of hand-to-mouth buying, especially as long as Canada continues to offer freely. Opening unchanged to ⅛c off, wheat later sagged all around. Corn started at ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance, and subsequently underwent a general setback, but then rallied.

At noon wheat was unchanged to ⅛c lower, and corn varying from ⅛c net decline to ⅛c gain.

CANADA DRY'S NET HOLDS STEADY

Earnings for Fiscal Year Will Show Little Change; Sales Down Less Than 3%

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Directors of Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., today declared the regular $1.25 quarterly dividend on the capital stock, bringing total payments for 1930 up to $5 a share and marking the fifth consecutive year in which stockholders have received an increased return on their holdings.

Annual cash dividends paid by Canada Dry since the inception of 1925 total $3.75 a share, plus one share of the capital stock. On June 30, 1925, following the present company's reorganization, dividends were declared as follows: [illegible] 1927, $3; 1928, $3.75; 1929, $4.50. In addition to the above cash dividends, stockholders have received a total of a share of capital stock per share in 1926 and 1/80 of a share per share in 1927. Record holders of record June 2, 1926, could subscribe to additional capital stock on a 1-for-10 basis at $60 a share, ranged in value on the New York Stock Exchange between a low of $51 a share and a high of $71.75 a share.

The final quarter of Canada Dry's fiscal year ending September 30 is showing a slight gain. Based on results to date, it is estimated that sales for the year will show less than a three per cent decrease from those of the year ended September 30, 1929, while net profits for the year 1929-1930 should show an almost negligible decrease from the 1928-1929 year, when they totaled $3,534,420, or $6.92 a share on 510,684 shares of capital stock, a new record for the fiscal period adopted in 1929.

The March, 1930, quarter was the first three months period since the incorporation of the present company in 1926 in which net profit did not establish a new record. Sales in January and February held fairly close to the levels of the corresponding months of 1929, but March business showed a decided falling off, owing to the sales resistance of jobbers who were buying from hand to mouth and refusing to estimate the spring needs of their dealers.

Shipping Board OK's Sale of Brazil Line

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The Shipping Board authorized the sale of the American Brazil Line to Charles A. Devlin and Franklin S. Edmunds of Philadelphia, for $92,000. The board announced that details of the sale had not been completed.

The sale was made after the board approved recommendation by the Merchant Fleet Corporation. The sale includes turning over the steamers Bangu, Berury and Biboco at $4.00 per dead weight ton. Terms of the award obligate the purchasers to operate the vessels from New York, Philadelphia, Savannah and Jacksonville to ports in Brazil for a period of five years.

Airline Reports Passenger Gain

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Transcontinental Air Transport-Maddux Air Lines carried 5,169 passengers in August, this year, increase of 120 over July, and making a total of 25,213 for the first eight months this year.

On the transcontinental section of the route company's planes transported 2,571 in July, increase of 1,891 over like month in 1929.

Increase in passenger figures for August were made in the face of a decrease in number of miles flown, indicative of more efficient distribution of planes along the route. A total of 208,254 miles were flown over the company's entire system in August, against 211,106 in the preceding month.

Budd Subsidiary Gets Large Order

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—The Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company announces that its affiliated British concern, the Pressed Steel Company of Great Britain, has received and is executing orders for two new-style all-steel, single piece body models for two of the largest quantity production automobile manufacturers in England. These orders will increase the 1931 sales of the English company by approximately $4,500,000.

Predict Greater Sugar Production

HAVANA, Sept. 18.—Government officials predicted that the sugar output of Cuba for 1930-31 will be far greater than last year.

According to statistics submitted by the secretary of agriculture, Gen. Eugenio Molinet, this increase in cane acreage should increase Cuba's next sugar output by 850,000 long tons or nearly one million more than the mills of the island manufactured in the 1929-30 season.

Central's Revenue Car Loadings Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—New York Central Lines freight loadings and receipts from connections in the week ended September 14 totaled 148,142 cars, the largest week since May 14, last, and comparing with 135,892 for the second week of August and 180,184 for the like 1929 week.

Business Gain Seen by A. L. Humphrey

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

BETTER TIMES ARE COMING. This forecast was made by A. L. Humphrey, president of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company. In speaking of industry in general, Mr. Humphrey said:

"There is no question in my mind but that business is starting to improve. Everywhere I find signs of increasing activity. The final months of this year should see conditions well on their way toward a return to normal."

In discussing his own company, he declared that August and September are usually quiet months for the booking of new orders. Inquiries being received now indicate that activity will show an increase near the end of the year.

Switch Company Gains

SALES OF UNION Switch and Signal Company, a subsidiary of Westinghouse Air Brake, are ahead of last year. The air brake business in this country has been lagging. At present the brake plant is working on orders booked early in the year. There have been few orders for new railroad cars placed recently.

The results of operations in September are still unknown, but earnings for the third quarter of the year will show little change from those of the second quarter when net profit, after taking a $1 depreciation, was $1,827,459, or 57 cents a share on 3,172,111 shares of capital stock. This compared with $2,187,450, or 69 cents a share in the first quarter and with $2,123,539, or 67 cents a share in the second quarter of 1929. Earnings for the second quarter of this year exceeded those of the corresponding period of 1928 when net amounted to $1,482,382, or 47 cents a share.

Foreign Business Large

FOREIGN AFFILIATED COMPANIES of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company are busy. These organizations are working on extensive programs to install air brakes on nearly all the rolling stock of European railroads. About four years will be required for the completion of this program. Capacity operations are assured during that time.

The foreign companies are not wholly owned subsidiaries, but Westinghouse Air Brake has substantial stock interests in each. Their earnings have not been fully reflected in the statements of the parent company. Only dividends paid have appeared in the income account. The undistributed portion of earnings has not been indicated since no consolidated statements including foreign operations have been published.

Pays $2 a Share

WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE pays $2 a share annually on its stock. Results this year indicate that dividend requirements will be earned with some margin to spare. Net for the six months ended June 30, 1930, was $4,014,909 or $1.26 a share compared with $4,048,532 or $1.27 a share in the first half of last year.

In the full year of 1929 net profit was equivalent to $2.78 a share compared with $2.04 a share in 1928. Profits for the present year will be below 1929 but will probably exceed 1928.

While Air Brake has not shown a large margin of earnings over dividend requirements during the past three years, its enviable financial position makes its dividend policy quite safe. There is no funded debt or preferred stock. At the close of 1929, current assets amounted to $46,234,926 against current liabilities of $4,492,658. Cash amounted to $9,056,824 and marketable securities were worth $17,663,794.

MAY STIFFEN STEEL PRICES

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 18.—Efforts are being made to stiffen steel prices for fourth quarter, according to Daily Metal Trade. In the West producers are reported ready to issue a price announcement of 1.70c Chicago as a minimum on bars, plates and shapes, but aside from this no noticeable strengthening in the finished steel price structure has developed. Actual weakness is reported in plates despite comfortable mill backlogs. Consumers are beginning to show more interest in their fourth quarter requirements and in some lines there has been a noticeable quickening in demand. Sheetmakers are booking more business, some sellers reporting the largest orders in more than a month.

Price of Gasoline Reduced in Ohio

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18.—Gasoline prices in Ohio were reduced 2 cents per gallon today by several leading companies it was announced.

Standard Oil and Refiners Oil service station prices will be cut to 19 cents for regular and 21 cents for ethyl gasoline. Shell Oil and Cities Service prices are to be 1 cent higher for ethyl gasoline.

GAS UTILITY SALES OFF

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The generally depressed condition of trade and industry during July was reflected in the operating results of both manufactured and natural gas utilities for the month. Reports received by the statistical department of the American Gas Association from companies representing 90 per cent of the manufactured gas industry indicate July sales of 25,537,171,000 cubic feet, a decline of 1.2 per cent from July, 1929. A group of the larger natural gas utilities, comprising about 80 per cent of the public utility distribution of natural gas, report July sales of 25,681,229,000 cubic feet, a decrease of 9.6 per cent in natural gas sales from the same month of the preceding year.

This sales decline in both branches of the industry was the result in the main of marked decreases in sales of gas for industrial and commercial uses. This was particularly true of the natural gas companies, where the proportion of industrial and commercial business is relatively much greater. For this group commercial sales for July, that is, sales to hotels, restaurants, small shops, etc., were down 8.7 per cent from a year ago, industrial sales decreased 14 per cent, while main line sales to large scale or wholesale industrial customers registered a decrease of nearly 18 per cent for the month.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Read in Page

"Looka that, now!"

Myrna Effinger pointed to a picture in her morning tabloid.

It was always dull in the early morning hours in the Schwartz Bazaar. There wasn't a customer in the place as yet.

Winnie Foster, who had the notion counter with Myrna, glanced over her shoulder at the picture Myrna indicated with her finger.

"What'd she do?" Winnie asked.

"Not a darn thing that's what gets me sore. She just happened to say that she saw a black cat go past her house and a man leaned out and shot a man on the sidewalk, one of them gangster fights, and she gets her name and her picture in the paper. Some girls have all the luck.

"She ain't much to look at," Winnie observed.

"Gee, I bet you I'd take a better picture. I wish I could get my name in the paper."

"S'funny, Myrna, you always having an awful yen to get your name in th' paper. What's th' idea?"

"I just want to—that's all. I always wanted to. There's a girl lives in our block, Sadie Burns, she saw a fire through a window and run down to th' corner and told a cop, and what do you think? Some reporter put her picture in th' paper. Say, she was so stuck up after that, she tried to Ritz everybody."

"It don't do you no good gettin' your name in th' papers," Winnie said.

"It don't hurt you any. I wish—"

Two customers entered. Myrna put her tabloid under the counter and smiled. From then on she had very little leisure.

The next morning it was a girl who had escaped by inches when a steel girder fell to the street. Her name and her picture helped fill the double truck of cuts in the paper.

Visit Beach

"See," Myrna said, "more luck. She didn't do a darn thing and look at that."

"She near got killed," Winnie observed.

"But what did she do?"

"Well," Winnie said, "you can get your name in the papers and your pictures, too, if you want to go and live in a love nest and then kill the man—girls that do that get dozens of their pictures in the paper, mostly sitting with knees showing."

"No, thanks—love nests are out. Of course, I could kill some man, but that ain't the point—it's all these girls who don't do a darn thing that get their names in the papers. They may be holding a pet dog or have seen a hold-up or escaped a sewer explosion. I never have any such luck."

Winnie laughed at her, but to Myrna it was almost an obsession.

They went out to White Beach on their Sunday holiday. Winnie's boy friend was working out of town at this time and Myrna had no boy friend—no one she cared enough about to go to the beach with. There was the usual crowd there and Winnie developed a blister on her heel. She sat down in the sand. After a while they would go in bathing, but they usually watched the crowd first and had some hot dogs.

"I'll go get the dogs on account of your sore heel," Myrna offered. It was a Dutch treat. Winnie gave Myrna her share of the money. Two hot dogs each and a bottle of orange soda was to be their treat.

When Myrna came back with the dogs and the soda she saw quite a little crowd about. A woman was holding a very wet and frightened kid about three. Then Myrna saw Winnie.

"For goodness sake, you're soppin' wet!" she cried.

A man with a camera was just leaving the crowd, but Myrna didn't notice him.

"That poor kid got knocked over by a wave and nobody was near, so I had to wade in and yank him out—my dress is ruined, I guess!" Winnie explained.

They went to the bath house and one of the matrons hung Winnie's clothes out in the sun to dry while she went in bathing.

Winnie's whole day was spoiled. Her dress was dry, but wrinkled and shrunken and she was ashamed to be seen in it.

Picture in Tabloid

Monday morning Myrna was almost late. She just made the subway and didn't get her morning tabloid until she left the subway. Winnie had removed the counter cover and was dusting both sections when Myrna got there. After it was ready Myrna opened her paper to the illustrated double truck.

"Fot Pete's sake!" she cried, "looka—your picture.

"Uh huh," Winnie said, "that guy with th' camera said it would be in th' paper. I didn't ask him which one."

"Pretty sales girl rescues kid bather in street clothes," Myrna read. She turned to Winnie. "You lucky kid!"

"Don't see any luck—what does it get me? I ruined a brand new dress, didn't I? And th' kid's mother was so excited she didn't even thank me."

"I guess I ain't got any more luck than a fish has feet. If it hadn't been for your darn blistered heel you might have went for the dogs and I might have pulled the little brat out and got my picture and name in th' paper!"

Fat Mr. Schwartz came out from his back office and went over to the notion counter.

"So! One of my girls wass a hee-ro-ine, yess?" he said to Winnie. "Safed a kid—pretty goot!"

And ruined a dress, Winnie muttered.

I gif you one, Miss Foster, the old man promised, and he did.

Poor Myrna worked with a scowl all day. She wasn't blaming Winnie or sore at her. She was too sensible for that, but she was sore over what she called her lack of luck.

It was about this time that she became acquainted with Carl Jakobs. He was a newspaper man. He worked in the press room of her favorite morning tabloid. Myrna liked Carl and she liked him all the more because he was a newspaper man.

When I get better acquainted with him," she confided to Winnie, "I'll make him put my name and my picture in the paper."

Later, when she suggested it, Carl tried to explain that being a third assistant press man deep down in the press room was a far cry to the city room, where the news and the pictures are handled.

"You can do it some way, Carl," Myrna insisted.

"Well, if you do something that's got news in it, I can try and get 'em to print your picture," Carl promised.

Myrna Stubborn

"Do something? Lots of girls don't do a thing, Carl, and they get their names printed."

"Aw, honey—what do we care? We're gonna get married some day pretty soon."

"Not until I get my name and my picture in the paper, and that's flat, Carl!"

But gee, Honey—you gotta DO something to get your picture used."

Then the same old argument again.

Myrna had some new pictures taken. Myrna was a really pretty girl and she photographed well. She gave Carl two of the pictures.

"One is for you yourself. The other one is for you to try and get printed in the paper," she explained to him.

Carl sighed. Myrna was stubborn. She wouldn't marry him until she had had her name and her picture in the paper, and he knew that you couldn't just print her picture and say under it, "This is Miss Myrna Effinger."

He was having his beer and sandwiches in Joe's place one night before going on the job when "Snap" Kruger dropped in, set his camera on the table and ordered a beer.

"What's on your mind, Carl, besides your hair? Did you lose another million in the market?" Snap asked.

"I got a girl—"

"Don't tell me—I've had 'em!"

"Be yourself, Snap—she's a good girl," Carl said, indignantly.

Snap liked to consider himself a wit.

"And she won't marry me until she's had her picture in the paper—can you tie that?"

Snap Kruger was interested.

"Lissen, Carl, want to buy this ring?"

He exhibited a pretty good ring, about a carat with a good platinum setting. He named a price the ring was plainly worth twice that.

"I got her a sing—"

"Listen, Carl—"

The next night Carl met Snap there and some of his money went into Snap's pocket while Snap's ring went into Carl's pocket.

"Sunday, at half-past two," Snap said as he was leaving.

"You bet!"

Sunday at half-past two Carl and Myrna were crossing the City Hall plaza to go to the Oriental for chop suey.

He stopped at the fountain.

"Pretty goldfish," he said.

Plan Works

Myrna was watching a couple or girls, or rather, she was studying their clothes. Carl leaned over the fountain.

"Un huh," she said, not interested.

"What's that thing?" Carl pointed.

"Why—it looks like a ring."

"You got short sleeves, reach in and get it, Honey."

Myrna reached into the water. Snap Kruger came along.

"My lady friend found a diamond in the fountain, can you tie that?" Carl said to Snap.

"Yeah? Say, stand still—like that—hold up the ring—that's right."

"What you taking my picture for?" Myrna asked, excitedly.

"Newspaper—will you give me your name, please?"

"Oh!" gasped Myrna.

"So you're a newspaper photographer, sh? You guys sure do get around. I'm in the press room of that same paper," Carl said gravely. Myrna didn't see them exchange winks.

She leaned over as Snap wrote her name. She read:

"Myrna Effinger—Carl Jakobs—$300 diamond—Plaza fountain."

She didn't say a word until Snap had gone. Then she grabbed Carl's arm and squeezed it.

"You darling—you framed it for me—don't deny it—I saw his notes. He had your name and the value of the ring and everything—and—and if my picture is in the paper tomorrow I'll marry you."

She did.

DOCTOR WATTLEY, WE WANT YOU TO CLEAR UP IN DETAIL THE MYSTERY OF BROWNSTONE HILL
TWENTY YEARS AGO I INVENED THIS APPARATUS WHICH PRODUCES AND RADIATES AN ELECTRICAL ENERGY RAY WHICH SEEMS TO BE IN TUNE WITH ALL FORMS OF LIFE— I ALSO INVENTED A BATTERY TO SUPPLY THE CURRENT— THIS ENERGY IS BENEFICIAL TO LIFE, BOTH ANIMAL AND PLANT WHEN—
THE RIGHT AMOUNT IS RADIATED—TURN IT ON TOO STRONG AND IT CAUSES UNCONSCIOUSNESS. IF IT WERE TURNED ON FULL, IT WOULD TEAR HUMAN BODIES TO PIECES— I FIGURED YOUR OLD HOUSE WOULD BE AN IDEAL PLACE TO MAKE EXPERIMENTS— THE DAY AFTER I'D MOVED IN I SAW A MAN CRAWLING THROUGH THE CELLAR WINDOW
I DECIDED TO TRAP HIM WITH MY RAY MACHINE— AND SO I TURNED THE DIAL UP TO THREE QUARTERS FULL— YES, I TRAPPED HIM AND MYSELF ALSO— YOU SEE I FORGOT TO PUT THE METAL SHIELD AROUND MY BODY— AND WE WERE BOTH HELD IN SOME FORM OF SUSPENDED ANIMATION FOR TWENTY YEARS
MY BODY WAS USELESS BUT MY MIND WAS ACTIVE— AND DURING THOSE TWENTY YEARS I FORCED MYSELF OUT OF MY CARCASS MANY TIMES— FINALLY I BECAME AWARE THAT CASTOR OYL AND A ONE-EYED SAILOR WERE ABOUT TO TURN BACK THE DIAL ON MY APPARATUS— KNOWING MY BODY TO BE WEAK AND OLD—
AND WISHING TO PUNISH JOE BILGE FOR BREAKING INTO MY HOME, I DID A THING WHICH SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE— I FORCED HIM OUT OF HIS BODY AND INTO MINE— I THEN TOOK HIS STRONG BODY— AND THE REST YOU KNOW

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Aunt Bella Will Gladly Answer Almost Any Question of Interest. Except Those About What Time It Is.

Dear Aunt Bella—Just what is the correct form in introducing a gentleman to a distinguished lady.

—One Present.

Ans.—Aunt Bella, I might say by way of introduction, has never been what you might call squeamish about the way in which she is tipped off to a gentleman. There's so few guys around that ain't mugs, that it's carrying things just a little too far to care about how they get to know you. So my advice to you is just bring the gent around. Aunt Bella will be only too glad to see you both. How would 2:30 about Friday do?

Coal Mining Still Among Our Gigantic Industries

The bituminous coal industry has fallen into such a doleful plight in Western Pennsylvania during the last few years that to judge from the pessimistic talk of both operators and miners one might suppose there was not much left of it.

Valuable markets have been lost. Only a fraction of the tonnage that once went to the Great Lakes now goes there. Coal companies formerly strong have gone into receivers' hands and others have suspended dividends. To keep the mines going coal, it is said, is being sold by some concerns for less than the cost of production.

The United Mine Workers of America, once foremost of the labor unions, has been crushed in this district. The union men, after a long and futile strike for the Jacksonville wage rate of $7.50 a day, are now working in nonunion mines for $4 or $5 a day, and glad to get work.

But bituminous coal mining still remains one of our gigantic industries. Depressed as it is, it gave employment to 131,774 miners in Pennsylvania last year and resulted in the production of 143,516,241 tons of coal valued at $258,607,000. Fayette County was first in production, and Washington County second.

An industry which, struggling with the difficulties that confront soft coal operators in Pennsylvania, produces a quarter of a billion dollars' worth of wealth in a bad year, is entitled to respect.

Such an industry deserves every effort that can possibly be made to instill fresh vigor into it.

Steamboat Boilers Show Flood Reservoir Need

The rivers are at the lowest stage in years, and, with less water than usual to dilute the acid drainage from coal mines, steel mills, tanneries, paper plants and other industrial establishments, the acid is doing heavy damage. Ten Pittsburgh steamboats are named as needing repairs in their boiler tubes, corroded by the acid water. Steel barges and vessels with steel hulls will have to have plates renewed, for the same reason. Every metallic object with which the water is long in contact is sooner or later damaged.

Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, discussed industrial pollution of streams in his address at Oil City Tuesday. He favors purification of the rivers, but suggests that to require the industries to find some other way of disposing of their acid drainage might cripple their operations and throw men out of work. Therefore he advises against haste in the adoption of such a remedy.

There is another way in which partial relief can be obtained, and that is by storing water in seasons when it is abundant in reservoirs at the headwaters of the rivers and then releasing it in times of drought. The Flood Commission of Pittsburgh has long had plans for such reservoirs, as a measure for flood prevention.

Rivermen are praying for heavy rains to wash the acid waters out of the pools. The same thing could be accomplished by releasing water from the great storage reservoirs. Building the reservoirs—properly a federal government undertaking—would furnish employment to thousands. And there would be no interference with the industries.

Colleges Re-Open Here With Large Attendance

Pittsburgh's institutions of higher learning are re-opening for the new collegiate year. Registration is under way at Pitt, Tech, Duquesne, and Pennsylvania College for Women. The Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary, recently formed by the merger of two institutions, has also opened.

Shadyside Academy starts its sessions with bright prospects. Attendance is large. Washington & Jefferson reports the largest freshman class in its history.

Unfortunately there will be many to drop out at all these institutions before completing their courses. For some, unfitted for collegiate studies, it may be prudent to quit and devote their energies to something else.

And yet there is something to be said in favor of going through with it and getting a degree even though everything studied in the classroom should be speedily forgotten. There is still prestige in being a college graduate. A bachelor's degree will open doors to opportunities that are not open to those who have not graduated.

Discourteous Policeman Receives Timely Lesson

A policeman is to be excused, perhaps, for using rough language when dealing with a desperate criminal; but there is no excuse for discourtesy in discussing with a respectable citizen some petty infraction of the automobile regulations. It is interesting to learn that one unnecessarily rude officer has received a timely lesson.

The officer, a state motor patrolman, approached Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County, on the highway several weeks ago and roughly demanded to see his license cards. It seems that Judge Patterson had just shown the cards shortly before to another patrolman, and so raised some question about it. The policeman thereupon put him under arrest and required him to go before a justice of the peace and post bond for a hearing.

Judge Patterson was placed on trial this week. He was found not guilty, and the arresting officer was ordered to pay the costs and recommended for dismissal from the service.

The incident should serve as a warning to officers not to browbeat and insult citizens.

Intruder Finds Colorado Cold -:- By Nelson Harding

A cold wind doth blow
As voters roar "No!"
To foreign entanglement schemes
And speak out their minds
On all sorts and kinds
Of illusion-conceived World Court dreams.

A blizzard of votes
Most plainly denotes
What Americans think of the "Court,"
When they find a way
Of having their say,
Their answer's decided and short.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Snap! Goes Another Arch

Dr. Goldwag is a scientist of repute. He tells us in mournful numbers that the motor car is giving Americans flat feet.

Which ailment will not be painful so long as they make limousines to fit it.

Flat fleet as a concomitant of vehicular traffic is nothing new. We once got the same way by being run over by a bicycle.

Now we are riding around in automobiles so much that when we get on terror firma our feet feel like alien enemies.

Sunken groundgrippers are not so bad if you are not trying to qualify for the Olympic games. You can always keep them shuffling along in the junior prom. In fact, we discovered that the less control you have over your feet the more the girls want to dance with you.

But the scientific old ruffian slaps us right in the national face by stating that American ladies are the biggest kind of sufferers from collapsible arch-work.

Some of them walk back. The others prefer to buy arch supporters.

Luxury and mauve upholstery have destroyed our flare for dusty marathons. But if motor cars give us a taste for flat dogs we don't want any other flavor.

And the time to worry about pedal repairs is when the engine stops running.

It seems to us that doctors are overlapping their inquisitive authority. We don't mind 'em looking in our ears and at our tonsils. But they are certainly anxious for you to be sick when they start looking in your shoes.

The world of science and research has left us very little privacy. And that will probably be X-rayed tomorrow.

Doc Goldwag shouldn't reach way back and pull up a country physician's diagnosis from the days when an old hoss and carriage had the trade-in value of a shucked oyster.

He should realize that we are living in an age of progress even if our footprints do look as if somebody has dragged an old piece of kitchen linoleum across the ground. We're happy. And if the tootsies are pancaked we can always hide them under a luxurious mink robe in a palatial limousine.

If we have to choose between being a peppery, highstepping pedestrian and a soggy, sway-backed motorist, why, James, have the car at the door right after breakfast.

GLENN HAMMOND CURTISS

By Archibald Henderson

One of the great pioneers in aviation, who brought great distinction to America for his achievements as flier, designer and manufacturer of airplanes, is Curtiss, recently deceased. It is probably true that he was the leading figure in aircraft development during the period following the first flight of the Wright brothers and down to the opening of the World War.

Glenn Hammond Curtiss was born at Hammondsport, N. Y., on May 21, 1878, the son of Frank R. and Lena Andrews Curtiss. He attended the public schools, but never enjoyed the benefits of a college education. He worked for a time as a telegraph operator, and subsequently was employed by the Eastman Kodak Company. He was a nautical inventor and mechanic, skilful in design, and clever in construction.

Speed with him was a sort of mania, whether on a bicycle, a motorcycle, or in an airplane. As a young man, astride a yellow bicycle, he entered many contests and soon won a large collection of trophies.

When the motorcycle came on the market, he began to manufacture motors for this new machine for covering the ground at high speeds. He was soon engaged in the business of manufacturing motorcycles. But he didn't stop; he began to make records as a speed demon. The record on a motorcycle he made at Ormond Beach, Fla., on January 28, 1904, stood for 16 years. In 1906, on a motorcycle of his own design and manufacture, he established a speed of 137 miles per hour at Ormond Beach, a record which stood for about 20 years. It has been well said that speed was the keynote of his character.

In the field of flight in a dirigible, Curtiss made history. Thomas Scott Baldwin hung up a record with his dirigible, the California Arrow, with a motor built by Curtiss, at Oakland, Cal., on August 3, 1904. This feat of making a flight in a dirigible and returning to land at the starting point, was repeated by Baldwin at the St. Louis Exposition, with Curtiss aboard as engineer. They subsequently gave exhibition flights in many parts of the country.

In 1907, Curtiss, in association with Alexander Graham Bell, organized the Aerial Experiment Association. With Bell's assistance and Mrs. Bell's gift of $25,000, experiments were carried on over seven months, resulting in the construction of an airplane. Although it had been four years since the Wright brothers had made their beautiful flight, they had not yet flown in public, being delayed in securing their patents. The first public flight in America was made by Curtiss in his plane, the Red Wing. He flew for 318 feet 11 inches, but cracked up at the end of the flight. His next flight, in the White Wing, the second plane he ever built, was entirely successful. About this time he developed the ailerons for horizontal control.

Curtiss has many records and achievements to his credit. Twice he won the Scientific American trophy. The first time he won it in the June Bug, July 4, 1908, the first previously announced flight in America. It is claimed, on good evidence, that his efforts to build a ship that could land and rise from the water led eventually to the development of the hydroplane. In 1909 he won the second Scientific American trophy; and a little later the Bishop prize for a flight of a kilometer in two and a half minutes. At Rheims, France, representing America, he won the James Gordon Bennett cup. On May 29, 1910, he achieved what was then regarded as a great triumph, the first flight from Albany to New York.

-:- LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

"Am I in love?"

Some day you'll ask yourself that question. Perhaps you have already asked it. . .and have been wondering ever since why you guessed the answer wrong!

"But how can one know?" you say. "Is there any way to guess the answer right?"

Yes, there is. It is possible to know if you're really in love or just dizzy. It is also possible to know whether your "love" will be lasting and satisfactory—whether you and the loved one will be real partners. Nor need you buy a love philter to solve these mysteries. For they aren't mysteries. . .they are as simple as seed time and harvest, and any man can find the answer if he has honesty and common sense, and enough courage not to kid himself.

How can you know if love is REAL. TEST IT BY YOUR ORDINARY LIFE. For remember, love is not a miraculous seizure, set apart from all common experience. It is simply a part of life. It is your hungry spirit and your lonely body crying out for more life—for someone to complete your life. But no love can be helpful and no person can help you complete your life unless that love and that person fit the pattern of life which you have already made. So if you wish to test love, don't try to analyze your new ecstasy—look rather at the old pattern.

For 20 or 30 years you have been making that pattern. Your career may not have been all you desired, but, in the main, you expressed yourself and did what you wished. You developed certain likes and dislikes, certain habits and notions. You arranged to live life at a certain pace. You adopted certain methods. And with each year you've grown more set in your attitudes and ways.

Now, if you've lived that way for a third of your life, it's dollars to doughnuts you'll live that way until the end. Your work and environment may change, but you, yourself, will remain essentially the same. And it will be utterly foolish to bring into your life any arrangement which doesn't fit that fixed pattern.

DOES THIS NEW LOVE FIT THAT FIXED PATTERN?

You are, of course, tremendously excited and thrilled by it just now. But try and study it calmly. Does this new feeling flow easily with the old, established feelings? Does it seem "a natural?" Does it quietly, happily enlarge your present life and program? Do you feel at home in it? If so, it is probably real and right and you can safely take a chance on it.

Or does it throw all your present life askew? Does it demand strange adjustments which are foreign to your established nature? Does it require that you become a gad-about when you have always been a stay-at-home? Does it expect you to be excitable, disorderly, eccentric, when you have always been calm, orderly, conventional or vice-versa?

Above all, WHY DO YOU WANT THIS LOVE? Do you want it because it fits in with your normal desires and ambitions? Or because, in its intoxication or power you think you can find an escape from your old weariness and worry? IF SO, BEWARE OF IT!

For though it may amuse you to adjust yourself now, it will shortly irritate you. And though this strangeness may thrill you now, it will shortly bore and bother you. And though you may seem to find an escape now, you will very soon see that no one life can escape into another life.

If you have the honesty, courage and common sense, you can test love by these questions. And if your love clicks with your life—go ahead. But if you find that it doesn't . . . if you find yourself making excuses and explanations in order to justify it . . . LOOK OUT! For if that is the case, what you're suffering from isn't love at all, partner. It's just a dose of emotional hives.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

V—Isolation as a Species Maker.

Here and there, however, an isolated patch of wrens is separated from their congeners by some barrier, such as a high mountain range, a stretch of sea, or a desert, and then we find no transitional forms linking them with other races. We can if we like call these groups species and the grading divergencies sub-species; but apart from such verbal quibbling, it is clear that isolation has produced sharply marked types.

This effect of isolation in helping to brung new types into being is one of the every-day facts of systematic biology. It is most obvious where the isolation is most complete, for example in the plant and animal inhabitants of islands.

H. G. Wells

Both St. Kilda and the Shetlands, for instance, have a distinct sub-species of wren. The Puffins of Spitzbergen are all a little larger and have beaks a good deal bigger than those of the rest of Europe; and we know no adaptive meaning in the divergence.

In other cases the divergence that is helped and hastened by isolation may be a useful one.

We have, for instance, the case of the Florida deer-mouse, recently investigated by Sumner. This animal is normally dark grey-brown, blending nicely with the color of the soil.

On a little island off the coast, all made of snow-white sand, exists a sub-species whose color is nearly white — again blending beautifully with the background. On the coast opposite the island a third type is found which is intermediate in color between the other two, and this, although it inhabits the same white sands as the island race.

Selection of light variations must have been at work both on the island and on the shore: but while the island race is isolated, there will be some inter-crossing between individuals from the interior and from the shore, and this will hinder selection as its work.

In our chapter on geological distribution we spoke of the many animals and plants peculiar to the Galapagos Islands, and how they were related to those of South America, the nearest mainland. But that was only part of the story.

There is the further remarkable fact that of the archipelago's land animals and resident birds most types are represented by separate species on each of the main islands. This is notably true of the extraordinary giant tortoises; of the mocking-birds; and of the various genera of peculiar Galapagos Islands, found nowhere else. It is equally true of the plants.

As Darwin wrote:

"We have the truly wonderful fact that in James Island, of the thirty-eight Galapageian plants found in no other part of the world, thirty are exclusively confined to this one island;" and many genera are represented by a single different species on each island.

Chance immigration from the continent, followed by new evolution on the archipelago, would clearly account for the animals and plants of the archipelago as a whole.

But what about the differences between the inhabitants of the separate island—differences which become still more remarkable when we realize that on the American continent single species of similar creatures—mocking birds, for instance—have ranges extending over hundreds of miles?

The environments provided by the various islands are very similar, so that it seems most improbable that the conspicuous differences between the island species are adaptations to conditions of life. It would rather seem that the prevention of inter-crossing between the populations of the various islands has left each stock free to develop along its own line, and that each has happened upon a slightly different one.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Three young rich high-flying birds, spiraling about Broadway, had their wings clipped recently and abruptly. They now roost quietly around family firesides. The experiment was the last resort of distracted parents and so successful it became the theme of a Broadway play.

The lads were on a prolonged bust, buying out speakeasies and night clubs and entertaining baby-talkers galore. Jag cures, Park avenue sanitariums and personal pleas were tested to no avail. In the extremity a hard-boiled ex-marine and football coach was given the "kill or cure" job.

One by one the stayouts were turned over to him carte-blanche to use his own methods. Always rough, he was at times brutal. He acted as their trainer and they had to obey or else. In the beginning all were belligerent, bloated with booze and hangoverish resentment.

He met defiance with a clip to the jaw that often "snapped out the lights." That is after he had inviegled them to the isolated camp in the Adirondacks. There he baited, bullied and in emergencies beat them but had his code of meeting squareness more than half way.

They could not drink, smoke or leave the camp to "go girling." They were routed at dawn to tramp, chop trees, ride horseback and be abed by 8 p. m. It was the Muldoon idea applied individually instead of collectively and with a far greater gusto.

In each case regeneration required about three months. The first being one of terrific discipline with no quarter given. The second was a sort of thawing out lightened by a touch of the honor system. And at the end of the third trainer and "pupil" were invariably pals.

The boys returned toughened and whetted to a robust vitality. There has been no backsliding. Not one has taken a single drink and only one has gone back to smoking. Each is shunning Broadway. In every case the trainer was not only given a salary but a grateful bonus.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You are mighty careful not to answer impertinent questions when they refer to your own affairs, realizing the damage that might be done that way.

But are you as careful when you are questioned about the affairs of your friends and neighbors?

There are some folk who are curious and prying.

With them it is a habit of mind.

But it is not your business to satisfy their curiosity by giving a lot of personal detail about another's business when you would not want your own to be discussed with a third party.

When you hear one man say that another is "pretty near on the rocks," you may be sure that it was not a friend of that man who started the report.

If a man is foolish enough to talk about his own business in a way to give the impression that he is about down and out, it comes pretty near being his fault if he finally fails in business.

It shows he has given up the ship, is discouraged and downhearted and not brave enough to keep trying.

And if you are really a friend to a man who is having hard times to keep his head above water, don't push him in farther by circulating the fact that he is going under, but help him get out safely.

The least you can do is to refuse to believe failure for him.
